EYEWITNESS TELLS HOW ARMENIANS WERE MASSACRED

American Relief Worker, with 16 Others, Was Under Siege Three Weeks.

KILLINGS UNDER THEIR EYES

1,000 PERISHED IN RETREAT

Many Fell by the Wayside and Starved or Died Miserably in the Snow.

ADANA, Asia Minor, Feb. 29 (Associated Press).—Since the siege of Peking, foreigners have undergone no more nerve-wracking experience than that of seventeen workers of the American Committee for Relief in the Near East, shut up for twenty-two days without outside communication in a mission compound at Marash. They were under a constant rain of lead, while French troops, aided by Armenians, battled with Turkish Nationalists for possession of the city, more than half of which was burned during the engagement, which brought about a terrible loss of life.

The story is told in the diary of the Rev. C. T. S. Crathern, a Boston Y. M. C. A. Secretary, who went through the siege and arrived at Adana on Feb. 15.

Mr. Crathern, Paul Snyder, Miss Helen Schultz of Reading, Pa., a French Lieutenant and two Armenians attempted to leave Marash by automobile for Aintab Jan. 20, but were driven back to Marash by a fusilade of bullets, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Crathern displayed the American flag.

The Turks had been showing resentment of French occupation of Marash and other cities for many weeks, Mr. Crathern reports, and Algerian troops were engaged in a skirmish with Turkish bandits when an American automobile appeared and drew fire from the Turks. Mr. Crathern's diary says that on Jan. 21 he found Marash with its bazaars and shops closed and the Turks engaged in talking in small groups throughout the city.

At noon shots were heard by the relief workers, indicating that the long-threatened clash in the city had started. The French arrested several important Turkish officials, which, it was presumed, brought about disorders at Aros. Shooting soon began in all parts of the city. A French sentinel guarding an American hospital was killed, and another French soldier was wounded.

American Hospital Attacked.

Sniping continued throughout the night, and the Americans were wakened on the 22d by the sound of guns and flashes from exploding shells. An attack was made on the American hospital, the doctors and nurses having a narrow escape.

Fighting continued on the 23d, and through his field glasses Mr. Crathern said he could see Armenians fleeing through the streets before the Turks, who shot them down, while Turkish snipers on the hills about the city shot at Armenians attempting to leave Marash.

The diary says:

"It was pitiful to see them throw up their hands and scream while attempting to escape. We watched them fleeing over the hills until they reached our compound, some dropping wounded and others staggering into the mission grounds with wild eyes and purple faces, telling of the awful massacre just beginning.

On the 24th the Armenians conferred with the French General Querette and told him stories the refugees brought of the horrors. He said he would try to correct the situation, but efforts to negotiate a cessation of hostilities failed, and a heavy bombardment began in the afternoon. The French fired upon certain sections from which Turks were sniping.

"At night the city is in total darkness," the diary continues. "Whenever we go from one compound to another we creep along walls to escape being hit. Every compound is filled with frightened refugees, alarmed over the fate of their relatives. The American Committee for Relief in the Near East is feeding 2,000 orphans and refugees with only a few days' supply, and the bread problem is grave.

"Today we raised the American flag, but no sooner had we raised it to the mast than a salute from a dozen guns sent us scampering to cover. I just timed thirty-three shots in one minute. Machine guns are pecking away like giant woodpeckers.

"The whole country is in the flame of revolt. While the days are exciting, the nights are more so, with great guns booming and soldiers creeping stealthily forth with benzine torches and hand grenades. Fires are raging in various sections and the city is like Dante's Inferno.

"Jan. 25.—Hundreds of Armenians are trying to reach our compound, but the light made by fires the Turks are setting to Armenian quarters makes their escape impossible.

"Jan. 27.—At this moment there is a young woman in our house who tells us

German Royalists Form a New National Party

BERLIN, March 5. — German Royalists have organized a party "to comprise all men and women who do not approve of the present form of Government." Its headquarters will be at Leipsic.

The announced object of the party will be to "co-ordinate and organize the nation's monarchical elements."

PROMISE EUROPE AID, EVEN WITHOUT LOAN

Chairman Barnes of Grain Corporation Is Ready to Send 5,000,000 Barrels of Flour.

OFFERS FOOD ON CREDIT

Congress Likely to Act Next Week — Poles Dying of Famine and Typhus.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Unless Congress will authorize a loan of $50,000,000 to finance sales of food to Poland and other portions of Europe now on the verge of starvation, five million barrels of soft wheat flour may be sent there on credit by the Federal Grain Corporation.

It has been impossible to sell this flour for cash in the United States, said Julius Barnes, head of the corporation, testifying today before the House Rules Committee on conditions in famished Europe. Mr. Barnes said he had authority to send the flour on credit, but he hoped the loans requested would be supplied by Congress. If this were done, he said, there was more likelihood that neutral countries would co-operate. Great Britain, he understood, would appropriate 50 per cent. of what the United States authorizes, up to $50,000,000, and in addition has offered to transport food supplies free of cost to European countries.

"If we merely extend credits through the Grain Corporation," he said, "we can only furnish flour, while by the other plans other food supplies, such as rye and barley, could be sent abroad."

American housewives have continually refused to buy the soft wheat flour held by the Federal Grain Corporation, though it retails at $10.75 a barrel, Mr. Barnes said. They demand hard wheat flour instead, with the result that the latter has steadily risen in price.

The Rules Committee, it was said tonight, will report a rule giving the relief bill right of way in the House, with the prospect of its passage by the middle of next week.

The worst picture of conditions in Poland was presented by William R. Castel, Jr., in charge of the State Department in Central European divisions. He read a report received from State Department investigators which told of extreme suffering and deaths from lack of food and asserted that the Bolsheviki are sending typhus victims in armored cars to the Polish border and from there allowing them to drift for themselves into Polish territory.

The witness said that Austria, Armenia and Poland are suffering also from lack of fuel and that only prompt relief from this country would prevent a greater number of deaths.

Miss Lois Downs, a Y. M. C. A. worker recently returned from Poland, told of conditions there in January. She pleaded with the committee to extend aid without delay, and told Representative Fess, who questioned the policy of further aid by the United States, that humanity called for assistance to the starving despite high taxes.

"Poland will break unless relief is given not later than April," she said. "It will not become Bolshevist, it will just go under from want of food and the necessities of life. The armies fighting against the Bolshevik forces cannot stand up much longer, and Poland is counting upon America to come to her relief.

"Practically all children under 5 years of age have died for lack of food. The children have pinched faces, crooked legs, and bad eyes, and all sorts of deformities from lack of nourishment. The death rate is as high as 50 per cent."

POLES BAR ARMISTICE WITH THE BOLSHEVIKI

Fear Troop Concentrations by Reds While Peace Negotiations Are Going On.

WARSAW, March 3.—Demands that the Russian Bolsheviki enter peace negotiations without agreeing to an armistice are embodied in the latest proposals made to the Soviet Government by Poland. It is contended by the Poles that if an armistice is agreed to the Bolsheviki will take advantage of the time to concentrate troops and reinforce various points along the front where they are unable now to mass forces.

Delegates from Finland and Latvia have arrived here to confer with Foreign Minister Patek regarding peace problems. Other States, including Rumania, are expected to send delegates soon.

It was announced today that M. Patek would not go to Paris or London, as he had planned, but that Poland's proposals of peace would be wired to Premiers Millerand and Lloyd George for their consideration before being submitted to the Bolsheviki.

PREMIERS ACCEPT WILSON'S ADRIATIC PLAN IN PRINCIPLE

Text of Feb. 26 Note Shows They Agree to Start Out Anew, Recalling Terms.

ASK HIM TO JOIN IN APPEAL

But Assert That if New Plan Fails They Are Bound by London Treaty.

WILSON REPLY IN LONDON

Is Handed to British Foreign Secretary and Will Be Published Here on Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The note of Feb. 26 from Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand to President Wilson on the Adriatic situation was made public tonight by Acting Secretary of State Polk along with four other notes figuring in the Adriatic correspondence, the text of which had not previously been given. The other documents included in tonight's publication are the Italian memorandum of Jan. 6, the British-French proposal of Jan. 9 in the form of which it stood before it was accepted by Premier Nitti on Jan. 14, the Italian memorandum of Jan. 9 and the Jugoslav memorandum of Jan. 28.

President Wilson's reply to this note, which has just been forwarded, will be made public by the State Department in Monday morning's newspapers.

In their note of Feb. 26, Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand declare that they consider it of the "greatest importance" that President Wilson had expressed his willingness to accept any settlement "mutually agreeable" to Italy and Jugoslavia, provided such agreement is not the basis of compensation elsewhere at the expense of a third power. Agreeing that this would be "the ideal way" of settling the question, the Premiers informed the President that they would do their utmost to try to reach a settlement in that matter, and, in order to facilitate that process, were ready to withdraw the proposals of both December and January. They invited the President to join them in a formal proposal to the Italians and Jugoslavs to negotiate a mutual agreement on the basis of a withdrawal of all previous proposals.

The correspondence made public tonight shows that on Jan. 6 Signor Nitti sent a memorandum to Lloyd George declaring that Italy "asks for the fulfillment of the Pact of London," but that in order to eliminate difficulties which had subsequently arisen and to reach a general settlement without delay the Italian Government was prepared to accept a stated compromise. In this note Italy was ready to accept the free State of Fiume, according to President Wilson's plan, but with the frontier of the Pact of London in its southwestern part. Three days later Clemenceau and Lloyd George made a joint proposal to Nitti, who accepted it on Jan. 14.

Text of Premiers' Reply to Wilson.

The memorandum by the Premiers of France and Great Britain in reply to President Wilson's communication, received by them on Feb. 25, 1920, follows:

"London, Feb. 26, 1920.

"The Prime Ministers of France and Great Britain welcome the communication which they have today received from the President of the United States in answer to their memorandum of Feb. 17. They wish to record their appreciation of the recognition given therein by President Wilson to the attitude of the French and British Governments concerning the Adriatic settlement.

'The French and British Prime Ministers are glad, once again, to repeat the assurance given by them in the memorandum of Jan. 22 that they 'have never had the intention of making a definite settlement of the questions raised without obtaining the views of the American Government.' A further explanation of these views, which is supplied in the memorandum under reply, is, therefore, for the the French and British Governments a matter of very great interest and importance, all the more since it shows that the United States Government does not wish to disinterest itself from the general question of peace.

"The absence of any American representative has proved, in practice, an almost insurmountable obstacle to the success of negotiations and to the acceptance by the parties concerned of an equitable solution, in conformity alike with the principles of the Peace Conference and of the legitimate, though conflicting, aspirations of the Italian and Jugoslav peoples.

"They note as a fact of the greatest importance that the President of the United States expressed his willingness to accept any settlement mutually agreeable to Italy and Jugoslavia regarding their common frontier in the Fiume region provided that such an agreement is not made on the basis of compensations elsewhere at the expense of nationals of a third power. This, the French and British Prime Ministers agree, would be the ideal way of settling the question at issue

Report British Will Seize Turks' Capital; Italy Offers to Give Up Fiume Corridor

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 5.—Telephoning to the Echo de Paris tonight, "Pertinax" says:

"President Wilson's reply to the note, which the allied powers addressed to him on Feb. 26, arrived yesterday, and the Supreme Council at its last sitting took note of it but did not discuss it. Certain groups of figures seemed questionable consequently the cable company was requested to repeat the text of the dispatch.

"It will be remembered that the European powers in their last communication proposed to the President of the United States the following method of settling the Italian-Jugoslav differences:

First—The possibility of direct agreement between the interested parties.

Second—In the event of the first proposal not succeeding conciliatory proposals, drawn up by France, Great Britain, and the United States.

Third—As a last resource application of the Treaty of London.

"So far as we can learn, President Wilson, who shows no signs of desiring to withdraw from European affairs, (that is perhaps the chief point of interest in his last missive), accepts the two first stages of procedure suggested.

"He repeats that he is ready to sanction any agreement acceptable to Italy and Jugoslavia. Otherwise he leaves it to be inferred that the note of Dec. 9 seems to him to have laid down the most equitable solution of the problem, and he rejects the Treaty of London, while not making any other suggestion for a solution.

"The certainty that the Treaty of London would be the final base of settlement in case the other proposals failed undoubtedly led Italy to give its approval to the Franco-British note of Feb. 26. Will Italy still approve? She only can answer that question.

"Before taking this important decision Nitti doubtless conferred yesterday with Trumbitch. At the end of last week the Rome Cabinet communicated to the Belgrade Government new concessions, which it was ready to make and which consisted chiefly in giving up the famous territorial communication between Fiume under Italian sovereignty and Italy proper. Thus far the Jugoslavs have withheld their reply.

"The Supreme Council examined reports of an increasingly alarming character, received from the High Commissioners of the powers resident at Constantinople. Venizelos strongly urged energetic action Constantinople by France, Italy and England, backed by threats of military action.

"The Council decided to follow Venizelo's advice and orders were issued to the British forces, naval and military, in the neighborhood of Constantinople.

"But can this military action achieve the desired result? We shall get from the Sultan and the Constantinople Government all sorts of promises, but it will be in Asia that the crux will come."

LONDON, Saturday, March 6.—The Daily Telegraph today makes a feature of a report that the Allies have decided on the military and naval occupation of Constantinople in consequence of the treatment of the Armenians by the Turks.

The newspaper's version of the report represents Great Britain as determined to occupy the Turkish capital, and says she has invited France and Italy to cooperate and that their replies are awaited.

WOMAN GEM THIEF, CAUGHT, ENDS LIFE

COMPANION IS ACCUSED

Arrested for the second time yesterday as a jewel thief Antoinette Bonner, known to Maiden Lane as the "Queen of Diamonds" and also as "Miss Amethyst," twisted from the grasp of a detective, snatched a bottle of cyanide of potassium from her handbag, swallowed some of it and died in Volunteer Hospital.

Joseph B. Kislinger, in whose office at 15 Park Row the woman was seized and who once before faced a similar charge with her, was locked up on a charge of grand larceny. He pleaded not guilty in Tombs Police Court and was held in $1,000 bail by Magistrate Marsh for examination next Thursday. He is 50 years old.

The complainant against the pair was George H. Cummings, manager of the New York Novelty Company, a jewelry concern at 621 Broadway, in which Benjamin and Herman Comings are partners. Cummings testified in court that the couple, acting in concert, stole from his firm diamonds valued at $3,000. The complaint stated that they admitted having diamonds, but refused to surrender them. Cummings testified that the woman got the jewels from him on memorandum, asserting she was in business with partners at 15 Park Row and that she had a customer named Lucas who would purchase them.

The arrests were made by Detective Thomas F. Smyth, attached to the lost property squad at headquarters, and a companion. When the pair invaded Kislinger's office Smyth grabbed the woman. She screamed, "You'll never take me!" and wrenched herself from the detective's grasp. Meantime the other detective was busy with Kislinger and before Smyth knew what the woman's cry meant, or what she was trying to do, she had swallowed some of the poison. By the time he had got an ambulance from Volunteer Hospital she was moribund and first-aid measures there were vain. Her last address was at 130 East 116th Street. She was 32 years old. Gems of considerable value was found in her handbag.

Much jewelry is sold in the gem district on memorandum through just such commission merchants, and Miss Bonner and Kislinger once before were accused of having defrauded precious stone merchants to the extent of $150,000 to $200,000. They were arrested in Paris in May, 1914, and extradited after the war started.

They were tried on the specific charge of stealing a lavalliere worth $685 from a jewelry salesman, who obtained it from Charles W. Seale of 180 Broadway. The salesman himself got into trouble over the deal, but proved to have been a victim of the scheme and was exonerated. Miss Bonner and Kislinger were acquitted on the ground that the indictment was faulty, since the alleged theft was from the original owner of the lavalliere and not from the salesman. For a time they were held for trial on other indictments, but the case eventually was dropped after much jewelry obtained on memorandum from dealers and importers had been recovered from pawnshops.

Before they fled to Paris, where much jewelry, including many valuable pearls, was found in Kislinger's possession, the pair had a small office in the Marbridge Building. The "Queen of Diamonds" was a woman of some personal charm and that, coupled with the fact that in the beginning of their operations the two made prompt returns for all gems they obtained on memorandum, enabled them to get so large a quantity of jewels from reputable merchants in Maiden Lane, who had no security but their word. The Bonner woman pretended that many society women were her customers, and it is believed for a time she made some bona fide sales.

NEW YORK SWEPT BY RAIN AND GALE

WIND PUTS LIGHTS OUT

Two Ships Blown Ashore Along Coast—Snow and Hail Follow Temperature Drop.

The rainfall yesterday, which was the heaviest of the Winter, washed thousands of tons of snow off the streets, producing millraces in the gutters of streets with sharp grades and flooding basements in many sections of the city.

An inch and a fifth of rain had fallen by 9 o'clock at night when the sudden drop in temperature began to turn the rain into sleet. The vast body of snow, which had been melted by the heavy and comparatively warm rain during the day, caused thousands of dollars of damage in the Bronx and Manhattan, when it was forced into basements and ground floors because gutters were blockaded and sewers covered by piles of ice.

The Water Department received hundreds of emergency calls, and hundreds of men were sent to points where the flooding was worst. University Heights and some other residence sections were in darkness when the storm and high wind, which attained a speed of fifty miles an hour between 8 o'clock and 9, played havoc with overhead lighting wires and street lights.

Plate Glass Windows Broken.

Shortly before midnight last night, the freak wind, which burst in terrific gusts at intervals on different sections of the city, began breaking plate glass windows.

The large window at the Ehrich Art Gallery, 707 Fifth Avenue, near Fifty-fifth Street, where a number of valuable paintings and vases were on exhibition, was one of the first to be shattered. Policeman Martin Mitchell of the East Fifty-third Street station notified the firm and carried out of the path of the sleet, which was blowing through, several paintings and Japanese vases.

A large window was broken in the store of W. & J. Sloane at 575 Fifth Avenue, near Forty-seventh Street. Policeman Maher helped to carry to a less exposed position a large Oriental rug of great value. Just before midnight the wind attained such great velocity at the Plaza as it swept across Central Park and through the Plaza, that automobiles going uptown on Fifth Avenue turned over to Madison to get protection behind the blocks of buildings.

Washout on Long Island.

Rain and melting snow combined to create short-lived torrents, which washed out trolley lines at various points on Long Island. The roadbed of the Long Island Railroad was attacked at many points by furious streams, which sprang suddenly out of snowbanks. There was a washout on the Montauk Division of the railroad between Merrick and Bellmore, and westbound trains were completely tied up.

The rain caused a fire which burned down a one-story warehouse in the Bronx. Pouring through the roof, the water fell on bags of slack-lime in the building of the Ames Transfer Company at 2,361 Kingsbridge Avenue and started a blaze, which destroyed the building before the Fire Department could arrive.

The rain and comparative warmth, which prevailed until 8 o'clock, contradicted the prediction of the Weather Bureau, which expected New York to suffer a blow from the tail of the blizzard from the Northwest. At 8 o'clock, however, an edge of the big storm reached this city, causing a drop of the temperature from 46 to 33 degrees in an hour. At the same time the wind changed from east to northwest and blew for a time at the rate of sixty miles an hour.

After 9 o'clock the rain changed to sleet. Heavy falls of hail were reported in several parts of the city. The sudden drop in temperature had coated the streets and sidewalks with a film of smooth ice, but the hail came and put a rough surface on it that made walking safer.

There was but one accident in the early

FRANK H. HITCHCOCK MADE CO-MANAGER OF WOOD CAMPAIGN

RAISES HOPES OF VICTORY

"Unbeatable Combination," Declares Col. Procter, Announcing Accession.

CANDIDATE GETS PLEDGES

Tells of Many Assurances on Tour —Answers Critics of the Uniform He Wears.

Frank H. Hitchcock of New York, former Postmaster General, who managed the campaign of William H. Taft for the Republican Presidential nomination in 1908 and who worked with the Republican Old Guard in the campaigns of 1912 and 1916, has gone over to the cause of Major Gen. Leonard Wood and will devote his entire time from now until the Republican National Convention to General Wood's campaign, it was announced last night by Colonel William Cooper Procter, Chairman of the Wood National Campaign Committee.

The decision to enlist Mr. Hitchcock was reached at a conference yesterday between General Wood, Colonel Procter, Congressman Norman J. Gould and Mr. Hitchcock at the Hotel St. Regis. The Wood forces were jubilant, for it was considered an important step in their efforts to line up certain elements of the Republican organization for General Wood which until now have either held aloof or have tacitly favored other candidates. Since the superseding of National Committeeman John T. King of Connecticut by Colonel Procter as National Manager of the Wood campaign, the Wood campaigners have had no one in their camp in close touch with the Republican organization. And Mr. Hitchcock is expected to supply the deficiency.

Hails "Unbeatable Combination."

After the conference yesterday Colonel Procter issued this statement:

"I am glad to announce that Frank H. Hitchcock, from now until the national convention, will devote his entire time to the conduct of the Wood campaign. I feel that with Mr. Hitchcock's entrance into the campaign we have an unbeatable combination."

It was said that Mr. Hitchcock would not supersede Colonel Procter, but would have equal authority with him in the conduct of the Wood campaign along certain lines. Colonel Procter will continue in charge of the Chicago headquarters, but Mr. Hitchcock will operate from New York and will spend much of his time traveling about the country, paying special attention to States where trouble with the organization already has appeared or where it is likely to develop.

After the conference at the Hotel St. Regis Colonel Procter left for Chicago and General Wood boarded a train for Manchester, N. H., where he is to make several speeches today. At the hotel he was met early in the day by Congressman Gould and former Congressman Thomas W. Miller, his Eastern Managers, who reported encouraging growth of the Wood boom in this section. The General said he was particularly gratified over the sincere assurances he had received from thousands of individuals who stood in line for long periods in order to shake hands with him.

Following his speeches in Manchester General Wood will return to Chicago. He will go to South Dakota on March 15 and deliver a series of addresses, closing with the joint debate with Senator Poindexter on March 20.

Wood Upholds the Uniform.

General Wood replied to letters from one of his supporters in the Middle West, in which attention was called to the fact that supporters of his opponents for the Republican nomination were emphasizing the fact that he wears the uniform of the United States Army.

"I have received your letter," replied General Wood, "and note what you have to say regarding my appearing in the uniform of the United States Army. It is, of course, true and I have no apologies to make. To apologize for wearing the uniform would be to insult the memory of every man who ever wore it, thousands of whom gave their lives for their country."

Congressman Gould declared that General Wood was gaining strength in New Jersey, mentioning the adhesion of former Governor E. C. Stokes, Chairman of the State Committee, and Thomas N. McCarter of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey.

William A. Orr, Eastern manager of Senator Poindexter's campaign, denied that the Senator had abandoned his Oregon headquarters. He said headquarters were being opened in Portland and that the Senator would have the solid delegations from Oregon and Washington.

There was a conference at the headquarters of Senator Hiram W. Johnson in the Hotel Pennsylvania between Manager Angus McSween, William M. Bennett and State Senator George F. Thompson as to the advisability of putting a full ticket for delegates-at-large in the field in this State. It was decided to have Mr. Bennett run alone against William Boyce Thompson, one of the Republican organization's "Big Four" candidates. Colonel Procter, Gen. G. Hinman Barrett, director of the Columbia Alumni "Butler for President" League, reported to the headquarters of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler in the Hotel Commodore that the organization of the Butler clubs among members of the Columbia Alumni was under way in ten States.

GOV. SMITH ASSAILS THE LEGISLATURE

RENEWS ATTACK ON HEARST

Accuses Editor of Sending Army Food, Meant for the Poor, to His Own Home.

Governor Smith spoke last night at the Biltmore before the Community Councils of Greater New York for the purpose, he said, of telling how the Legislature had "stifled" every bit of welfare legislation that he had submitted to it, including milk bills, traction bills, workmen's compensation measures and legislation to aid the feeble minded.

"The job is with you!" he exclaimed at the conclusion of his address. "I am doing all I can. I have given in the last few months as much life and ginger as any man in this country could do. The public must make known its wishes with regard to these things."

The Governor at the end of his address renewing his attack upon William R. Hearst, charged that Mr. Hearst took nearly $1,000 worth of army food "sent here to relieve distress and suffering among the poor" and sent it to his home, and, further, challenged Mr. Hearst to tell whether "he even paid for it."

Weighing every word, the Governor denounced the Hearst papers as "one of the greatest causes of unrest in this country," and then continued with the reference to the army food stores. After the meeting Governor Smith told a NEW YORK TIMES reporter that he had no details to add to what he had said in his speech.

At the office of The New York American last night it was said that no statement had been received from Mr. Hearst and it was not known whether he intended to make any reply to Governor Smith. Efforts to reach Mr. Hearst at his home were unavailing.

Plea for Milk Bill.

In the first part of his speech, in which he attempted to give an account of his stewardship and to explain the difficulties which had beset him in having welfare legislation enacted, Governor Smith spoke in detail on the history of the milk legislation, the traction legislation, the Council of Farms and Markets, workmen's compensation amendments and legislation to aid the feebleminded.

Asserting that personally he was certain that the bills giving the State the right to regulate the distribution of milk and to fix the price would be held constitutional, Governor Smith declared that no arguments against the legislation had been advanced. "There is no politics in it," he said. "It is a bill to do the public a great service. It is not a Democratic bill or a Republican bill or a Socialist bill or a Prohibition bill.

"Let me repeat what I said once before to this association. There is no power in this State that can put through this bill, except the people themselves. I cannot do it. I'll debate it with any man in the Legislature, publicly or privately, but I can't make them do it. The question is whether or not the influence of the people who are opposed to this legislation is greater than those who are for it."

The Council of Farms and Markets, the Governor said, was "apparently out of control of everybody." "The Governor of the State means nothing to them," he said. "I can't even get a reply to my letters, except to learn that they will receive consideration. The Department of Agriculture is run by a floorwalker from an Elmira department store. I know about that department. The Battle report showed not only incompetency, but also what closely approaches open scandal. Nothing can be accomplished by the department. It owes no allegiance except to a political machine. It is irresponsible to all public officers.

"I'll tell you what they want to do. They are so filled up with the notion that they can't lose next Fall that they are going to wait until just before adjournment and then let the whole thing go.

"There are all these bills. And there they will slumber, unless the people of this State make it manifest to the Legislature that they want action. I'm going up the State next week to tell the people that these things are to die, and to ask them to insist upon a full discussion first. The soap box orators are spreading unrest, but what can cause more unrest than to know that the legislative body is stifling a mass of bills without ever bringing them to light."

The Governor's first mention of Mr. Hearst referred to him as "an ally" of the Manufacturers' Association, "an association which," the Governor said, "is throttling free speech in the legislative halls at Albany."

"His morning and evening newspapers," said Governor Smith, "carried

EXPECT WILSON TO ISSUE LETTER ON TREATY STAND

He May Also Disclose His Attitude on a Third Term, Washington Understands.

McADOO FRIENDS ANXIOUS

President Will Declare Unshaken Opposition to Change in Article X., It Is Asserted.

HITCHCOCK URGES A PARLEY

Asks Wilson to Receive Simmons in Senator's Behalf — Trade Reservation Adopted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The understanding prevails in Administration circles that President Wilson has prepared a letter explaining his stand upon the latest aspects of the Peace Treaty situation in the Senate, particularly with reference to Article X. of the League of Nations covenant.

This understanding has not been confirmed from any authoritative source near the President, but that the communication is in preparation or has been completed is asserted in good faith in certain well-informed quarters.

The most interesting phase of the prevailing understanding is that the President may reveal whether he intends to put himself in a position where he may be regarded as not averse to having himself considered for a third Presidential term. Recent events have indicated that some of those connected with the Administration or close to it were of the belief that President Wilson would soon make clear to the country that he would not be a candidate, receptive or otherwise, for another nomination.

Information in regard to the President's reported intention should be taken with all reserve, but it comes with sufficient directness to justify giving it a degree of credence. The communication that he is said to be preparing or to have prepared has no connection with the developments today in the Senate, where arrangements were made for Senator Simmons to visit the White House and seek to ascertain the President's attitude toward qualifying Article X. and generally toward the course that the Senate Democrats should pursue in the event that the peace treaty is finally rejected. His letter was said to have been projected before the Senate move was determined upon.

Presidential Race Involved.

Attorney General Palmer's course in becoming an avowed candidate for the Democratic nomination for President through entering the Georgia Presidential primaries caused a good deal of a sensation in Democratic circles. It is realized there that Mr. Palmer, as a close friend of the President and a member of his official family, would hardly have become an outright candidate for the nomination unless he were sure that the President would not be offended by that course.

With Mr. Palmer in the race, William G. McAdoo, the President's son-in-law, is placed in an anomalous position with regard to his ambition to become the candidate of his party for President. A declaration of candidacy for the nomination on his part would be construed as notice that the President would not seek a third term, and Mr. McAdoo's failure to acknowledge publicly what his friends are indicating by quiet and effective work, that he is getting ready to be a candidate when or if the opportunity offers, is attributed by some politicians to the failure of the President to make known his own disposition on the question of a third term.

McAdoo Supporters Expectant.

The expectation has existed in Washington ever since Mr. Palmer declared his candidacy that Mr. McAdoo would soon follow suit. Up to this time he has confined his public utterances on the subject to advising the Democrats of the country to send uninstructed delegates to the San Francisco convention. Some of those who have heard that President Wilson is to issue a statement that may disclose his attitude on the third term principle are firm supporters of Mr. MAdoo, and they await the expected communication with the keenest anxiety.

Whether or not the communication reported to be forthcoming from the President will be sent direct to the Senate, or its contents made known through Administration Senators, could not be learned. But from a well-informed Administration source it was ascertained that the President's intention now is to prepare such a letter. It was said that the President will declare himself unalterably opposed to any change in Article X.

Up to this time Mr. Wilson, it was said by the same authority, "has not told one single soul" the name of the man whom he would like to see named as the Democratic candidate for President. He has not even discussed the matter with his closest advisers, it was confidently declared.

Uncertain on Wilson Strength.

This necessarily makes the McAdoo supporters very nervous. They are not at all certain that President Wilson may not take the position that he is the man best qualified to take the cause of the treaty to the country, especially if the Republicans defeat it.

They are also uncertain as to the President's strength with the Democratic voters at large. This Presidential influence was regarded as extremely weighty a year ago, and while a certain wing of Administration Democrats consider that it has waned within the last six months, they still fear it.

Some of this group say that Attorney General Palmer has "put himself out on a limb" by announcing his candidacy before President Wilson disclosed whom he favored for the nomination. All in all, this group considers that authorized Presidential backing will certainly be a most advantageous asset for a candidate, even if it is not absolutely necessary.

Daniel C. Roper, who expects to resign as Collector of Internal Revenue April 1 and who, his best friends say, "will go out of politics," went to New York this afternoon. The rumor still persists that if Mr. McAdoo makes an announcement of candidacy Mr. Roper will change his mind about politics and will manage the campaign of the former Secretary of the Treasury.

DEMOCRATS TO APPEAL TO WILSON ON TREATY

Simmons Picked as Senators' Envoy—Knox Offers Reservation for Curb on Credits.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Democratic Senators who desire by ratifying the Peace Treaty to keep it out of the campaign have made a final appeal to President Wilson in an effort to gain his assent to a compromise on the reservation covering Article X.

They have in effect placed upon Mr. Wilson the decision and the choice whether they shall stand unswervingly against the Lodge reservation, even though modified slightly, or vote for a modification of it which in their judgment somewhat softens its blunt refusal to assume any obligation to go to the aid of any nation attacked from without.

It became known today that Senator Hitchcock wrote to the President requesting an appointment for Senator Simmons to discuss the treaty situation and lay before the President in detail the views of some Democratic Senators.

No reply was received today to this request. At the White House it was indicated that it had not been laid before the President, but would be soon.

If Senator Simmons is able to see the President it is understood that he will lay before him one or more proposals for modification of the Lodge reservation on Article X., and will ask Mr. Wilson whether he can accept any of them. He is prepared also to ask guidance for the Democrats if the President should decline to accept any of the proposed modifications.

Mr. Simmons would not discuss his mission today, further than say that he hoped to have the opportunity of discussing the treaty with the President. But it was stated by other Senators who have kept in the closest touch with the negotiations which resulted in the appeal to the President, that Senator Simmons will go to the White House, if he is received, and tell the President that many Democrats want the technical restoration of peace without delay, through treaty ratification or other means, and will urge the President to suggest some other means, if he will not accept the compromise ratification plan.

Group Wants to See Wilson.

Mr. Simmons is also to go as the forerunner of a group of Democrats for whom an appointment is to be sought. It is felt by some Senators that if a group of them can see the President and told him plainly how hopeless the situation is at present and how dangerously they believe its continuance would affect them in the campaign, he might come to their aid.

If he will not accept modification of the Lodge reservation then he will be asked to permit his party followers in the Senate to vote for a resolution declaring that the war between the United States and Germany is at an end, or some measure which will accomplish that purpose.

Senators made it plain that there is no thought in their minds of revolt against the President's leadership. They said that his decision doubtless would be loyally accepted and carried out by nearly all the Democratic Senators. But they added that the President must be brought to understand, if possible, how necessary it is to many men in his party who are running for office that the treaty be removed as an issue. They expressed some hope that the President would see the situation as they view it.

Some of the "practical politicians" in the Democratic ranks said, however, that the effort to have the President modify his attitude a trifle on the Article X. reservation was political and was not intended to bring about ratification of the treaty. It was intended, these Senators said, to force the responsibility for the treaty's failure upon Senator Lodge and his supporters.

This would be accomplished, it was pointed out, if the President should assent even tacitly to the support of a proposed modification by Democrats, and if that modification should obtain the support of enough Democrats and mild reservationist Republicans to cause its adoption. The Lodge group would be practically certain to vote with the irreconcilables against any such reservation, Democrats thought, and that combination, on the question of ratification, would muster more than the thirty-three votes required to prevent ratification.

It was not made clear just what the proposal is which Mr. Simmons has been empowered to lay before Mr. Wilson. In some quarters it was indicated that he might offer several compromises, including the Taft reservation, the one worked out in the bi-partisan conference and a new one, drafted by Senator Kellogg and other mild reservationists, and presented to Senator Simmons by Senator Watson, on behalf of Senator Lodge and the Republicans. This Kellogg proposal is the one which would insert into the Lodge reservation the provision that military and naval forces, the economic boycott, diplomatic pressure, &c., would not be used by the United States in preserving the territorial integrity or political independence of any other nation.

Those Democrats who have steadfastly stood by the President's view were not sanguine tonight that a compromise leading to ratification would result from the negotiations. They advised their colleagues not to be too optimistic. They expect the President to say that he must decline to do any bargaining concerning the modification of a contract he has made with foreign powers.

Trade Reservation Adopted.

While the interest of Senators centred today in the appeal to the President, the Senate adopted one more reservation, without amendment. It was that referring to the Reparations Commission's interference with American trade with Germany, and reads:

"The United States understands that the Reparations Commission will regulate or interfere with exports from the United States to Germany, or from Germany to the UnUited States, only when the United States by act or joint resolution of Congress approves such regulation or interference."

This was the original Lodge reservation and was adopted, 41 to 22, with six Democrats voting for it. A substitute proposed by Senator Hitchcock was rejected, 23 to 37. It provided that "the United States understands that the Reparations Commission will, in its control over German economic resources, in no respect so exert its powers as to discriminate against the commerce of the United States with Germany."

There was more debate today concerning the wasting of time by the Senate. Senator Townsend of Michigan urged that Article X. be brought up for consideration at once. Senator Hitchcock replied that he was ready, and it seemed for a time as if a motion to proceed to consider this question would be made.

Senator Knox introduced a new reservation, upon which he intends to speak. It provides that "the credit of the United States shall not be pledged by or through any action of any representative of the United States or by any of the organs of government of the League of Nations without the prior affirmative authority of Congress."

The Senate will discuss tomorrow the reservation covering appropriations for the United States' share of the expenses of the League of Nations.

The vote for the proposal was 100 against 20 in opposition.

hours of the storm. An automobile skidded and turned turtle at 156th Street and Westchester Avenue. Its three occupants were able to get home after being attended by an ambulance surgeon.

Health Commissioner Copeland called the attention of Commissioner MacStay yesterday to the amount of garbage accumulated in cans and thrown into the streets. He said that, while this condition was bad, it would not threaten health unless the temperature rose to 50 degrees and stayed there a week or so.

The Board of Estimate yesterday gave $2,000,000 for snow removal. This makes $3,100,000 the snow has cost the city this Winter.

Storm Passing Off to Sea.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The storm of almost blizzard proportions which swept over the country from the northwest had apparently plunged out into the Atlantic tonight, leaving a trail of stranded shipping in its wake.

Reports to the Weather Bureau showed that a forty-eight-mile wind, accompanied in many sections by snow and sleet, marked the passage of the disturbance to the sea over the whole eastern half of the United States. At sea its coming had been foretold by storm warnings, but reports of steamers driven ashore came quickly from the Virginia coast on the heels of the warning.

Two Ships Blown Ashore; One Refloated

NORFOLK, Va., March 5.—The American freight steamship Orient, 3,058 tons net, was driven on Willoughby Beach, Chesapeak Bay, today and is resting broadside in a precarious position, owing to the storm, which was steadily increasing in intensity.

The American steamer Marsodak, which went aground off Cape Henlopen, Delaware, early today, was floated tonight and proceeded to the Delaware Breakwater. It is believed the vessel was not seriously damaged.

Floods in Eastern Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5. — The Western storm struck Eastern Pennsylvania today, bringing with it rain, sleet, snow and a high wind, causing floods in rivers and many other small streams. The Schuylkill River, which drains the Schuylkill Valley from the lower anthracite coal regions to Philadelphia, was swollen its entire distance and much of the lowland was under water tonight.

Virtually all the mills in the northwestern corner of Philadelphia had their basements or lower floors flooded. Whistles tonight summoned owners and workers to Themilus to help remove goods and prepare for higher water.

Parts of the driveways in Fairmount Park were also flooded and street car service to sections of Manayunk along the Schuylkill was cut off. The river tonight was 21 feet above normal in the Manayunk section. Twenty-five families were forced to abandon their homes.

The breaking of two ice gorges in the Schuylkill River, above Reading, one at Hamburg and the other at Port Clinton, tonight caused all industries using public electric power, including The Reading News-Times, to prepare to close at once.

At Lancaster, bridges and houses have been swept away, the Lincoln Highway at many points is under water and trolley service between this city and surrounding towns has practically been suspended.

At Martic Forge the tracks of the Conestoga Traction Company have been swept away and two houses are gone.

At Williamsport the ice jam above Picture Rocks broke this afternoon and the water which flooded the town subsided. All the electric light and telephone poles are down and the town is without lights or telephones tonight.

ANGLO-FRENCH LOAN HERE WILL BE PAID

Announcement Made in London That $500,000,000 in Bonds Won't Be Extended.

NEWS IS WELCOMED HERE

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 5.—Official announcement was made by Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, that the British and French Governments have decided not to renew the Anglo-French loan of $500,000,000, issued in America in 1915, and were taking necessary steps to provide for its repayment.

This news, coupled with the continued rise in New York exchange, is regarded here as a sign that the darkest days are past in regard to British trade with the United States.

An economist, writing in the Daily Chronicle, says:

The income for the present financial year, which ends March 31, is likely to be £100,000,000 more than Mr. Chamberlain's revised estimate, while it looks as if expenditure would be at least £100,000,000 less than was expected.

Welcome Payment of Loan.

Among bankers who negotiated the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan in the Fall of 1915 with the Anglo-French Commission which came to America to establish a credit for the purchase of furtner war supplies in our markets, the report that there had been a formal announcement that the loan would be retired was not entirely a surprise. The general expression was one of satisfaction that the Chancellor of the British Exchequer had made the formal statement, and it was forecast that it would have a decidedly stiffening effect in the rates quoted in our markets for sterling and francs.

In addition, the announcement that the bonds would be paid off at maturity was received favorably, with one man who aided in the flotation of the loan expressing his admiration for the courage of the British and French authorities in making it. In discussing the effect that the shipment of gold to America from England and France to pay off the bonds would have in the long run on quotations for sterling and francs here, this banker, who requested that his name be withheld, asserted that the sentimental effect would be decidedly favorable. In addition, the retiring of the loan would serve automatically to increase British and French credit.

That some favorable announcement regarding the maturity of the Anglo-French bonds would be made, he said, had been discounted to some extent by the foreign exchange market in New York, and, while he was of the opinion that there would be further improvement, he would not hazard a guess as to just how much the market would be strengthened.

The bonds are payable at maturity in gold in New York. At the present rate of exchange, which is $3.68½ for sterling, it would take £135,593,400 to pay off the loan. With sterling at $4.75, the price at which it was pegged by the British Government during the war, the cost of paying off the loan would be £103,263,-100. So an appreciation of sterling in this market in spite of the fact that the payment of the Anglo-French loan calls for gold would be a good thing.

Rumors that heavy gold shipments are expected to arrive from Europe in future weeks continued to circulate in the financial district yesterday but no verification was forthcoming in banking circles. If it is the plan to ship the entire $500,000,000 in gold to pay off the notes, it was assumed yesterday that the movement would be spread over a period of months, not alone because of the rial attached to one, two, or three shipments of the total, but because of the sentimental effect the reporting of such shipments would have on the foreign exchange market if they were extended over a considerable number of weeks.

Formal announcement of the agreement for a loan of $500,000,000 to Great Britain and France was made simultaneously in New York and Chicago by representatives of the Anglo-French Commission as the end of September, 1915. The bonds mature Oct. 15 next, and, while there are more than six full months between now and then, it has been asserted in banking circles that neither France nor Great Britain would put off preparations for the retirement of the issue until the last moment.

Sterling Continues to Gain.

Sterling exchange continued to advance strongly yesterday, gaining 9¾ cents, net, on the day and at the high price of $3.68¾, showing a gain of nearly 23 cents in two days and one of 32 cents since the end of last week. Francs and other allied exchanges also rose sharply again. The advances in these rates were on more orderly dealings than on Thursday, however, and dealers said that there was less of the stampede than on the previous day. Nevertheless, the demand for foreign bills was brisk.

Nothing new developed concerning the reports of pending gold shipments from England and France until late last evening, when Mr. Chamberlain's announcement was received. In banking circles it was still believed that some of the metal would be brought over here, but there was a disposition to discredit the maximum guesses of $250,000,000. Rather, it was thought, something between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 would be shipped here. This much—while it will not serve to relieve the Federal Reserve system of the necessity for maintaining strict supervision over credit expansion, nor liquidate the Anglo-French loan, which is of $500,000,000—is expected to have a decidedly beneficial effect on financial sentiment, and probably will suffice to give the foreign exchange market a degree of stability which has been sadly lacking for many months past.

The receipt of $3,000,000 gold from Canada was announced, and it was said that an additional $3,000,000 would come in today. This operation, those who were handling it on this end insisted, had nothing whatever to do with shipments of London and Paris.

On the contrary, it was declared that the shipment of $6,000,000 gold from Canada should be regarded as strictly a Canadian affair, and the fact that it was sent down at this time was merely a coincidence.

The flow of gold out of the United States continues uninterruptedly. In addition to the $16,000,000 engaged earlier in the week for shipment to South America, it was reported that $3,000,000 had been taken yesterday, and that all of this sum would be forwarded either today or early in the coming week. There were reports around in the afternoon that this South American consignment had been canceled, but bankers interested in the operation denied this.

A shipment of $5,000,000 was received here at the Government offices from the United States Mint, at Philadelphia, mainly to replenish the supplies of gold held locally and which had been drawn against heavily by the recent shipments to South America.

$300,000 LOOT HUNT LEADS TO 297 TIRES

Jobbers Are Arrested After Package of Fabric Vanishes from a Truck.

Captain McQueeny, of the Tenderloin Detective Squad, and Captain Wines, of the Bronx Detective Bureau, aided by a score of detectives, yesterday searched the Bronx for merchandise believed to have been stored in warehouses by criminals declared to having stolen $300,000 worth of goods from trucks and lofts in the Chelsea section of the lower west side in the last few months. One group, under Lieutenant Detective McGrath, of the Morrisania Station, seized 297 new automobile tires in a garage at 895 Jackson Avenue, owned by Anthony Laura, a roofer.

While these detectives were busy in the Bronx detectives from the West Thirtieth Street station arrested Louis Marshall of 321 East Sixty-ninth Street, Herman Samuels of 1,121 West Farms Road, the Bronx, and Harry Goldberg of 14 West 114th Street in connection with the theft of a package of silk from a truck on last Wednesday. Marshall, Samuels and Goldberg, according to the police, are jobbers at 159 West Thirty-third Street. The package of silk was the property of Harry Lichter of 328 Fifty-ninth Street, Brooklyn. Later, the detectives said, they found about $5,000 worth of silks and fur hats in their establishment which the prisoners could not account for satisfactorily.

Laura, the Bronx garage owner, declared he bought the tires from Abraham Kompel, part owner of the Bronx Terminal Warehouse, at 214 East 133th Street, the Bronx. Kompel and Nathan Zimmerman, his partner, were arrested last Thursday afternoon, when detectives found $5,000 worth of cotton goods in the warehouse, which, the police allege, were not properly accounted for.

Laura also told the detectives that he purchased 325 tires from Kompel for about $9 each, and gave two certified checks in payment. He displayed a bill of sale from Kompel. The detectives said they are convinced Laura considered the purchases legitimate, and no auspicion attached to his connection with the matter.

All the tires were removed in patrol wagons to the Morrisania Station in the Bronx, where an inventory will be made to find whether the numbers correspond with those of tires recently reported stolen.

Captains McQueeny and Wines said they expected to make further arrests of business men in the Bronx.

SOVIETS ARE CONCILIATORY.

Tchitcherin Says They Do Not Contemplate World Revolution.

MOSCOW, March 1 (via Berlin to London, March 5.)—That the Soviet Government does not consider a world revolution necessary for the continued existenes of the Soviet State in Russia was declared today by M. Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist Foreign Minister.

"There is no reason why we should not resume trade relations and offer concessions to capitalistic nations without sacrificing our communist principles," said M. Tchitcherin. "The problem offers complications, but they can besolved. The Soviet Government does not contemplate a world-wide propaganda in demonstration of the sound economic and industrial development in the Soviet State."

she prayed for five nights in a cellar with ten other persons. The Turks called upon them to surrender, promising them protection. They agreed. The Turks told the men to come out of the house. The woman said her husband went first and was shot by their own Turkish neighbor, whom she knew well.

"Jan. 28—A pitiful case arriving today was that of Mrs. Selattian, wife of the pastor of the Third Church. She was bleeding from bullet and knife wounds. She says her child of 18 months was slain.

"Jan. 31—Nine persons were shot today on the college grounds, some of them seriously. Fortunately we have plenty of wheat now, and by keeping the women grinding from sunrise to sunset we can feed the people. Mrs. Selattian died today.

"Feb. 2—A shell fell today through the roof of a hospital and into the attic just above the floor where many patients were quartered. The Turks tried to set fire to the Bartell Orphanage. The French retaliated by burning the house of the instigator of the plan to burn the orphanage. There is no news of reinforcements. I fear other cities and towns are besieged and help may not reach us.

"Feb. 5—Turkish officials held prisoners by the French asked us for an interview today. They sought our aid to obtain their release, promising to try to persuade the Turks to make peace terms, but the General would not release them. The French decided to kill the horses and mules, as there is no forage for them. We had a mule roast today and liked it. It is better than horse meat.

"Feb. 6—This is the eighteenth day of the Siege of Marash. We had a joyful surprise. An airplane flew over the city, dropping several messages, which a high wind carried into the Turkish part of the city. But we knew help was near; we were not forgotten. More victims today for the operating table; more graves in the cemetery.

"Feb. 7—At last reinforcements are in sight. Already they are fighting their way into the city. Guns in the planes are shelling the hills, over which scouts expect to reach the barracks. We hear today that eighty girls, inmates of a rescue home, have been killed by the Turks, who afterward fired the building, and we had to stand by without being able to lift a hand.

"Feb. 8—French troops are in the valley, their guns shelling the hills. But it may be days before they can encircle the city. Wounded continue to come in, and there are many deaths daily. We spent the afternoon watching the battle in the plain from the upper college windows. We saw French relieving troops finally effect a connection with French forces in the barracks.

"Feb. 10.—General Querette has been granted a twenty-four-hour delay before leaving the city. Armenians in the compounds are frantic. They are determined to leave the city with the French, as they fear massacre. Our greatest fear is for Miss Buckley (Miss Frances S. Buckley of Cape Vincent, N. Y.). She was in the Beshalom Orphanage, and has not been heard from since the beginning of the siege.

"We are fitting out the refugees for a journey, giving them food and clothing to the extent permitted by our limited supplies.

"I had decided to stay, but as 2,000 or 3,000 persons are going as sheep without a shepherd, Dr. Wilson thinks I had better go with them to take charge and endeavor to find food and shelter at their destination. It is a hard trek of nearly seventy-five miles over mountain and plain. I fear many will not be equal to it. Troops and refugees left the city between 6 and 9 tonight. The General and his staff left at 10:30. It was bitterly cold, the city was in flames and the guns were booming over the hills covering our retreat.

"Feb. 11—As the column moved away from the city it was a blaze of splendor, the great barracks evacuated by the French being on fire and silhouetted against the sky.

"Feb. 12—The weather is severely cold. Many of the weak ones have [illegible] by the wayside, to freeze or [illegible]. The column reached Bell Pounar at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The village offered meagre accommodation and the refugees camped in the open, suffering severely.

"Feb. 13—During the night a snowstorm raged. The column moved forward before daylight. Increasing to a blizzard, the storm continued through een hours soldiers and civilians made their way through snowdrifts, the weak and infirm dropping out from sheer exhaustion.

"Feb. 14—We did our best for the refugees, but many of them died upon reaching the destination, where there was no accommodation and little food. I left with the French wounded this evening on a train for Adana, and conferred with Dr. Dodd of the American Committee for Relief in the Near East and Dr. Chambers of the American mission. Milk and blankets were dispatched immediately to Islahie, and all the American forces put themselves at the services of the stranded Armenians."

Mr. Crathern believes that more than 1,000 refugees perished in the snow on the march of the column from Marash to Islahie. He says the Armenians estimate that half their Armenian population of Marash, or 20,000 persons, perished altogether from the outbreak.

5,000 KILLED AT MARASH.

Paris Official Report Says French Could Not Protect Armenians.

PARIS, March 5.—The number of Armenians who were victims in the massacre in the Marash region of Asiatic Turkey last month does not exceed 5,000, according to information received by French officials. Reports from London, via Constantinople, yesterday stated that the number would be 15,000 to 20,000.

French officials say it was impossible to prevent the massacre, as the army of occupation was not large enough to furnish guards at every point where the Turks were likely to engage in an uprising.

German Socialists Determined to Retire if Others Allow the Hohenzollern Claims.

CRISIS DELAYED A LITTLE

Reference of Bills to National Body Is Considered — Question Now Being Fought Out in the Press.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 5.—The bills concerning Hohenzollern compensations have been referred to a committee of twenty-four which will report to the Prussian convention on the advisability of transferring the settlement to the national German convention, the latter having the right under Article 153 to create a separate law for expropriation for the State's benefit. Though this manoeuvre has prevented an immediate Government crisis it has only delayed it, for the Socialists are determined to retire if the other parties insist upon endowing the Hohenzollerns with the means to destroy the republic. In other words, if the Democratic and Centrist Parties refuse to consider the question not only from the sanctity of property standpoint but also from the political and moral aspect.

Vorwärts today explains that the Socialist Party does not dispute the Hohenzollern's right to property honestly acquired, but certainly refuses to confirm them in the possession of much ill-gotten wealth, some of which, like that of the house at Hanover, was brutally stolen from other unfortunate Princes and from the Church and public institutions. To the Socialist speaker's remark that the Hohenzollerns should get what they brought into Brandenburg 500 years ago the Tagliche Rundschau replies that the reigning Kaiser in 1415 awarded Brandenburg to Markgraf Frederick, the first Hohenzollern, as a pledge for money advanced to the imperial treasury, redeemable for 400,000 golden guilders, which in present currency would mean several hundred millions of marks.

Other reactionary papers appeal to the people, praising the Hohenzollerns' noble mind, who generously renounced any claims to the yearly revenue of 20,000,000 marks which the State had paid the King of Prussia until November, 1918.

The Deutsche Tageszeitung warns the German people that all other countries would distrust a nation that did not respect the Kaiser's private property, especially Americans.

But all or most is only juggling to distract attraction from the main issue, which is to provide the Hohenzollerns with funds to fight the republic. The paralyzing of Erzberger's influence in the Centrist Party became evident in yesterday's debate when a Centrist speaker declared himself unreservedly for making the Kaiser a multimillionaire at the expense of the starving people and a Democratic orator followed this example.

Vorwärts characterizes their attitude as influenced by cowardice. They fear the possibility of the reaction returning to power. Still it is hoped that the majority of these two parties will take different views and will be convinced that it means no violation of the sanctity of private property if the Hohenzollerns are dislodged from property which was acquired by brute force or worse means. Vorwärts says:

"We have repeatedly recounted how the Hohenzollern fortune was accumulated and what unspeakable an injustice it would be to place this fortune at the disposal of the man who caused untold misery for his country. When millions of Germans have nothing to eat, nothing to wear and no roof over their heads, when everybody ought to work day and night and help the ruined fatherland, it would be a crime to give him an income of millions. If such an injustice is committed the German nation would be justified in withdrawing confidence from all who voted for the arrangement. The Socialist Party does not mean to deprive the Hohenzollerns of anything justly belonging to them, but this question must be treated in a sense satisfying the overwhelming majority of the German people."

NEW MEN EXPECTED IN GERMAN CABINET

Erzberger's Retirement Opens the Way for a Reshaping of the Government.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 4.—Signs and portents of the political world point ever more clearly to a fairly considerable reshuffling of the portfolios in the German Cabinet. Erzberger's retirement from the Ministry of Finance is certain no matter what the result of the great Erzberger-Helfferich libel case may be. (It is almost certain to be against Erzberger.)

The disappearance of this powerful and energetic personality will weaken the Cabinet considerably, and no two personages agree on the matter of his successor. In some quarters it is strongly advocated he should be succeeded by a non-political financial expert, seeing that the questions with which the country is faced demand that a man of high financial ability should be at the exchequer. It is felt, too, that the present Cabinet is much too political in complexion and seems not to have sufficient expert ability at its command.

Failing this, several names are being canvassed, among them being Herr Adenauer and Dr. Wirth, Minister of Finance in Baden. Of the two, the latter is more likely to come to Berlin. Wirth, without being a great financial expert, is an excellent speaker and a parliamentarian of great tactical skill.

As the question of transport is becoming a burning one, it is declared necessary to have a change in the Ministry of Communications, and it is probable Dr. Bell will retire. Also, the Food Ministry is not giving satisfaction, and it is thought there will be a change here.

It is reported that Müller, the Foreign Minister, is unlikely to remain long in his present position. His appointment was a compromise, and now that diplomatic relations are being resumed with the former enemy countries, it is believed a more prominent personality is desirable at the Foreign Office. It is understood that Müller himself is not adverse to going.

Some of the papers are making rather cruel fun regarding a statement published as to a certain arrangement with Uruguay. That country is referred to in the statement, which is signed by Müller, as "Oriental Free State of Uruguay."

The official name of Uruguay is "Republica Oriental del Uruguay," Eastern Republic of Uruguay. The region was called the "Banda Oriental" (Eastern Strip) by the Spaniards.

HOLLAND REPEATS REFUSAL ON KAISER

Note to Allies Says She Will Take Necessary Precautions "on the Spot" to Guard Him.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, March 5.—The Netherlands Government's reply to Lloyd George's note of Feb. 14, which was handed to Lloyd George this morning, will be published in the Dutch press this evening and refuses to revise the decision on the demands for the extradition or the deportation of the ex-Kaiser to the colonies.

While the note maintains a firm standpoint on the refusal to comply to the allied demands and repeats the old arguments about Holland's not being a party to the peace treaty, her traditional rights of asylums, &c., the note states clearly that the Government is conscious of the duties which the presence of the ex-Emperor on Dutch territory lays upon the country, both with regard to the interests of Holland and to international security. But at the same time the Government appears to consider it has observed these obligations and duties from the beginning and is able to take all the precautionary measures necessary to subordinate the liberty of the ex-Emperor and ex-Empress, and hopes that this declaration will dispel all apprehensions.

It is hoped in Government circles here that this is the last note on the ex-Kaiser question, except for the details of the settlement of the guarding of the ex-Emperor, which comes under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of the Interior. Although the word "internment" is used, the reply on the ex-Kaiser means, it is said here, that the ex-Emperor will be to all intents and purposes interned at his new residence at Doorn, where improvements and alterations have been proceeding during the negotiations.

It is said that the great difficulty which arose when the Dutch Government was requested to remove the ex-Kaiser further from the frontier was that previous to buying the house at Doorn the ex-Kaiser had asked for permission of the Dutch Queen to live there, making this a dynasty question.

THE HAGUE, March 5.—The Dutch Government today for the second time refused to deliver the former German Emperor to the Allies for trial.

In a note addressed to David Lloyd George, the British Premier, however, the Government promised to take all necessary measures to minimize the liberty of Wilhelm and prevent him from endangering the world's peace.

The second communication from the Dutch Government, which was delivered in London this morning, states that these precautions will be taken "on the spot." While Doorn is not mentioned in the text of the note, it is understood that in conversations with the allied diplomats here the Dutch authorities have assured them that close guarding and censorship will be instituted when Wilhelm occupies his estate at that place.

The Dutch Government, while appreciating the motives actuating the Allies, declares its inability to change its previous decisions. It says it is not forgetful of the inhuman acts committed during the war, but since Holland is not a party to the Versailles treaty the Queen's Government finds itself in a different position from other powers with regard to these acts.

"Since the Government's supreme duty is to respect the constitutional laws of the kingdom," the note continues, "it can only emphasize that it would be committing an act contrary to law and justice and incompatible with the national honor if it consented to violate these laws by abolishing the rights accorded to a fugitive finding himself on Dutch territory."

Protesting that this attitude does not put Holland outside the community of nations, the note declares, Holland is fully conscious of the duties the presence of the former Emperor lays on the Netherlands Government with regard to the country's own interests as well as international security.

The note protests that, contrary to the impression derived from the allied note, the Dutch Government from the beginning has observed the obligations entailed by these duties. The Government, the note says, will continue to do so, being able in the exercise of Dutch sovereignty to take on the spot all precautionary measures deemed requisite to subject the freedom of the former Emperor to necessary limitations.

REPARATION FIRST IS FRENCH DEMAND

Paris Government Sets Up Reservation on Allies' Economic Plan.

TEMPS SAYS ALLIES AGREE

Reports That Millerand's Amendments to Council's Manifesto Have Been Accepted.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 5.—It is stated in French official circles this afternoon that Lloyd George and Nitti have consented to the changes in the London economic manifesto which were proposed by Millerand. According to the Temps tonight, these changes have been made. The Temps adds: "The manifesto will soon be in condition to be published if the allied Governments persist in believing that its publication will do any good."

The objections of the French, as I cabled yesterday, were two. First, they objected to Germany's being allowed to contract any debt which would have priority over reparation claims and be administered by a committee outside the Reparation Commission.

Second, they objected to the proposed advice to the States bordering on Russia to make peace with the Soviet Government.

Inasmuch as the document is not yet known textually, it cannot be said what terminology was used to protect what the French Government regarded as the essential interests of France, but French officials are very certain that such changes have been made.

The French contend that they were not unduly selfish in taking their firm stand against giving up any hold on German resources. They say that the other allies have all along recognized the justice of the claims of France to payment for the devastation in her northern regions, and that nothing should be done to put those claims in jeopardy—for that is the way they view the proposals of Lloyd George and Nitti. They contend that the Reparation Commission, which is headed by a Frenchman, should in any case have complete control of German resources until such time as the reparation payments are well under way.

While recognizing that Germany must reconstruct herself if she is to pay her big debt to France, France demands guarantees that the aid of the Allies will not strengthen Germany, a country of much greater population, to a point where she would defy French claims. Furthermore, France, despite the fact that was is over, cannot lose the idea that Germany is her eternal foe, and any project to relieve Germany at a time when France is convalescent makes all Frenchmen wish to go very slowly.

Illustrating this point of view, the Eclair, the newspaper of ex-Premier Briand, ends its editorial on the manifesto by saying:

"Now Lloyd George and Nitti are trying to find a financial arrangement for the relief of Germany, who will doubtless try again to despoil France when she gets strong enough."

The Matin today finds fault with the quick forgetfulness of the Allies. It says:

"This principle was established: The country which had suffered most and which had done most to win the war ought not to be punished by its allies. Wilson spoke of 'eternal remembrance,' and Lloyd George also spoke of 'eternal remembrance.' There was a unanimous chorus of 'eternal remembrance.'

"Our old philosophers of world politics shook their heads then. Experience and history taught them that the word 'eternal,' employed in this sense, signified generally ten months, sometimes perhaps fifteen—never twenty. They asked in vain then for established guarantees for the future, that we should profit from these eternal remembrances, so fugitive in nature. But, alas! that was not done."

Manifesto Not Signed by France.

PARIS, March 5 (Associated Press).—France has neither signed nor approved the declaration regarding the economic situation of Europe which the Allied Supreme Council has proposed to make, according to statements made here today.

The original text of the Allied declaration, it is stated, begins by setting forth that the small nations bordering on Russia must be obliged to make peace with the Russian Soviet Government in order that the economic revival may begin.

It follows with the statement that Germany must be provided with the means of resuming industrial activity, and that, since the prosperity of Europe depends upon the prosperity of all countries, it is proposed that a loan be made to Germany guaranteed by German assets in priority to reparation payments, the loan payments to be controlled by neutral commission.

It is stated that instructions are being sent to Ambassador Cambon in London that he sign the declaration with the following reservations:

First—France will not join in any pressure upon the small countries along the Russian border to oblige them to make peace with the Soviet.

Second—France will not consent to giving any priority over reparations on any assets of Germany pledged for that purpose.

Third—France will not consent to the control of German payments on any loan Germany may make by any other organization than the Reparations Commission.

The next meeting of the Supreme Council will be held in Paris on a date that has not yet been fixed. It is possible that it will be the same as that set for the meeting of the Council of the League of Nations March 12.

As has been forecast, the meeting of the Council to follow this will probably be held in San Remo, although there is a possibility that the session will take place in Rome.

Signor Nitti, the Italian Premier, this afternoon visited Premier Millerand, and in the course of a cordial conversation reassured M. Millerand with regard to the interpretation given Signor Nitti's attitude in the last meetings of the Supreme Council in London.

Signor Nitti said that there never was in his mind any desire for the organization of a policy of reconstruction for Germany to the detriment of the reparations demanded by the Allies, and notably France. He said his only thought had been to place Germany in a position to begin work in order that by her efforts she would be able to square her debts to the Allies.

ADOPT WAR TRIALS BILL.

Germans Provide for Rehearings and Dropping Some Cases.

BERLIN, March 5.—The German National Assembly has passed a supplementary bill relating to the trial of men accused of violations of the laws of war.

It would empower the Supreme State Attorney to propose the discontinuance of any prosecution should he be convinced that there is no ground for the public accusation of any person. The bill also provides for the resumption of proceedings against any person, even after acquittal, and for a rehearing of the cases of persons convicted when sentences passed are clearly disproportionate to the offenses charged.

RUSHING WORK AT DOORN.

Reported That the Kaiser Will Move There in May.

THE HAGUE, March 4.—Night and day shifts are working on the Kaiser's new residence at Doorn, and it is reported he will move there from Amerongen on May 12. A high fence about the house at Doorn, to which objection was made at first because it obstructed a public road, is now near completion, the authorities having waived opposition to the work. A trainload of furniture arrived at Doorn from Berlin several months ago and recently five additional truckloads were received there. The building has been radically remodeled, half of the first floor being prepared for Count Hohenzollern's occupancy, while one of the wings will be given over to the former Empress.

While unprotected by high walls or a moat, the Doorn estate is now in reality a 200-acre cage that can be easily guarded and within which the Dutch Government expects William of Hohenzollern to spend the rest of his days.

INTERBORO GETS MORE TIME

Company Has Until March 10 to Decide on Adding 600 Cars.

The Public Service Commission yesterday granted an application of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for an extension of time to March 10 in which to state whether it would comply with the order of the commission to increase the service on the subway lines by adding 600 cars to the number now operating. In making the application the company said that time was needed in which to study the order and to discover whether it was possible to comply with its provisions. The date for the increased service has now been extended to March 17.

It is said that the company has enough cars to comply with the order, and that the only doubt in the minds of the Interborough officials was whether the service could be increased to the extent ordered and still insure the usual safe operation of trains.

Corporation Counsel Burr, who said on Thursday that the city would begin proceedings to take over the subway lines if the service was not promptly improved, declined yesterday to add to this statement.

PARIS FIRMS OFFER BONUSES FOR CHILDREN

Substantial Encouragement Is Given to Employes to Have Larger Families.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 5.—A number of Paris manufacturers have founded an association with the object of encouraging their working people to have larger families.

The movement is part of a national one toward repopulation. The association has drawn up a table of subsidies to be paid out of central funds to all families into which children are born and who are not able to meet out of their wages the additional charges entailed. The payments have been grouped as follows:

A bounty for the first child of 250 francs; for the second and subsequent children, 150 francs.

Second, a bounty of 30 francs monthly for ten months to every mother who nurses her children.

Third, a monthly allowance of 10 francs for the first child, 20 for the second, and 30 for the third and subsequent children up to the age of 14 years in case of need.

All payments are to be made to the mothers of the children.

Most of the firms who have joined the association are engaged in the metal trade, and in the rules of the association a curious provision is made for filling the common purse. Those firms which employ most bachelors will pay an additional amount to compensate those who employ most married men.

Similar associations have been formed in other French cities, such as Rouen and Roubaix.

ANDERSON ATTACKS CATHOLIC CHURCH

Dry League Chief Calls Clergy Allies of Wets and Members the Foes of Law and Order.

WOULD WARN ASSEMBLY

Writes Protestant Pastors He Wouldn't Run from a Religious Fight.

An attack upon the Catholic Church in New York State, which, he charges, has aligned with Tammany in an effort to defeat prohibition, has been made by William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, in a letter which he sent out Thursday to "the Protestant pastors of New York State." The letter was not given out to the press at the league headquarters, but it was admitted there yesterday afternoon that such a letter had been sent out.

Mr. Anderson, in his letter, said in part:

"The time has come to be very frank. The Anti-Saloon League has never been anti-Catholic, and it does not intend to begin. But that fact is no reason why we should keep silent when wet Catholics muss into the prohibition situation. The successful assault by Catholics on law and order in the election of Mr. Haskell as County Judge in Brooklyn last Fall; their unsuccessful attempt to pull off the same game in the election of a nullification Mayor in Syracuse; the astounding attitude of the Catholic Archbishop of New York in not only refusing to send a representative to the law and order meeting addressed by a representative of the Federal Government, but also in rebuking the attempt to single prohibition out for enforcement in utter disregard of the fact that it had been singled for violation, coupled with the recent action of the Tammany-dominated Democratic convention (you understand Tammany's religious affiliations) in declaring for the repeal of the prohibition amendment and for nullification in the meantime, furnish ample material to open the eyes of even the man who has scant imagination.

Assails Church Officiary.

"The time has come to say in so many words to the pastors of the Protestant churches, who have borne the burden of making this great contribution to practical Christianity with very little help in this Eastern country from Catholics (of course many individual Catholics are for prohibition and most of the rest want to be law-abiding), and against the opposition of the Catholic Church as officially represented in States like New York, that we believe most of the officiary of the Roman Catholic Church in this State are indignant over what they consider a Protestant victory for prohibition, and sore because of the unenviable light in which the Catholic Church hereabouts is left without having had a larger part in this greatest reform of the country, although they had a chance to get into it here the same as elsewhere, and are in sympathy with the Tammany efforts to destroy that victory and bring back the saloons for purposes respecting which your guess is just as good as mine. The Anti-Saloon League has no intention of projecting a religious fight, but by the eternal principles of righteousness that the churches we represent stand for we do not intend to run away from one if it is shoved up to us.

"It is not 'Anderson' that these worthies at Albany are after, but they are seeking to break the power of the united churches which have won this great victory for morality. They are after me because I refused to allow them to hide the shells after they had sucked the eggs. I am not asking for any support or sympathy or assistance against this bunch. The motto 'Lay on, MacDuff,' &c., is plenty good enough for me at this juncture, even if I am just back in the office for a few hours after being laid out ten days by a peculiar manifestation of the flu.

Urges Pulpit Announcements.

"Make no mistake. This whole proposition is an assault on prohibition and its enforcement. It is a last desperate attempt to crush out the influence of the moral element in the Republican Party, although the moral element makes up the overwhelming majority of that party.

"We think, in view of the way the charges against the league have been exploited, that it would be well for you, incidentally, in connection with your announcements on Sunday, to tell your people that you have the assurance of the Anti-Saloon League, as their agency, that it has absolutely nothing to fear from any investigation and that this is merely an attack on prohibition and enforcement and an effort to cover up the deal between the Republican wets and Tammany to prevent any real legislation."

Mr. Anderson said further that he believed that there was a deal on between the Republican organization and the Democrats, the Republicans agreeing to help the Democrats kill prohibition and do anything incident thereto in return for Democratic votes to throw out the Socialists, if they are needed.

Protestant ministers are urged by Mr. Anderson to send telegrams to Speaker Sweet and all the Assemblymen, in substance, as follows:

"We are not fooled on prohibition enforcement by disturbance over Anderson investigation, but want results. We ask no favors for Anderson, who can take care of himself, but you and the party will be held responsible if the league, as our agent, is not given fair treatment."

Says Freeman Was Failure.

The exposure of the Anti-Saloon League methods made by the Rev. William H. Freeman, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Carlisle, Schoharie County, was replied to yesterday by Mr. Anderson. Mr. Freeman, he declared, was a failure in his work with the Anti-Saloon League, even as in Sunday speaking, "yet," he adds, "we are prepared to prove that at the time he left he said that he liked the Sunday work and liked the League and realized the justice and propriety of the League methods, but that he was 'too sensitive' to undertake the work of personal solicitation."

"A flood of light is thrown on this 'sensitiveness' and some other things by his statement that he once ran for member of the Assembly on the Democratic ticket," Mr. Anderson continued, "and was not willing to solicit for the prohibition cause where he had done this."

Mr. Anderson said the personal solicitation plan was adopted to supplement the presentation in the churches by carrying the prohibition proposition to the citizens generally, so that the burden would not rest solely on those who attend church. It was a propaganda movement, he said, and so organized as to secure enough subscriptions to pay the expense of doing it. He added: "The intimation that this is done on a commission basis is absolutely false, but we take pride in the fact that, like any intelligent business concern, we decline to pay salaries for any great length of time unless men justify those salaries."

League Is Church Agency.

He asserted that the league is an agency of the churches, notwithstanding Mr. Freeman's statement to the contrary, pointing out that the General Conference of the Methodists at its last session at Saratoga Springs indorsed the league and that every one of the several annual conferences wholly or largely within the bounds of New York State have indorsed it and elected official representatives on the governing board as well as other denominational bodies not mentioned.

Respecting Mr. Freeman's failure to place the alleged shortcomings of the league before the State synod of his church, the Presbyterian, Mr. Anderson declared that the truth is that he knew the pastors of the churches supporting the league would have laughed at him and that "the only way he could get attention for his stuff was to peddle it to some wet politicians who have been oblivious of what we have always frankly admitted."

"The material things we know respecting Mr. Freeman's value as a witness," Mr. Anderson says in concluding his statement, "will be held till the trial, if there is one. The wets are welcome to what Mr. Freeman will be worth to them when the facts are all in."

FOES OF 'DRY' LOBBY MULTIPLYING FAST

Two Anti-Saloon League Directors and Eleven Ministers Want to Testify.

OFFERS FROM FAR WEST

Governor Smith Will Pay No Attention to Supt. Anderson's Challenge for Debate.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 5.—Two Directors of the New York Anti-Saloon League, both clergymen and out of sympathy with the policy and practices established by Superintendent William H. Anderson, according to Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, have volunteered to appear as witnesses before the Assembly Judiciary Committee at the Anti-Saloon League inquiry, which may begin week after next.

Five other clergymen from pulpits in this State would be witnesses, Mr. Cuvillier said, and seven other ministers who had volunteered would not be called.

Reports of the investigation apparently have created a country-wide stir, for tonight Mr. Cuvillier was able to exhibit letters from far off Western cities, written by persons who have had dealings with the Anti-Saloon League and are willing to tell what they know about its methods.

From all appearances, the plan to investigate the league is meeting with more general support throughout the State than was expected when the resolution was adopted.

"If evidence continues to accumulate as it has since my resolution was adopted," said Mr. Cuvillier tonight, "there will be a strong prima facie case before the Judiciary Committee when it is ready to proceed, entirely aside from the conclusive evidence already in hand with reference to the failure of Anti-Saloon League lobbyists to comply with the registration law."

"The Freeman interview in THE NEW YORK TIMES," said an up-State Assemblyman today, "is certain to create a revulsion of feeling among the good church people up-State against an organization which with unholy levity makes 'consecration' a paraphrase on 'consecration' in its instruction to money raising agents, who, in the consecrated edifices where they sought their dupes, put on a pious mien only to deride behind the closed doors of the league's secret council chambers those who generously responded to their mercenary appeals."

It has been whispered about the corridors of the capital that, in the event of an investigation of the Anti-Saloon League, the "Drys" would insist that the rumor of a $40,000 "Wet" retainer to a prominent lawmaker spread about at last year's session be thoroughly investigated.

Governor Smith, it was learned today, will pay no attention to the open letter from Superintendent Anderson, challenging him to a joint debate on the liquor question and the Governor's voting record on liquor measures while a member of the Assembly.

GOV. SMITH ASSAILS THE LEGISLATURE

whole columns about the conditions in New York needing remedy and asserted that the Governor was unfaithful to his trust.

"That was the time he was venting his spleen against the Governor personally because the Governor was only satisfied to regard him as a friend but couldn't look upon him as a boss. Now that we are in the front trenches, now that we are battling, now that we are face to face with the real common enemy to the interests of the people that want this legislation, where is Hearst? The day of the hearing, up in the corner of his gazette, there was just enough to say it happened, and just because the rest of the newspapers carried in broad headlines that there was real activity, he came out the next night with a whole page editorial denouncing the Governor because the Governor 'didn't mean it.'

Charges Food Grab.

"There can be nothing more stupid outside of himself than that assertion. Just as soon as I declared that I intended to present this whole thing to you, to the people of the State, here and in Syracuse and in Rochester and in Buffalo, this great champion of the rights of the poor starts his attack upon me and questions my sincerity. Why, if it wasn't so humorous it would be something I could talk about, this wonderful champion of the downtrodden, when it suits himself and when it helps his own political purposes, and helps him to get rid of the men in public life that he can't control.

"This millionaire ranch owner from California, who took nearly $1,000 worth of the army food that was sent here to relieve distress and suffering among the poor and sent it home to his own house! I would like to have one of the real newspapers, one of the papers who know how to talk out from the chest, ask him in tomorrow's edition if he even paid for that."

Governor Smith read a letter from a school teacher from an advertisement of the Hearst papers, in which it was said, "Editorially, The New York American is in a class by itself."

"There is no doubt about that," the Governor said. "Editorially, it is in a class by itself, and let me say that there is a Legislative committee in this State looking into causes of unrest, studying the underlying theory of Bolshevism and I. W. Wism and anarchy, and up to this time that committee has entirely overlooked these two newspapers, the greatest source of it that this State or this country ever had. Editorially, it is in a class by itself, and it came within just an eyelash of being suppressed by the power of this Government during the war. There is no question about that."

Applause greeted the Governor's references to Mr. Hearst and, following his address, he was cheered for several minutes. Resolutions were adopted asking that constituents of members of the Legislature call upon their representatives to appear before the Community Councils to explain their attitude on the Governor's legislation.

Paul T. King, Manager of the Campaign, Says He Handled None of the Money.

WANTED BIG ADVERTISING

McKee Contradicts Ex-Gov. Osborne on "Sale of Michigan Senatorship."

Special to The New York Times.

GRAND RAPIDS, March 5.—The Newberry defense played three big cards today, in the conspiracy trial here, when two of the main respondents went on the stand, telling the jury their versions of the Michigan Senatorial campaign, while four witnesses said they would not believe two of the prosecution's witnesses under oath.

Paul H. King, the campaign manager for Senator Newberry, who had only fairly well begun his testimony at the close of court, testified that he accepted the position with great reluctance, as he desired to get out of politics, and that he did not receive a cent in pay, having refused to take anything.

King said that in February, 1917, he was invited by former Senator George Scott of Detroit to attend a conference at the Statler Hotel, where he met Frederick Cody of New York, a close personal friend of Senator Newberry. Cody told him that Newberry was to run for the Senate and that King was settled upon as manager. Allen A. Templeton, afterward Chairman of the Newberry Committee, attended the meeting.

"I did not agree to take the management," said King. "I made a trip to New York to see Commander Newberry, in our talk, I told him that Senator Townsend's campaign cost $20,000, but that as Newberry was not so well known, his campaign would cost about $50,000, because of the great amount of advertising that would have to be done to make Newberry known."

King declared that there was very little talk about the money end of the situation with Newberry, and that never after that time during the entire campaign did he ever talk to Newberry about money. He made many trips, he said, to New York, sometimes to confer with Newberry and sometimes to rest and get away from the political workers who sought his attention.

He explained how he accepted later the management and drew around him a staff of expert publicity writers and others, but he said that from that time on he never handled any money in the headquarters and never saw any handled except as B. Frank Emery, his financial agent, paid the employes.

Contradicts Ex-Governor Osborne.

Mark I. McKee, alleged manipulator of the fraternal societies for Newberry, cut his story short, saying that he had no part in the campaign, never received Newberry's money and never paid out any. He denied former Governor Chase S. Osborne's testimony completely, saying that he never discussed "the sale of a Michigan Senatorship for $15,000" with the ex-Governor.

"When Osborne called at my office my mother was present," McKee said. "I was going over accounts with her and was very busy. Osborne said to Mother, 'I am going to make a big man of your son. I want his support for though, that she was willing to support him.'"

Following the primaries when the Senator.' I told Osborne I was too busy to engage in politics, and that was about all of our talk. Mother did tell him, Newberry management gathered at Williamstown, Mass., at the request of Newberry, according to Government telegrams produced. McKee was in Washington. A telegram from him was produced, saying substantially that the "onslaught in Michigan was fierce and that he advised more publicity to counteract the sentiment." That was at a time when criticism was rife following the publication of the Newberry $176,000 campaign statement.

McKee said that the telegram was entirely about business matters.

Dr. W. H. Sawyer and George W. Lyons testified in attacking the veracity of Government witnesses that they would not believe Frank A. Robards under oath. Robards had testified for the Government that E. V. Chilson, Newberry head of the speakers' department, had told him at a bank in Hillsdale, as Robards identified Chilson so that he could cash a check, that "the boys in Wayne had opened another barrel" and that "$50,000 had been given to the City Committee for campaign work."

The Dead-Line of Sedition

"It ought to be a simple matter," an Indiana editor remarks, "to mark and brand the real seditionist." But it is not a simple matter apparently for Congressmen to devise a measure which will satisfy at once those who fear that our institutions will be overthrown by seditious propaganda, and those afraid they will be undermined by interference with civil liberties. In order to help Congress find out what kind of legislation the people really want, if any, we have asked a large number of newspaper editors to set down the provisions they think a sedition act ought to contain.

THE LITERARY DIGEST for March 6th presents these opinions, and taken as a whole, gives a constructive basis upon which to build. While the Dayton News believes that "public meetings where the Government of the United States is attacked and insulted should be stopt everywhere, and those who persist in traitorous activities should be jailed, fined, or deported, as the case deserves," the Kansas City Star declares that "additional legislation is more dangerous than soap-box oratory or foolish publications." Running between these two extreme view-points, the article in THE LITERARY DIGEST reflects a wide field of public opinion.

IRISH SITUATION IS GROWING WORSE

Correspondent Reports That More Trouble with the Sinn Fein Is Imminent.

OFFICIAL VIEW IS GRAVE

200,000 Sinn Feiners Ready to Commit Murder, Macpherson Tells House—New Bill Attacked.

LONDON, March 5.—The Graphic today publishes a Dublin dispatch saying that the Irish situation is changing remarkably. The dispatch declares that nothing can avert a fresh tragedy except the utmost coolness on the part of the authorities and that any increase in the rigor of martial law will inevitably precipitate such a tragedy, causing dangerous complications for England in America.

The chief danger, according to The Graphic advices, is the widespread conviction that a small Dublin Castle clique is bent on getting Ireland's youth into the open so that the morale of the Sinn Fein may be broken by bloody repression. This, however, the dispatch says, is having one good result in causing the Sinn Fein leaders to avoid provocation at all costs.

Ian Macpherson, Chief Secretary for Ireland, rebutting in the House of Commons last night attacks on the Irish administration, said: "It is obvious we are up against a tremendously dangerous situation in Ireland." He added that the Sinn Fein had at least 200,000 men prepared to commit murder at any hour of the day or night.

Secretary Macpherson asserted that he had received letters from Royalists in the west and south of Ireland begging the Government to take steps to get them out of the country. The Easter rebellion of 1916 had not been stamped out, he said, and had left behind it a spirit more malignant and revolutionary than Ireland had ever known.

The speech of Sir Horace Plunkett at Dublin last night, in which he sharply criticised the new Irish Home Rule bill, taken with Ian Macpherson's defense of the Irish administration in the House of Commons, formed the basis of comment in some of the morning newspapers.

The Daily News, severely condemning the new Home Rule measure, asks: "Can the insincere jugglers who are thus mocking the maddened victims of their own cowardly policy be relied upon to give real effect to the slight promise of happier development which may be hidden in its crooked promises?"

IRISH CONSTABLE KILLED.

Lord French Says Government Will Crush Forces of Disorder.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, March 6.—As a result of a desperate shooting affray at Ragg, a village near Thurles, yesterday, Constable Heaney died this morning. Constables Heaney and Flaherty when returning from patrol duty entered a shop in the village to purchase groceries. As the shop assistant was about to supply them a sudden attack was made from the outside. A loud yell preceded the attack. Revolver shots rang out and bullets whizzed through the shop. A number of assailants entered armed with revolvers.

One policeman jumped over the counter, from behind which he returned the fire, assisted by the second constable. The duel was short and sharp, the assailants being driven off. Flaherty, giving chase, discharged several shots after them, but they made their escape. Heaney, badly wounded, was removed to Tipperary, where he died.

Another shooting outrage in Galway created a good deal of consternation last night. A small farmer named Martin Cullinan visited his neighbor, John Lardner. A party of armed and disguised men entered Lardner's house in search of arms, and while the search was being made a shot was fired, evidently from outside. Cullinan received the contents in his breast and died within an hour. A lad of 18 also got some shot in the face.

Lord French, speaking at Dublin today at the presentation of decoration to members of the Royal Irish Constabulary and the Dublin police, said both these police forces had been engaged in fighting the common foe, sworn enemies of law and order and good government, whose cowardly and diabolical methods had put the endurance of the constables to the highest test. The Irish Government was determined, he added, to crush these forces of disorder.

ULSTER DELAYS DECISION.

Unionists Re-elect Carson and Will Soon Pass on New Bill.

BELFAST, March 5.—At today's meeting of the Ulster Unionist Council Sir Edward Carson was re-elected President. He submitted and analyzed proposals for the future Government as laid down in the Home Rule bill. Sir Edward said it was not proposed to take a definite decision for or against the Government's proposals at the present meeting. He declared that the period was one for the greatest anxiety, and that whatever decision was reached should be taken only after the most mature deliberation.

It was announced by Sir Edward that another meeting of the council would be held next Wednesday, at which it was purposed to proceed to a definite decision.

MRS. H. C. PARKER WINS SEPARATION DECREE

Court, in 12-Minute Trial, Also Grants Alimony and Custody of Children to Explorer's Wife.

Justice Russell Benedict, in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday granted to Mrs. Evelyn N. Parker, wife of Professor Herschel C. Parker, an explorer and former teacher of physics at Columbia University, a decree of separation, the custody of her two children, Evelyn and Cynthia, and $100 a week alimony. Abandonment and non-support were the grounds stated by Mrs. Parker in her action. The trial took but twelve minutes.

Professor Parker, whose present whereabouts is not known to his wife, made no defense. Mrs. Parker was the only witness called. In answer to questions, she said that she was married in this city on Nov. 11, 1911, and that she last saw her husband in July, 1919. The separation suit was started Aug. 21, 1919, and, according to Mrs. Parker, her husband disappeared shortly afterward. Counsel fees and alimony were awarded, but so far she had been unable to collect any money from her husband, she testified.

RUMORS APLENTY, BUT NO ARNSTEIN

District Attorney's Office Sure Fugitive Will Soon Be Here in Custody of Detectives.

SAID TO HAVE BEEN LOCATED

Sleuths Reported to be Shadowing House in Which He Is Hiding Night and Day.

Although John T. Dooling, Assistant District Attorney, refused yesterday to discuss a statement made by Bernard J. McGinn, head of the claim department of the American Surety Company, that he had informed the Assistant District Attorney of the hiding place of "Nicky" Arnstein in a city about ten hours' ride from New York, he declared that Arnstein would be brought back to this city "within a few days."

"That is not a matter I care to discuss," said Dooling, "except candidly to state that even if I do know where Arnstein is, I will not tell you at this time. The arrest of Arnstein rests solely within the jurisdiction of the police. What they are doing in that respect concerns them and not the District Attorney's office. Arnstein will be arraigned in court in a few days, and I am certain he will come back to this city in the custody of detectives."

It was learned, however, that the name of the city in which Arnstein was supposed to be was made known to Deputy Police Commissioner Lahey at Police Headquarters. It is understood that several city detectives have been searching that city for the last week. It also is known that detectives employed by several surety companies have been aiding. It was reported at the Criminal Courts Building last night that the combined force of sleuths had definitely decided that Arnstein was hiding in a certain house in the Western city, and that a patrol of detectives has been established to watch the entire block twenty-four hours a day.

It is no secret that Arnstein, through emissaries, has been in communication by telephone with confederates in this city, and that the fugitive has declared he would not surrender in General Sessions until his lawyer, William J. Fallon, is prepared to appear with him. Fallon has been busy for two weeks in a murder trial in the Bronx, which, it is understood, will be finished by Monday.

Officials at Police Headquarters learned yesterday that no person resembling Arnstein had been arrested within the last week in Montreal or any other Canadian city, as was reported in this city on Thursday.

Ever since "Nicky" was revealed as one of the central figures in the bond plot the police and the surety companies have been receiving mysterious telephone messages offering to reveal Arnstein's hiding place for a consideration. In each instance the man at the other end of the wire was informed that no reward had been offered for "Nicky's" capture, and that the police are expected to apprehend him in due time.

HELD FOR BIG SAFE ROBBERY.

Hypothecation of $5,000 Bonds Gives Clue to Thefts Totaling $1,500,000.

Through admissions made by John Corcoran of 250 Park Place, Brooklyn, who said he was a member of the vaudeville team of Corcoran and Mack, and his brother Thomas, a carpenter, of 237 Lexington Avenue, Brooklyn, detectives believe they are on the trail of a gang who several weeks ago robbed safes in four offices in the financial district of money and securities totaling $1,500,000. All of the safes were opened through manipulation of the combinations.

John Corcoran was arrested on Thursday afternoon at the office of Schmidt & Deery, brokers, at 319 Fifth Avenue, when he called to receive United States Steel and Consolidated Textile stock in return for a $5,000 Liberty bond which he had left the day before. A member of the firm became suspicious of Corcoran when he offered the Liberty bond and notified Police Headquarters. Detectives after examining the bond discovered that it was one of several stolen from the office of James R. Deering, a lawyer, at 135 Broadway, early in February, when two safes were opened by manipulation and securities and money totaling $95,000 taken.

Detectives were waiting in the brokerage office on Thursday afternoon when the actor called and he was arrested and taken to Police Headquarters, where he was questioned until 4 o'clock yesterday morning. He declared at first that he won the bond in a crap game at White Plains, but later admitted he received it from William Sheridan, 33 years old, of 2,521 Madison Avenue, Brooklyn. In searching him at Police Headquarters the police discovered a card which requested the actor to meet a man at Broadway and Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, at midnight on Thursday.

Detectives McCoy, Hughes, Mindheim and Thornton, the latter of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau, hastened over to the meeting place and arrested Sheridan and Louis Harsia of 310 Monroe Street, Brooklyn. The detectives also arrested the brother of the actor at his home, and all of the men were taken to Police Headquarters, where the Corcoran brothers, the detectives say, later accused Sheridan of having given the Liberty bond to the actor.

John Corcoran said he met Sheridan three days ago at Gates Avenue and Broadway and that Sheridan asked him to dispose of the bond. He said he would accept $3,500 in return for the bond, and that Corcoran, who is playing with his partner at the United States Theatre in Hoboken, could keep all over that amount he received for it. He said he figured the best way to dispose of it was to take it to an uptown brokerage and offer it as collateral for the purchase of stock.

The detectives arraigned the four men in the Tombs Court late yesterday afternoon, where the actor and Sheridan were held without bail and the other two prisoners held in $5,000 each. Detective Mindheim declared that employes of several buildings in the financial district in which safe robberies had taken place recognized Sheridan as a man they had seen about the buildings before the robberies. He also said that James O'Toole, manager of the law offices of James A. Deering, identified Sheridan as the man he had seen standing near the entrance to the law offices several days before the two safes were robbed.

WHY?

With wages high and with work plentiful, why should we be asking help?

The answer is that we are asking for those who cannot work—for the honest man whom sickness has laid low, and whose family cannot hold together without help, for the widow and children, for the deserted wife, for the men and women too old or infirm to measure up to the market's standard and too proud to beg.

To these high wages mean nothing—high costs mean much. 90% more for food; 60% more for rent; 120% more for clothing.

Last year we spent $887,000; the increased cost of everything makes $975,000 a modest estimate of this year's needs. We are asking the people of New York to give this sum during the period March 4—15.

You know best whether or not you have a responsibility to help in this, but don't forget that these are your own poor. Add a little to the glorious contributions you have made to the sufferers of many nations, and you will lighten the load of many right here. And after all, hunger is hunger, in New York or Belgium, and sickness brings its train of sorrows in New York as in Europe or elsewhere in the world.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

The Philharmonic Society.

The Philharmonic Society gave another concert yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall, in which the orchestral numbers of the program were Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony, Goldmark's overture "Prometheus Bound," and Liszt's Hungarian rhapsody No. 1. Mr. Albert Spalding was again the soloist, as he was the evening before, and played Saint-Saëns's third violin concerto in B minor.

Goldmark's overture had not recently been heard in New York; it was first played here by the Philharmonic Society under Anton Seidl's direction, in 1892. It is effective, in Goldmark's way, characteristic and thoroughly individual, with melodious themes strongly contrasted in character, suggesting the several episodes of the story of Prometheus in the more poetic programmatic spirit that requires of the listener only a general appreciation of the diverse moods involved and sympathy with them. The orchestration is glowing and laid on by a master hand. A more powerful and more competent performance would have presented the composition in a more imposing manner. Yet, even at its best, this Prometheus music no longer seems of a quality, or of a bigness fitting to represent the elemental spirit, the profound significance of the Greek myth. It is excellent music and can be heard with great pleasure, but it is not of the stamp to impress deeply.

Mr. Spalding played Saint-Saëns's concerto with much spirit and energy, but with not quite all the elegance that certain points of the composition claim. It needs, undoubtedly, all these qualities. Mr. Spalding plays, however, with admirable repose in the most brilliant passages, now and then not with quite perfect intonation. If, at the end of the slow movements, the passages in harmonics did not come off with unvarying success, there was more than enough reason for it in the fact that the breaking of a string required a quick exchange of violins with Mr. Megerlin, the concert master; and such tricky passages present a new treachery on a strange instrument. Mr. Spalding was applauded with unusual warmth and enthusiasm for his performance.

Richard Buhlig's Recital.

Mr. Richard Buhlig, in his valiant series of piano recitals covering the "permanently significant" in the classical literature of the piano, reached his sixth recital last evening. The program was devoted to Schubert and Schumann, the latter represented by the Fantasy in C, the former mostly by music seldom appearing on the programs of pianists—the posthumous piece in E flat, the posthumous sonata in B flat, an impromptu and a set of twenty dances.

Mr. Buhlig did not do much to infuse the breath of life into the piece in E flat nor into the sonata. They are both long, as only Schubert could be long—long and with many elements of beauty and of poetical imagination. They stagger under the burden of diffuseness and repetition, which Mr. Buhlig did little to lighten. His playing was deeply sincere and deeply felt, clear in articulation, but lacking something in variety of tone and color and in vitality of expression.

SINGER COMING TO MARRY.

Mary Fitzgerald, Grandniece of Dickens, to Wed John Clarke.

One of the first cabin passengers arriving from Liverpool tomorrow on the White Star liner Baltic is Miss Mary Galatea Fitzgerald, a grandniece of Charles Dickens, the English novelist.

She is an Australian and an opera singer who is well known in her own country and England, and is coming here to marry John Clarke, the tenor who has made himself popular with New Yorkers as Molyneux in "Monsieur Beaucaire" at the New Amsterdam Theatre.

Helen Ware in Violin Recital.

Helen Ware, a violinist well known here, gave a matinée recital yesterday at Aeolian Hall, where her program of pronounced individuality had its moments of charm in Tschaikowsky's "Serenade Melancolique" and a "Hungarian Poem" of familiar syncopation by Hubay. Miss Ware played classics of Leclair and Mozart, some arrangements by Joachim and Spalding, and a recent "Canary and Wildbird" of imitative, whistling harmonics, with other pieces of her own. A transcription of the air, "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms," was applauded on recall.

Caruso Sings Again in 'The Prophet'

Meyerbeer's "The Prophet," with its popular characterization by Caruso of a non-Italian hero that the tenor's admirers believe may lead him to Wagner's "Lohengrin" or "Tristan" some day, was performed for the third time before a large audience at the Metropolitan last evening. With Caruso as Jean, there were Matzenauer as Fides, his mother; Muzio, Dua, d'Angelo, Mardones, Rothier and others, and Mr. Bodanzky conducted.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Beyond the Horizon," which has been playing at special matinees at the Criterion, will be performed regularly at the Little Theatre beginning next Tuesday night. Helen MacKellar, Edward Arnold and Max Mitzel, members of "The Storm" company, who were loaned for the matinees, will be succeeded in the cast by Helen Freeman, Robert Kelly and Sidney Macy. Richard Bennett will continue in the leading role.

"The Humming Bird," by Maude Fulton, author of "The Brat," is to be produced by Oliver Morosco, with Miss Fulton in the cast.

"The Bonehead," by Frederic Arnold Kummer, will be produced in Providence on March 22, with Edwin Nicander in the leading role, and will open in New York on April 5. Gaude Bearbohm is the producer. Plays which Mr. Beerbohm will offer in the Fall will include "The Blue Lagoon," a dramatization of Stackpoole's novel of the same name, and "The Red Lamp," a musical comedy.

Helen Ford, recently seen here in "Always You," has been engaged by Edgar McGregor for "The Sweetheart Shop."

The performance of "Fifty-Fifty" at the Shubert-Crescent Theatre in Brooklyn next Monday night will be partly in aid of Sterling Post, 328, of the American Legion

"The Irresistible Genius," which George M. Cohan has been presenting on the road, will be known hereafter as "Genius and the Crowd." The play is a comedy by John T. McIntyre and Frances Hill, and Georges Renavent plays the leading role.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art opens tonight its March series of free orchestra concerts, on Saturday nights, with selections from Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony, Grieg's "In Holberg's Time," and works of Elgar, Rossini, Brahms, Saint-Saens, Wagner and Tschaikowsky. Four similar concerts drew a total attendance of 18,319 in January of this year.

Cantor Bernard Wooliff will give his first recital in Carnegie Hall tomorrow evening, presenting a program of operatic airs, Russian and French songs and traditional synagogue music.

Jean Gordon, Margaret Romaine and George Meader will sing and Father Duffy will speak at a benefit for the monastery on Fort Hamilton Parkway to be held tomorrow night at the Brooklyn Academy.

PREMIERS ACCEPT WILSON PROPOSAL

Offer to Withdraw Proposals.

"In order to facilitate this process they are ready to withdraw the proposals made both on the 9th of December and the 20th of January, for they feel that if the two parties principally concerned believe that the various allied and associated powers are committed to supporting them in any particular solution it will be more difficult to secure a voucher for agreement between them. The French and British Prime Ministers, therefore, join in a cordial invitation that President Wilson should take part with them in a formal proposal to the Italian and Jugoslav Governments, urging them to negotiate a mutual agreement on the basis of a withdrawal of all previous proposals.

"If, however, this attempt should prove unsuccessful, the French and British Prime Ministers agree that the United States, Great Britain and France should once more consider the question in common with a view to arriving at concrete proposals. The French and British Prime Ministers desire further to record the wording of appreciation of the interest taken by the American Government in the future of the Albanian people, and they assure President Wilson that they share to the full respect for the principle which he here enunciates. They would remind him of what they said on the subject in their memorandum of Feb. 17, and would state that they are convinced that by a review of the Albanian question a settlement can be reached which will satisfy the aspirations of the Albanian people for full self-government, while taking into consideration the vital interests of all other parties concerned, together with the necessity of securing to Jugoslavia an outlet on the Adriatic in the region of Scutari. They are willing to urge upon the Governments interested that they should bring their desires into line with the American point of view.

Defend Treaty of London.

"The French and British Prime Ministers must further refer to the observations of President Wilson on the character and applicability of the Treaty of London. With regard to this treaty they feel bound to insist that its secret character, to which he objects, was due to the exigencies of military strategy. The essence of all success in warfare is to prevent divulging to the enemy of important plans which are of a military or political character, and the treaty, on the faith of which Italy entered the war, was not one which could be published during hostilities without detriment to the Allies's cause.

"With regard to their statement that in the event of an amicable settlement not being arrived at between Italy and Jugoslavia, the Treaty of London would have to come into force. So far as they are concerned, the French and British Prime Ministers feel that they need add little to the explanations they have already given in the memorandum of Feb. 17. The Italian Government has co-operated most loyally and assiduously with the French and British Governments in endeavoring to substitute for the arrangements of the Treaty of London, a settlement which would be satisfactory alike to them and to Jugoslavia. Such an agreement would obviously replace and annul the Treaty of London with the consent of Italy herself. That such an agreement should be reached is the cordial hope of all the Allied Governments, a hope which they know President Wilson shares to the full, but they cannot disguise the fact that should no voluntary settlement of this kind be attained, the Treaty of London to which they at their end in 1915, would then become the only valid alternative so far as they were concerned.

"In conclusion the French and English Prime Ministers venture to call the attention of President Wilson to the urgent importance of a speedy settlement of the Adriatic dispute—a dispute which is now gravely threatening the peace and delaying the reconstruction of Southeastern Europe."

Nitti States His Terms.

Signor Nitti's memorandum to Lloyd George on Jan. 6 suggested with reference to a conversation they had held that morning that a satisfactory settlement might be reached along that line, and said:

"Italy asks for the fulfillment of the Treaty of London. To eliminate the difficulties subsequently arisen and to reach a general agreement without any further delay the Italian Government is prepared to accept the following compromise:

"1. Free State of Fiume according to Wilson's plan, but with the frontier of the Treaty of London in its southwestern part toward Italy.

"2. But in the free State the City of Fiume with its district (corpus separatum) must be guaranteed by a statute efficaciously safeguarding its Italianita, which, owing to the Slav majority in the free State, would be more threatened than it was under Hungary.

"3. To the corpus separatum of Fiume within the free State must be assigned the road to the west, with the surrounding strip of territory up to the Italian frontier.

"4. The Islands of Cherso and Lagosta, besides those already assigned by Wilson, to be assigned to Italy.

"5. Zara, free town, with freedom to select its diplomatic representation, guarantees for the relations of the citizens of Zara with the Dalmatian territory.

"6. Effective neutralization of the islands and also of the whole coast and of the ports of the Eastern Adriatic coast from Fiume down to the mouth of the Vojussa.

"7. The Italians of the City of Fiume and Dalmatia to have the freedom of choosing Italian citizenship without leaving the territory.

"8. Guarantees for the existing economic enterprises in Dalmatia."

Practically Cancels Nitti's Demands.

The British and French Premiers on Jan. 9 proposed the following settlement:

1. A free State of Fiume according to President Wilson's plan, but delineation of the boundary frontier of the proposed State to be moved eastward in the south, the railroad running northward from Fiume to be within the free State.

2. The city of Fiume to be safeguarded by a statute effectively safeguarding its "Italianita." Both privileges of the Fiume corpus separatum and the free State to be under guarantee of a league of nations. International character of the port with full facilities for development in interests of all nations concerned to be under guarantee of the league.

3. Island of Cherso to be part of the free State; Island of Lagosta to be ceded to Italy.

4. Free State of Zara to be governed by a High Commissioner. Arrangements to be made governing economic relations of Zara with the rest of Dalmatia, which fall to the Jugoslav State. Zara to be within the Serb-Croat-Slovene customs unit.

5. Italian proposal for neutralization of all islands of the Adriatic to be accepted. Proposal for neutralization of Dalmatia. "can hardly be forced on a friendly ally," Italian Government asked to be content with neutralization of all the islands with other conceded arrangements, "would seem to give as complete security as they can reasonably demand."

6. Italians of Dalmatia to be free to choose Italian citizenship without leaving the territory.

7. Existing economic enterprises in Dalmatia to be safeguarded by international convention.

The memorandum concluded with this statement as to the boundaries of Albania:

"The British and French Governments would point out that the present proposal, involving the severance of the free State containing an overwhelming majority (200,000) of Jugoslavs from their motherland, the modification of its western frontier in favor of Italy, the concession of islands containing a Slav majority, and other points, are very great conditions to ask of a State which is now a friendly ally. The British and French Governments are prepared to ask the Serb-Croat-Slovene State to make these great concessions for the sake of an amicable and prompt settlement of a question which now threatens the peace and progress of southern Europe, but they can go no further, and they earnestly trust that the conference and the Italian Government will accept them.

Makes Plea for Fiume.

Commenting on the terms of the Treaty of London relating to Fiume, the Italian note continued:

"It is clearly seen from this text that the foundation of the stipulation therein contemplated lies in the assumption that three different States would be formed, Montenegro, Serbia and Croatia. It suffices to refer to the proposals which at the time of the conclusion of the treaty were in force with regard to the future of Austria-Hungary. The whole political system of the eastern shore of the Adriatic, which vitally interests Italy, as viewed by the powers signatory to the Treaty of London in 1915, has since been upset by the constitution of a great Jugoslav state which even threatens to absorb Montenegro. From this standpoint it is clear that the stipulation which assigns the port of Fiume to Croatia falls of itself.

"As a result of the events of the war the Hungarian State has undergone a radical transformation. The Hungarian State as it was before the war no longer exists. Important component parts, Transylvania, Croatia, &c., have grouped themselves differently in the exercise of the right of self-determination of the peoples, which is one of the essentials proclaimed by the allied and associated powers during the war. To deny this same right of self-determination to the corpus separatum of Fiume, whose well marked individuality is undisputably established by (1) its unquestionable ethnic character, (2) its old age, extended back several centuries, (3) the obvious will of its inhabitants, would be a crying injustice.

"The Italian Government would not evade the duty of voicing the will of the Italian city of Fiume to the Allies. The fulfillment of that duty has nothing to do with the stipulations of the Treaty of London and it would be unfair to charge Italy with inconsistency in this respect. Italy, however, for the purpose of expediting a solution, has repeatedly proposed and still adheres today to a compromise based on compensation to the Jugoslavs.

"The arguments presented in the memorandum of Dec. 9 against the proposition of the territorial contiguity of the corpus separatum to the territory of the Kingdom of Italy do not appear such as to destroy the actual consideration of the fact that the corpus separatum and city of Fiume, being entirely surrounded by Slav populations, find it necessary to ask for a point of contact with Italy, all the more as Fiume will on its east side remain in direct contact with Susak, which is wholly Slav. The reasons of a sentimental nature, whose special significance is not ignored by the memorandum of the allied and associated powers, have a foundation of reality."

Hold to Treaty of London.

The note asserts that as the Volusca district, of which Castua is a port, borders on the corpus separatum of Fiume, the Treaty of London "thus secured the territorial contiguity of the corpus separatum and Italy." But that in accordance with its latest proposal, the Italian delegation had "confirmed its claim to a strip of territory between the railroad and the sea, or much less than was guaranteed by the Treaty of London as a part of the territory north of the strip was relinquished."

President Wilson was very much opposed to the cession of this beach strip between Fiume and Volusca to Italy. The Italian note contends that Italy was justified in asking for this strip. The Italian delegation believes, says the note, "that a claim so reduced cannot be rejected as to the objectionable features put forth in the memorandum in the Jugoslav interest as thought they were insuperable objections. It is clear that they only relate to modalities of which ample care can be taken in special arrangements.

"It is alleged in the memorandum of Dec. 9 that the Royal Government had officially renounced the territorial claims in Dalmatia which are guaranteed to it on the strength of the Treaty of London. The Italian delegation wishes to make it clear that no waiver of the Treaty of London has taken place. Numerous attempts have been made in as conciliatory a spirit as possible to find a compromise, but since no compromise has been effected, as above stated, Italy as of right resumes as her starting point the position guaranteed to her by the treaty, while adhering to the conciliatory spirit which she has evidenced in the past. Of course, the Italian minorities who should happen to be incorporated in the Jugoslav State should be granted all the guarantees necessary for full protection of their nationality and economic interests."

"The memorandum of Dec. 9," it says on the charge of imperialism, "seems to ascribe to Italy a purpose to exercise absolute dominion in the Adriatic. Such a purpose is far from the thoughts of the Royal Government. Italy's demands were solely prompted by considerations of legitimate defense.

"The settlement offered by the allied and associated powers to the Italian delegation would improve the strategic situation only in the upper Adriatic, with the substitution of Pola for Venice, but in Middle and South Adriatic the situation would remain as unfavorable as before the war, since the possession of Valona, while affording a good point of vantage from which to watch the entrance to the Adriatic, could never have a part in the defense of the Italian coast. The State holding Cattaro and Sebenico will have the actual control of the Adriatic."

The last of the documents given out tonight is the memorandum of the Serb-Croat-Slovene Government, as delivered to the Allied Premiers in London on Jan. 28. It sets forth the attitude of the Belgrade Government as follows:

"With respect to the substance of the propositions the Royal Government feels justified in remarking that the propositions do not quite agree with either the principles of self-determination and independence of the peoples as proclaimed by the Peace Conference or with the wishes of the population, or with the geographic and economic conveniences. The Royal Government, extremely desirous of solving in the most friendly spirit the present difficulties, has proposed to leave the solution either to arbitration or a plebiscite.

"It is still ready to concur in either one of those two solutions, but could not see why, unless it immediately and unreservedly accepted, it should be brought under a treaty concluded without its knowledge by outsiders, and the clauses of which were never communicated to it. As to the proposition itself, the Royal Government finds itself constrained to say that it cannot accept it as a whole. It relies on the sense of justice and equity of the powers which submitted the communication of Jan. 20 to obtain permission to submit such modifications as are demanded by the necessity of guaranteeing peace in the Adriatic.

"The Royal Government also finds itself constrained to remark that no guarantees are offered to it in the proposition of Jan. 20 either as to the evacuation of the territories of which it will be granted the sovereignty or the evacuation of the cities of Fiume and Zara erected into Independent States. Moreover, recent events, one of as late a date as yesterday, have proved that the commanders of regular and irregular troops occupying those territories have decided not to pay any attention to orders that are or may be issued to them by the Governments of their allegiance."

GOLD EXPORTS AND IMPORTS.

The report that England and France, alone or together, will send us in gold any considerable proportion of their loan for $500,000,000 soon to mature here is not an intelligent anticipation of events and should not be encouraged by us. When their bank reserves are about half of ours, which are thought too small, they need the gold more than we, and we need to support their commercial strength more than we do to support Germany's. There is not the least doubt that they will make a liberal settlement with their creditors, and they could send gold enough to supply a base of credit for that operation without sending sums mentioned which exceed the world's free gold, existing or to be produced in the interval. The addition of scores of millions of gold to our sufficient present supply, not to mention $200,000,000 more or less, is not altogether desirable at a time when our bankers are struggling against inflation.

It was announced yesterday that $21,500,000 more gold had been engaged for shipment to South America, chiefly to Argentina. This year the gold export movement has cost the Federal Reserve $180,000,000 and reduced its ratio of reserves some six points, to the point of uneasiness. Last week the local Federal reserves were depleted by the loss of gold to Argentina to an amount smaller than that going tomorrow by half and were restored by the expedient of counting in them Treasury silver deposited and earmarked for export. The January figures of foreign trade show that in seven months we have exported $319,000,000 gold. That is about one-half our debit on trade movement in 1919, despite our four billion credit on the total of all trade. But the four billion credit brought us in the same seven months only $38,000,000 gold. If it were only a matter between South America and the United States, our direct balances might be settled in that manner for a long time. But what is called the depreciation in sterling, or the premium on dollars, is a matter between the United States and the world. England could pay its trade debt to us alone in gold as well as we could pay South America in specie. But there is always danger through the triangular operation that England can pay us in paper which we would have to take instead of gold, and that England could draw gold from us to pay her trade debts if she could secure our obligations due to others than England.

It will be remembered that New York learned by bitter experience that, if New York banks refused to send currency to the interior, the interior would not make remittances as usual to New York. The world—except the United States—has now stopped remitting in the only international currency, and consequently there is a worldwide constriction of the exchanges of both goods and currency. Trade cannot be done one-sidedly, and exchanges must be balanced one way or another or be reduced to the lowest terms compatible with the satisfaction of necessities. Thus it comes about that trade is restricted just at the time when the expansion of trade is the remedy "exhibited" or "indicated"—as the financial doctors might say.

The most direct application of these ideas is that it is not possible for the United States permanently to remit gold if the rest of the world sustains embargoes on gold. The United States will exchange either goods or gold with no limit but the sky, but it cannot sustain exports of either goods or gold unless there is freedom of movement for both. It is idle to apply normal rules to an abnormal situation. The United States is prepared for the rigor of the game, according to the rules, but the rules must apply to all, not to the United States alone. Yet those who break the rules are finding the United States responsible for the situation in which the United States comes nearest to trading on settled principles. It is the same with goods as with gold. Our foreign friends, who are so desirous that we should appreciate the discomforts of their situation, not only check their imports from us, but demand that we shall finance their buyers of our goods. This is said sympathetically, and with recognition that they are doing their best to balance their debits with either goods or gold. The fact remains that it is against good business practice for the seller to finance the buyer. The buyer is supposed to finance himself, with the assistance of his own banks. But foreign buyers are asking that we shall finance both sides of the business between the United States and the world.

GUMPTION AND SNOW.

In the general cry for adequate mechanical equipment against snowstorms, an even more fundamental need has been neglected—the quite humble faculty which in New England is known as gumption. More than a month has passed since the city was blockaded, yet many streets, especially cross streets in lower Manhattan, are still barely passable. The trouble is not primarily with the roadways, which, though narrow and rutted, can be traversed. The real trouble is with the delay and obstruction caused by contrary currents of traffic. For four weeks delivery wagons of all sorts have suffered loss of time. In the matter of coal there has been a real deprivation. While the local supply has been sufficient, it has been impossible to make deliveries. Many householders have been obliged to go without heat and cooking.

Now the Merchants' Association comes forward with an idea that should have been acted upon at the outset. It is to make all cross-town streets "one-way" streets, those with odd numbers for eastbound traffic and those with even numbers for westbound traffic. In many cases—approximately half of them—it would be necessary to go around the block before approaching the house; but, compared to an actual stoppage of traffic, that is a negligible incident. The suggestion was actually made to the Police Commissioner by a leading coal merchant, and Mr. ENRIGHT replied that the idea had "considerable merit." But that was in the third week after the storm, when conditions had more or less righted themselves.

If we escape the blizzard which has raged in the West, we shall have much to be thankful for; but among our blessings we shall not have to reckon a city administration which is either forethoughtful or fertile in quick expedients. Even an interval going upon five weeks has not enabled us to be off with the old storm before being in for the new.

THE REACTION.

The strong, evident and growing revolt against the Prohibition Enforcement act is a most interesting manifestation of public opinion, but is natural and explicable. Against the Eighteenth Amendment itself the rising popular dissatisfaction is not directed. It was generally felt, it is generally felt still, that the saloon was an evil. Against its suppression, against a suppression of strong drink, there has been little protest. We are not now considering the attacks on constitutional grounds made on the amendment by the States of Rhode Island and New Jersey. We are not considering mere political objection to it. We refer to such evidences of dissatisfaction as have been given by so many towns in Massachusetts and Vermont. When town after town of a sober, hard-headed and conservative population votes for license, after the prohibition amendment has been ratified by State Legislatures almost unanimously, officially proclaimed and gone into effect, that vote is a protest made on grounds of common sense, not against the amendment, but against the rigor and the narrowness of the statute for its enforcement, and the regulations and method of the administrative authorities intrusted with that enforcement.

In defining by the Volstead act intoxicating beverages, in insisting that beverages that contain as much as one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol shall be regarded as intoxicating, Congress has simply yielded to the extremists of the Anti-Saloon League. In the face of fact and experience and common sense it has ordained that what is non-intoxicating shall be intoxicating. It has made unlawful the harmless habits of millions in the use of beers and light wines. It has stretched the amendment beyond the point where public sentiment will sustain it. Moreover, it has manufactured many sorts of technical violation which men of sober lives regard as offensive and pettily tyrannical. Representative Igoe from Missouri made a catalogue of these in the House the other day. To carry a drink out of your own house and your own legal store, to give another person a drink, save in your own house, to have in your possession any recipe or material for the brewing of strong or malt liquor; for a housewife to make after Jan. 17 any drink that contains more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol—for such dire offenses punishment is provided in the Volstead act. And, as if for the special purpose of making the act and the amendment itself odious, some of the authorities enforce it in the narrow and persecuting spirit; and men are arrested for carrying a flask in their trousers pocket.

In a dignified petition to the members of the General Assembly of Maryland asking them to rescind the ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment by the General Assembly of 1918, many of the most distinguished professional and business men of that State lay down the solid and general objection, irrespective of financial and constitutional considerations, to the Volstead act, which they speak of as "going far beyond the scope of the Eighteenth Amendment itself." That, and resentment at the conduct, now coming into general public notice, of the Anti-Saloon League in forcing ratification, are at the bottom of the widespread and spreading revolt against an excessive and really extra-constitutional prohibition, a prohibition that turns the amendment from its legitimate object, and, if continued, must bring it into contempt and desuetude. The Volstead act is stirring a public sentiment that will make the enforcement it provides, and perhaps even proper enforcement, more and more difficult and, it may be, finally impossible. When even the politicians of the New York Assembly see the popular uprising against an illiberal and rigorous enforcement, and dare to revolt against their old master, the Anti-Saloon League, the moderate and sensible friends of the Eighteenth Amendment may be sure of the depth, the width and the sincerity, of public opposition to the Volstead act, to an excessive, bigoted interpretation and enforcement of the prohibition amendment.

VERY STRONG MEASURES.

Mr. LLOYD GEORGE assures the House of Commons that the directors of allied policy are well aware of the need for "very strong measures" for the protection of Christian minorities in Turkey "as far as is possible." So some sort of menacing message has been sent to Constantinople, and the British Premier intimates that if the answer is not satisfactory something will be done which will be "manifest to the whole world."

This is good news, if it means anything. Meanwhile the Turkish position is being made manifest to the whole world. Nationalists openly declare that war will come with good weather in Anatolia, if not before, unless the French get out of Cilicia and the Greeks out of Smyrna. MUSTAPHA KEMAL seems to be confident that his army is strong enough to recover these districts, and even to talk of disputing British control of Mesopotamia and the Arab countries. His centre of government, we now hear, is in Angora, "out of reach of naval guns." One of the reasons for leaving the Sultan in Constantinople, we were told last week, was that it would be easy to apply pressure to his Government there and hard to coerce him in the interior. The pressure has been applied now, Mr. LLOYD GEORGE tells us; and in the meantime the Sultan calls upon a Nationalist follower of MUSTAPHA KEMAL to form a new Cabinet. The Turkish Government does not seem to be afraid of these strong measures.

Thrace goes to Greece, we are now informed; even Adrianople is included—the former capital of the Sultans and the city where some of the holy places of the Turk are located. But the Turk is to have his holy places, even if political sovereignty passes to the Greek. The holy cities have already been taken away from him and given to the King of the Hedjaz and to whatever Government may rule in Palestine. Moslem religious feeling survives this, it survives the loss of political control of the shrines in Adrianople, but it revolts at the "fanaticism" which would deprive the Turk of his capital. Thus the religious-political strategists of the Montagu type.

These are sadly unconvincing arguments. And while the matter of holy places is under discussion, it may be well to remember that there is in Constantinople a holy place which was the foremost church of Christendom at its foundation, and which disputed that honor with St. Peter's for nearly a thousand years thereafter. St. Sophia has been a mosque for almost five centuries, but it was a church for twice that length of time before; and to more than a third of the Christians of the world it is a holy place outranking all others.

MR. JOHNSON'S QUEER FRIENDS.

Senator HIRAM JOHNSON has been blasting and counterblasting the Versailles Treaty and the League of Nations in North Dakota. While he has declared his unwillingness to take a third-party nomination, he has been in North Dakota as the favorite of a third party, the too famous Non-Partisan League. He has been nominated for President by a convention of the League. The North Dakota Republican Convention nominated a Republican list of delegates to the Republican National Convention. The Non-Partisan League Convention nominated a Non-Partisan League ticket. The North Dakota Republicans warned Mr. JOHNSON and all other candidates away. Mr. JOHNSON seems to know his own kind of people, if they are his kind. In his speech at Grand Forks he cried for the return of the constitutional rights of American citizens. He was red with wrath against the New York Assembly for its exclusion of the Socialist members. Mr. TOWNLEY'S Non-Partisan League is distinctly Socialist. In several States its leaders got into trouble on account of their German propaganda or various words and acts of sedition and disloyalty. At Grand Forks Mr. JOHNSON liberated his soul thus tremendously:

> No group of men sitting in Washington will keep the Treaty out of the campaign. How futile it is for those men to insist that the American flag shall be buried and ask the American people to walk over its grave.

How affecting is this outburst to those who remember that officers of the National Non-Partisan League were convicted last July on a charge of conspiracy to teach disloyalty in their campaign for the League; that many of its most prominent and active chiefs took precisely the Socialist view of the war and the American flag and American patriotism.

A SOLDIER'S TESTIMONY.

In the American Legion, and among veterans of the war who have not joined the organization, there must be many soldiers who agree with Captain WALTER BURNS, a member of the Legion, that a bonus is not needed by men in good physical condition and able to work, and that if those who are falling in to ask for monthly payments of money by the Government understood that the disbursements would further complicate an already critical economic situation they would not press their demands. Captain BURNS appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee on Thursday to oppose the bonus plan, an act that required a certain amount of moral courage. No one has more sensibly stated the case for aid to the veteran who is in real need of practical encouragement. No one has perceived more clearly that cash payments to able-bodied soldiers, who are at work or can obtain employment at higher salaries or wages than they received before the war, would not accomplish the purpose the promoters of the plan have in mind. Of the bonus as a gift Captain BURNS says:

> The American soldier does not need it. It will mean only a heavy burden on the taxpayers, and in most cases would be squandered.

Captain BURNS had nothing to say about the argument that the Government has incurred a debt to the soldiers because the purchasing value of the dollar declined while they were in the army, nor did he touch upon the theory that the soldiers should receive grants of money because during their absence from civil life those who remained at home continued to earn salaries and wages as usual, and in some cases higher compensation. If the country had an abundance of wealth, no debt and a large surplus over actual requirements, the objection to paying a substantial bonus to more than 4,000,000 soldiers and sailors who fought in the war or underwent training would probably not be heard, whatever might be thought of the precedent. But with an enormous debt to carry for a generation the Government cannot afford to pay bonuses of two or more billions of dollars, and it cannot recognize an obligation that was never held to exist after any previous war.

Captain BURNS expressed the universal sentiment of the country when he said that the nation should care bountifully for the helpless wounded and for the dependents of the dead, and that the excellent plan of vocational training should be properly administered. It is significant that both Representatives GARNER and TILSON stated at the hearing that they had received, in one case, no application from a soldier for a bonus, and in the other case but one such request.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Warnings Long Neglected.

Of all the many mysteries connected with the recent bond robberies in New York's financial district, quite the largest and darkest, not even excepting Mr. "NICKY" ARNSTEIN'S success in eluding his supposedly eager pursuers, is the fact that after the first, or the next two or three, thefts of this kind had occurred, adequate measures for preventing their repetition were not taken by the owners or custodians of the securities.

Certainly it does not seem that more than half a dozen such proofs that they were using an unsafe method in the transfer of these valuable documents from office to office should have been required. And if they had been convinced of that almost amusingly obvious truth, surely "Wall Street" should have been able, by drawing freely upon its available stock of money and brains, to solve a problem apparently both simple and easy.

Instead, the wonderful persons who do business down in that region have gone on exactly as has been their habit for years unnumbered, intrusting what was not much different from huge sums of cash to the first boy who came along looking for a job paying a few dollars a week. That the opportunity of these boys for doing exactly what so many of them have done was as great as their temptation to do it could not have been unknown to any of their employers. Yet, if efforts have been made to decrease either the opportunity or the temptation, the efforts have not been reported and they have not been successful.

For the robberies did not cease when a few of the unfaithful messengers—thanks to one who was faithful—had been arrested, and even now the spirit of change and reform has been aroused only to the extent of considering suggestions that it would be well to hire for this sort of messenger service men of tested character and to pay them the wages such men are worth.

A Valuable Power Disappeared.

Probably the slowness of "the Street" to realize the need to change its established habit was due to the fact that for many years it enjoyed police protection of a particularly careful and effective kind. The consequence, or one of the consequences, of that naturally would be an atrophy of "the Street's" powers of self-protection.

Therein its denizens are much like the rest of the world. Unused organs are soon lost, and one of history's most justly celebrated lessons is that long reliance on paid defenders ends unhappily for those who neglect a primordial duty.

It is to a form or sort of pacifism that the bankers and brokers should ascribe their present woes. Seemingly, they feared or felt that preparation and precaution would arouse the predatory instinct in the boys they hired, and refrained from both, in ingenuous faith that the trusted would always prove trustworthy. It is a pretty theory, and it does work, sometimes. But sometimes it fails miserably, and the wise ratify it with at least as many reservations as Senator LODGE would append to the League of Nations covenant—and with far better excuse.

Already We Are Well Stocked.

It seems that it was to Viscount ROTHERMERE, who may or may not like to admit the need to identify him by saying that he is a brother of Lord NORTHCLIFFE, that there came, recently, the idea that Great Britain could very conveniently decrease her indebtedness to the United States by handing over to us the British West Indies as credits on the large account.

The idea is not without ingenuity, though perhaps its ingenuousness is somewhat more obvious. The latter quality explains, perhaps, why its reception in London has been the reverse of enthusiastic, and why as yet no signs of eagerness to buy the islands have appeared in this country.

They are good little islands, as little tropic islands go—fine climate, beautiful scenery, fertile soil, interesting historical associations, and all that—but from the material or financial standpoint they long have been, and promise longer to be, a source of expense, not of revenue, to any Government that owns them. As for their inhabitants, they include all kinds, good, bad and indifferent, as do most other countries, but the large majority of them are of a complexion already sufficiently represented here, and that may be among the reasons why the proposed bargain has elicited no offer as yet.

Our collection of tropic islands is already of considerable size and wide variety. We have no real need for more of them in our business as now conducted. It would be money in England's pocket to give us her West Indian islands for nothing, but not in ours to take them, even at that price. In like conditions the Danes half permitted, half persuaded, us to pay high for their group in the same waters, but they weren't really proud of the transaction, and England would hesitate long before parting with possessions warmly devoted to her interests—and her subsidies—and not at all inclined to change their allegiance.

A Correction from Dr. Manning.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES of this morning contains a report of my lecture at Trinity Chapel on the proposals for closer approach toward unity between the Episcopal Church and the Congregationalists.

As to one important point this report gives a wrong impression, which I am sure you will allow me to correct.

I did not say that "confirmation is not mandatory," nor that it is of small importance. What I said upon this point was that, according to the rule and practice of the Episcopal Church, there are situations and emergencies in which those who have not been confirmed are admitted to the Holy Communion; and that in my judgment the great opportunity for approach toward unity offered by these proposals might be regarded as such an emergency.

As to Treating Wives Rough.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senor Blasco Ibanez's statement before the University Club that American women need and crave rough treatment from their men makes one American wife laugh heartily.

I am afraid the American women in Paris that he quotes are of the type that have more money than sense, who leave their husbands at work while they chase off to Europe after excitement. We have such women, but, thank God, they are few and far between, and are never claimed with pride by the rest of us.

Senor Blasco Ibanez should stay longer on this side of the water and hope for a little good luck to meet and know some of the best type of American families, where the man and his wife are friends and companions.

A BALLAD OF H. C. L.

I hired a little Swedish cook to simply make me toast;
She gave me notice half an hour before she took the post,
She said, "I ain't bane work no yob before you valk der ghost"—
And I'm going to move to Africa tomorrow!

I picked a pair of shoes up in an ordinary store.
The shoe clerk said, "They're twenty-three—with laces, twenty-four."
I said, "I'm only pricing—I'm not buying any more"—
And I'm going to move to Africa tomorrow!

I went downtown to buy a suit of reasonable clothes—
The price was ninety dollars for the cheap one that I chose.
I said, "I will not pay it," and the tailor thumbed his nose—
And I'm going to move to Africa tomorrow!

I walked me into a hotel for an inexpensive meal—
I had some mashed potatoes and a thinnish cut of veal.
They charged three silver dollars and I heard each eagle squeal—
And I'm going to move to Africa tomorrow!

I dropped into the theatre, a Broadway piece to see;
I asked for two adjoining seats up in the balcony.
The ticket seller smirked and said, "Eight dollars, that will be"—
And I'm going to move to Africa tomorrow!

I have a small apartment and the landlord's raised the rent;
My lease is not yet broken, but he says it's badly bent.
I can't afford to live indoors—I'll have to buy a tent—
And I'm going to move to Africa tomorrow!

There are no costs in Africa, where living's free for all;
Throughout the pleasant jungle growth no landlords creep and crawl;
One's meals hang on the fruit trees and when they're ripe they fall—
And I'm going to move to Africa tomorrow!

BRITISH RIDICULE WEST INDIAN 'SALE'

Officials Strongly Oppose McAdoo's Suggestion That Islands Be Disposed Of.

CONDEMNED BY A FINANCIER

Adoption of the Project, He Says, Would Afford Only Temporary Relief to Exchange.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 5.—W. G. McAdoo's suggestion concerning the sale of the West British Indies to the United States has come as a complete surprise to official circles here.

"Selling the British Empire on the installment plan," was the description of it given to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent by one authority, while another remarked; "I had never heard before of granting self-determination by a forced sale."

Inquiries at the Colonial Office brought denial that anything of the proposal was known there, and the correspondent was referred to the statement on the subject made some months ago by Lord Milner, who was then Colonial Secretary. At that time Lord Rothermere, in an article on the difficulties of the British financial position in his newspaper, The Sunday Pictorial, had spoken of the possibility of selling some of the West Indies. His suggestion immediately called out emphatic protests from the population of the islands, and to prove that the Government had nothing to do with the proposal, which he said had not been laid before him, Lord Milner issued a strong official denial. The Colonial Office took the position that there had been no change in the situation since then, and that Lord Milner's statement held good.

A financial expert, in analyzing the McAdoo suggestion, said to the correspondent that it had no merit from a merely financial point of view. Granted that England would ever consent to such a bargain, and that the United States would be willing to give enough for the islands to wipe out the British debt to America, the relief it would afford, he maintained, would be only temporary. It might for the moment improve international exchanges, but it could not keep the sovereign at par, for that, he said, was deprecated in New York on account of European, not merely British, indebtedness in the United States.

France and Italy and most of the other countries of Europe come to London to buy bills on New York, and so long as they are in debt to America exchange must be depreciated. Consequently, he argued, the net result of such a transaction would be that England would have lost some of her valuable possessions and would still find exchange against her.

LONDON, March 5.—It is expected that the proposal to sell the British West Indies to the United States as a means of helping balance the war debt of Great Britain will be discussed in the House of Commons by Premier Lloyd George probably on Monday of next week.

Pending the Premier's statement, members of the Government display unwillingness to express their views for publication. Opinions obtained privately, however, indicate that the proposal, if it were formally presented, would not be considered.

END OF STATE EXCISE BOARD

Governor Vetoes Appropriations to Keep It in Operation.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 5.—The State Excise Department was today put out of business by Governor Smith, who refused to approve an item of $77,395 in the $2,830,864 Deficiency Appropriations bill enabling the department to continue until the end of the fiscal year.

"Now that the Federal amendment is in full force and effect the question arises as to the regulation by this State of a liquor traffic," said the Governor. "There exists now no such traffic and therefore there can be no justification for the expenditure of the State's money for the regulation of a business now prohibited by Federal amendment."

He also eliminated appropriations for positions in the department, including those of nine attorneys and special agents and detectives and suggested that legislation be immediately enacted to designate County Treasurers in sixteen counties now having a Special Deputy Excise Commissioner for the collection of liquor taxes to take their places.

BANK FIXES MARRIAGE RULE.

Chicago Reserve Restricts Clerks Paid Less Than $125 Monthly.

CHICAGO, March 5.—A book of rules for employes of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, circulated today, says: "No male employe receiving less than $125 a month salary will be permitted to marry while in the service of this bank, without first taking the matter up with the chief clerk."

"The sum set in the book is the minimum on which an employe can risk a matrimonial venture," said C. R. McKay, Vice Governor of the bank, who added that the rule was "imperative."

"The bank officials believe that is the least sum on which two may live in these days," he said.

MINE WORKERS BAR ALIENS

But Ohio Union Will Help Foreigners to Gain Citizenship.

COLUMBUS, O., March 5.—The United Mine Workers of Ohio, in session here, amended their constitution, making citizenship compulsory on all members of the organization.

The miners also decided to conduct an educational campaign among aliens, giving them every assistance necessary in preparing for examinations for complete citizenship.

President John Moore told the miners they could not expect to wield much influence as an organization at the ballot box if they did not possess the right of suffrage.

Speaker Sweet Defends His Stand.

Speaker Thadleus C. Sweet of the Assembly, who spoke last night at the Kings County Professional Guild in Brooklyn, defended his course against the Socialist Assemblymen and said that his critics were for the most part suffering from the delusion that these Socialists were of the old-fashioned type, whereas they were really militant revolutionaries.

"As long as I am in public life," he said, "just so long will I continue to fight any organization that does not stand for American principles."

ROSETTI DRAWING FOR $320.

Sale of Dr. Goldstein Collection Ends, with Total of $11,429.

Returns for the sale of the collection of original drawings, by old and modern masters, of Dr. Max A. Goldstein, President of the St. Louis Art League, which closed last evening at the American Art Galleries, were $11,429 for the 736 numbers, the evening sale bringing $3,928. A sanguine drawing, "Head Study," a fine and characteristic work of Dante Gabriel Rosetti, brought the highest price of the evening, going to E. R. Grassberger for $320.

A "Study for a Portrait," by Sir Joshua Reynolds, pen and ink drawing with wash in sepia and brown, a woman's head with a broad brimmed hat, went to Joseph Larocque for $110. "The Crucifixion," charcoal drawing with sanguine and white, attributed to Guido Reni, went to Miss Ruth Teschner for $42.50, and Sir Joshua Reynolds's "Sketch for the Portrait of Miss Ingestre-Maryon," ink and wash drawing, went to Miss Tescaner for $120.

Thomas Rowlandson's "The End of the Hunt," water-color drawing of a beautiful English landscape, went to E. Q. Brown for $325; Rowlandson's "The Wedding Party," water-color and pen drawing, went to J. Kern for $100, and Turner's "View of Coblenz," pencil drawing, with tinting in blue and brown, went to Mr. Kern for $100. A beautiful signed drawing by Rubens, "The Adoration," pen and ink, with wash in bistre, went to A. Ottinger for $57.50.

DEINODON NOW ON DISPLAY.

Museum Has Terrible Tooth Dinosaur 60,000,000 Years Old.

Latest arrival among prehistoric monsters at the American Museum of Natural History is the deinodon, or "Terrible Tooth," an eleven-foot-high dinosaur, whose skeleton is now to be seen in Dinosaur Hall with others of his kind. Terrible Tooth was a carnivorous animal, twenty feet long from the tip of his nose to the tip of his tail. He was built for speed as well as for power, and no man could possibly have escaped him.

However, it is reckoned that the deinodon lived some sixty-odd million years ago, before the human race had come into being. Dr. W. D. Matthew, the museum's authority on vertebrate paleontology, says that only man's very, very remote ancestors were then living and that they were a race of small opossums who knew how to keep out of the way of dinosaurs and made war on them by sucking their eggs.

This was in the great cañon of what is now the Red Deer River, in Alberta, Canada, which was originally the playground of Terrible Tooth. It is rich in skeletons of dinosaurs, and this particular one was found there by Charles H. Sternberg three years ago. It was a warm country in Terrible Tooth's day, with palms and tropical trees, and a broad inland sea which extended from the Gulf of Mexico to the Arctic Ocean.

TITLE COMPANY WINS SUIT.

Court Holds Concerns Have Right to Draw Up Legal Papers.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday decided that real estate title insurance companies have the right to draw up legal papers necessary to the conduct of their business. The ruling of the court was made in a decision reversing two convictions against the Title Guarantee and Trust Company.

The prevailing opinion of the Appellate Division was written by Justice Harrington Putnam. He said in part:

"This contract of sale, deed and mortgage were drawn as part of the examination and insuring of property to be covered by the defendant's policies. Such a contract of sale which fixes the terms of the deed can hardly be held to be outside the scope of defendant's chartered powers. They are acts incidental to its business and especially if necessary to place in an insurable condition the title to be guaranteed. Necessarily the insurer must supervise the instruments of transfer, otherwise the title would not be in an insurable condition. Hence I am of the opinion that both the informations (convictions) should be dismissed."

NEW TRAFFIC TOWERS TRIED

Police Rehearse One-Way Street Plan in Fifth Avenue.

In preparation for making Fifth Avenue a one-way street in the rush hours, the Police Department, under supervision of John A. Harriss, Special Deputy Commissioner in charge of traffic, held a rehearsal with the new signal towers yesterday afternoon. Preliminary experimenting was done last Sunday, but it was desired to familiarize the towermen with their new duties and to perfect in their rôles the men who will assist direction from the corners in particularly busy spots.

A circular explaining the new regulations for the avenue now is being prepared by the Traffic Squad and soon will be sent broadcast among all concerned. Meantime gradual efforts will be made to acquaint all drivers with the new conditions in the hope of instituting the system without serious hitch.

In Mr. Harriss's office yesterday afternoon it was said that the one-way trial, which was postponed when the streets became snow-clogged, probably would be started in about ten days and that ample notice would be given.

GEDDES TO SAIL APRIL 3.

Denies That He Blamed Church for Sinn Fein Movement.

LONDON, March 5.—April 3 has been tentatively fixed as the date of departure of Sir Auckland Geddes, the new British Ambassador to the United States, for New York.

Sir Auckland said this morning that he had been misquoted in what purported to be interviews with him in which it was declared he had characterized the Sinn Fein movement as "practically a religious scheme." Sir Auckland declared:

"In the first place, I have granted no interview since my appointment to the Washington post. What I was quoted as saying must have been founded on my conversations of Tuesday last, in which I employed the platitude that Sinn Feinism is an intensely national movement.

"I have always believed the Irish complexities more political than religious. I think my reported optimism over the new Home Rule bill is understandable, since I participated in its framing."

MAY PRINT ALL TESTIMONY.

Illinois Judge Rules as to Privilege of Newspapers.

CHICAGO, March 5.—The privilege of a newspaper to publish, and the public to be informed of, any testimony given in open court, whether this testimony be true or false, was upheld in a ruling made today by Judge Oscar M. Torrison of the Circuit Court. It is the first time on record that this question of privilege has been decided specifically by an Illinois court.

Judge Torrison held not only that a newspaper is entitled to publish such testimony, but, alsod that the guilt or innocence of any person injured by the testimony has no bearing whatever on any action for libel, brought by that person against the newspaper because of its publication.

The ruling was given in the form of instructions to the jury which had heard the evidence in a suit for libel brought by Henry J. Earnest against the Chicago Tribune.

BERGDOLL ORDERED TO COURT-MARTIAL

Judge Hand Refuses Plea for Trial as a Draft Evader in a Civil Court.

DECISION MAY BE APPEALED

Deserter Taken Back to Governors Island Handcuffed and Guarded.

Judge Learned Hand in the United States District Court yesterday dismissed the writ of habeas corpus calling upon the Department of the East to show cause why Grover Cleveland Bergdoll should be tried by court-martial rather than in a civil court for alleged violation of the Selective Service act.

Considering the case from the defendant's petition alone, Judge Hand said it seemed as "destitute of merit as any I have ever encountered." This decision puts Bergdoll again into military custody, and the rich young Philadelphian's trial by a general court-martial on a desertion charge will be resumed on Governors Island this morning, after only a day's delay.

Bergdoll's counsel, however, have not given up hope, and spoke yesterday of going to Washington in the endeavor to obtain a stay from the Supreme Court. Henry Weinberger, one of Bergdoll's lawyers, raised the point that if Bergdoll had not registered for the draft he could have been convicted of a misdemeanor in a civil court with a maximum sentence of one year, but having obeyed the law, so far as registering was concerned, he faces death, life imprisonment or a long term of years if convicted by military court of desertion.

Although an Executive order issued last April returns court-martial sentences for desertion to the peace-time maximum of eighteen months, the prosecution will try for a stiffer sentence, should the court convict Bergdoll, because the alleged offense was committed before the publication of this order. The action of the Supreme Court as to the jurisdiction of a military court in the case of a man who never put on a uniform, but who disobeyed the draft call, and the finding of the Bergdoll court-martial will have an important bearing on the prosecution of 171,000 men who failed to answer the draft.

Bergdoll appeared at the Federal Building yesterday handcuffed, under guard of a Sergeant and a private wearing their side arms. As on the day before, he wore a tie with stripes similar to the color arrangement of the Victory ribbon worn for participation in the World War. Mrs. Emma Bergdoll sat with her son during the proceedings.

Weinberger submitted a statement from Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe and Dr. Menas S. Gregory, alienists retained by the defense, to the effect that Bergdoll was not insane, but when frightened had no control over his mind or body. The Chairman of the Philadelphia Draft Board, Weinberger told the court, had issued a statement to the newspapers in which he said that Bergdoll would be treated as a deserter for failure to respond to the call of the Board. Because of this action Bergdoll ran away.

When the draft officials mailed a notification to Bergdoll's home that he would be inducted automatically into the military service on Aug. 8, 1918, Bergdoll had been in hiding for nearly a year, and never received this notice, Weinberger pointed out. This statement prompted Judge Hand to ask, "Do you mean to say that by running away, a man may avoid being inducted into the army?"

Weinberger then advanced the contention that only after a draft evader had been convicted by a jury in a civil court could he be inducted automatically into the army.

Francis G. Caffey, Federal District Attorney, opposing Weinberger's motion, argued the case for the military authorities by citing the facts contained in the defendant's petition.

In his decision Judge Hand said that he would consider the case on the defendant's petition alone. Allegations that Bergdoll's state of mind was such that when frightened he exhibited a desire to escape, he held, were irrelevant, and seemed to show "that the man was merely a moral coward."

"The facts determine the jurisdiction of a court-martial," Judge Hand concluded, "and I therefore dismiss this writ and decline to exercise my jurisdiction."

Weinberger's request that Bergdoll be placed in custody of the United States Marshal pending appeal to the Supreme Court was denied, and the prisoner was returned to Governors Island to reappear this morning before the court-martial.

FAVOR WHEAT INQUIRY.

Senate Committee Reports Out Resolution Involving Grain Corporation.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Senator Reed's resolution proposing an investigation of the United States Grain Corporation and the use of its funds as affecting wheat prices was reported out favorably today by the Contingent Affairs Committee of the Senate, to which it was referred for expense authorization.

Attorney General Palmer sent a letter today to Chairman Calder, saying some reports of the Senate debate relating to alleged profiteering in wheat left an implication that the Department of Justice had failed to act. This implication he denied, saying that department agents at Portland, Ore., and other places were investigating charges of price manipulation made by the Spokane Grand Jury.

DENY CAILLAUX SENT TIP ON GERMAN CODE

Poincare Deposition Contradicts Charge Made by French Ambassador to Brazil.

SENATE REGRETS TIME LOST

Members Want Examination of Witnesses Curtailed, but Bourgeois Opposes This.

PARIS, March 5.—Members of the Senate, sitting as a high court for the trial of former Premier Joseph Caillaux, charged with having intrigued with the Germans for the promotion of a premature and dishonorable peace, showed some impatience at the trend of the evidence today, Prosecutor Lescouve having already informed the court that the Agadir negotiations, which have comprised all the evidence thus far, were not included in the charges against Caillaux.

Senator Cornet, cross-examining Maurice Herbette, formerly chief clerk in the Foreign Office, after the latter's testimony concerning the Agadir treaty, asked him if he knew anything about the charges against Caillaux as far as intelligence with the enemy were concerned. Senator Bouvrie forestalled an answer by requesting the court to discuss whether further evidence concerning Agadir should be accepted.

Leon Bourgeois, President of the court, pointed out that as the preliminary investigation had dealt with pre-war facts, the defense had the right to refer to them. Hence, he said, it was impossible to bar pre-war questions from the case. The Senators then expressed agreement with the views of M. Bourgeois.

The evidence brought out today showed that cipher telegrams from the German Embassy in Paris to Wilhelmstrasse from 1901 to 1911 might as well have been sent in plain language, as the German code was on open book to the French Foreign Office throughout these years.

A deposition of Alexandre R. Conty, French Ambassador to Brazil, charging that Caillaux divulged to Baron von Lancken-Wakenitz, then German Chargé d'Affaires at Paris, the fact that the German code was known to the Foreign Office, causing an immediate change in the cipher, was contradicted by the deposition of former President Poincaré, whom M. Conty gave as his authority for the charge.

The accused produced what he termed corroboration in letters from Alfred von Kiderlen-Waechter, former German Foreign Secretary, in which Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, former Imperial Chancellor, was continually referred to as "a little beast" and the Kaiser as "a piece of fur." The defense claimed these letters proved that Germany was aggressive and wanted war.

Documents submitted by Caillaux in an effort to refute testimony regarding an alleged threat by him against the life of King Alfonso of Spain will be read later at a private sitting of the court. This announcement was made at the opening of today's session by Leon Bourgeois, President of the court.

Caillaux himself conducted the cross-examination of witnesses today, apparently taking his cue from the displeasure several times expressed openly by some of the Senators at the tone adopted by the accused's counsel.

M. Caillaux has borne up well during the trial and has shown no signs of fatigue than many of the Senators.

HAZE GIRL FRESHMAN.

N. Y. U. Sophomores Say Miss Kanowitz Broke Class Commandment.

Sophomore girls in the College of New York University on Thursday afternoon kidnapped Miss Elsie Kanowitz, a freshman, who lives at 754 West 180th Street, kept her sequestered in a hall bedroom somewhere, clad in a bathrobe, for eighteen hours, and released her yesterday afternoon after painting their class numerals on her forehead with iodine. The hazers accused the girl of violating one of the ten commandments laid down for freshman conduct, which reads:

"Thou shalt not converse with members of the male sex in the corridors, halls or classrooms."

The sophomores telephoned Miss Kanowitz mother Thursday night so that she would not be alarmed. The girl, who took good naturedly her plight, which some attributed to her being both pretty and popular, sent her mother word that she was "having a fine time." None the less, Mrs. Kanowitz hurried to the university authorities and demanded that they effect her daughter's release. Inquiry was made among the sophomores, but the guilty were not found, and so nothing could be done till the girls voluntarily decided their captive had been reduced to the desired state of subjugation.

Miss Kanowitz was lured from her classroom in the Washington Square building by a false message that the Dean wished to see her in his office on the eighth floor. The conspirators seized her in the corridor, bound and gagged her and hustled her into a waiting taxicab.

Space Reduction Urged

THE demand for advertising space in The New York Times is so great that, due to The Times own limitation on the number of pages and the shortage of newsprint paper, it is frequently impossible to publish all the advertising offered for a given day.

The New York Times suggests that an advertiser usually taking a space of four columns should reduce his announcement into two columns of space. Advertising copy may be effective in small space, and by reducing space advertisers will not suffer by the omission of announcements—21 columns of which are crowded out today.

E. E. SMATHERS BUYS THE LYRIC THEATRE

LIKELY TO REMAIN THEATRE

Turfman Profits $400,000 by New Lease on Holdings at 46th St. and Fifth Av.

E. E. Smathers, the turfman, has added the Lyric Theatre, in West Forty-second Street near Broadway, to his extensive New York realty holdings. He acquired the property for a reported consideration of $650,000 yesterday from the executors of the estate of Reginald De Koven, the American composer, who died suddenly in Chicago last January.

The Lyric, which is operated by Sam S. & Lee Shubert, Inc., under the terms of a lease that still has five years to run, covers a frontage on Forty-second Street of only twenty feet, but it runs through the block to Forty-third Street, where it measures 119.4 feet.

Mr. Smathers said last night that in view of the existing lease he had made no plans for the future of the property, so that it would probably continue to be operated as a theatre for some years to come. In the same block is the notable group of amusement buildings which establish it as the principal theatrical centre in the city. Its neighbors include the Rialto, the Republic, the Selwyn, the New Amsterdam, the Eltinge, the Harris, Liberty, Cohan & Harris and the American Theatres. The Selwyns are now erecting two new buildings in the same block which are expected to be ready for occupancy this Summer.

The Lyric was opened by the Shuberts Oct. 12, 1903, with Richard Mansfield starring in "Old Heidelberg." Walter Hampden, in "George Washington," opened at this playhouse last Monday night.

Mr. Smathers profited $400,000 Wednesday by effecting a cancellation of the lease with Tiffin Products and making a new lease with I. Miller & Sons for twenty-one years on the property which he owns at the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-sixth Street. The old lease called for $60,000 a year, while the new lease was made on the basis of $80,000 a year.

Several mails were received at Albany after the Governor's departure from that city.

Justice Pendleton has served on the Supreme Court bench since 1911, when he was first appointed by Governor Dix and then elected for a term ending Dec. 31, 1921. In 1907 he was appointed Corporation Counsel by Mayor McClellan.

EDWARDS MEN FORCE MARSHALL INTO FIELD

Petition for Vice President and Governor Filed in Indiana —McAdoo Too Late.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 5.—Petitions to place the names of Vice President Marshall and Governor Edwards of New Jersey on the preferential primary ballot in Indiana, as candidates for the Democratic nomination for President, were filed with the Secretary of State this afternoon just thirty minutes before the time limit for filing had expired.

Petitions for Vice President Marshall and William G. McAdoo had been prepared for several days, but as the fact that the Vice President had said he wished the Indiana delegation to go to the convention uninstructed, friends of both had refrained from filing the petitions.

Supporters of Governor Edwards sprang a surprise this afternoon and filed a petition in his behalf. Marshall supporters, watching the office of the Secretary of State, immediately filed their petition, but friends of the former Secretary of the Treasury did not have time to get their petition in before the office was closed.

OHIO PAPER HITS HARDING.

Says Favorite Sons Are Dropping Out, and Labor Opposes Senator.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 5.—What is termed the "favorite" son ambush is denounced in a leading editorial in The Columbus Dispatch today. From one of the leading independent newspapers of Ohio, this utterance gave a jolt to the candidacy before Ohio voters of Senator Warren G. Harding. The Dispatch says:

"Secure in their splendid isolation, despising the primary and abhorring State initiative in any guise, they yet planned to play on State emotions to control the States for their own purposes.

"The plan has gone awry. Favorite sons in numerous instances are dropping out or are in process of being put out.

"The labor press of the State is taking up the battle against Harding and charges that his candidacy is used as a method of controlling the Ohio delegation. It says that the backers 'will again bow down to a richly deserved defeat.'"

HAMILTONS CUT RED TAPE.

Official in Custom House Helps Make Sailing Arrangements.

The fact that Laurens Morgan Hamilton and his bride, who was Mrs. Gertrude Warren, did sail for Havre, France, on the French liner Lafayette Thursday, Feb. 26, was admitted yesterday by one of the steamship officials, who explained that the company had had nothing to do with the keeping of their names off the list of passengers. The whole affair had been arranged by an official at the Custom House who got the necessary sailing permits for Mr. Hamilton and his bride and had their passports visèd at the French Consulate. The cabin on the Lafayette had been reserved in the name of Warren.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton boarded the Lafayette early on sailing morning by the third-class gangway, where their friend in the Customs was waiting to receive them. They remained concealed in their cabin until the liner left at noon. The knowledge of their sailing was confined to two or three persons outside of the very intimate friends of Mr. Hamilton and his bride. There was a rumor in the Custom House yesterday that Byron R. Newton, Collector of the Port, intended to hold an investigation.

TO FIGHT BROADWAY TRACKS

Association Will Raise $25,000 for Removal Campaign.

The Board of Directors of the Broadway Association decided at a meeting at the Hotel Astor yesterday to raise a fund of $25,000 for a campaign for removal of the surface car tracks from Broadway and the substitution of motor buses or other transportation.

Action was taken after a report of the Transportation Committee was read by John David, its Chairman. The report showed 77 per cent. of the recent referendum ballots sent out by the association in favor of the removal of the tracks.

Among those favoring the move were the United Cigar Stores, Chatham and Phenix National Bank, Gimbel Brothers, Manhattan Life Insurance Company, Consolidated Gas Company, Hanneviy & Co., Hotel Imperial, R. & G. Corset Company, Ajax Rubber Company, Everett Heeney & Co., Empire Trust Company, National Cash Register Company and Park & Tilford.

Judge Nash Rockwood has been employed as special counsel and a special force will be employed in the campaign.

DISMISS CONCERT MASTER.

Boston Symphony Trustees Drop Fradkin for Disobeying Conductor.

BOSTON, March 5.—Frederi Fradkin, concert master of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was dismissed by the Board of Trustees tonight.

In a letter to Fradkin, Frederic P. Cabot, President of the Trustees, said that the dismissal came because "Fradkin had failed to keep his written agreement, in that he did not comply with the instructions of the conductor (Montaux) in reference to his deportment and order at the public rehearsal this afternoon."

Fradkin did not rise at the concert when Monteux motioned to the orchestra to stand in acknowledgment of applause after the playing of a symphony. Mr. Fradkin said afterward that he thought the applause was meant for the conductor.

A controversy between members of the orchestra and the Trustees over salary increases, resulting in an announcement that many members had affiliated with the American Federation of Musicians, came to a head at a concert last night when Monteux is said to have refused Fradkin the use of his dressing room.

A committee representing union members of the orchestra issued a statement upholding the concert master.

Judiciary, Lawyers and City Officials Attend Simple Service in St. Patrick's Cathedral.

NO EULOGY, AS HE WISHED

Jurist Buried in Lutheran Cemetery in Family Mausoleum Consecrated by a Catholic Priest.

In spite of the inclement weather, nearly 2,000 persons attended the celebration of low mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday morning, which preceded the burial of Supreme Court Justice Philip Henry Dugro in the Lutheran Cemetery at Middle Village, L. I. The State, county and city courts being closed a half day in respect for the former Justice, all the Supreme Court Justices, Judges in Special and General Sessions, court attaches, city employes, lawyers, jurors and other friends of the late Justice were present.

In a torrent of rain the funeral party left the Hotel Savoy, at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, of which he was the owner and builder and where he died of pneumonia last Monday, at the age of 64. Traffic on the avenue having been cleared by the police, who were in charge of Inspectors John O'Brien and Thomas V. Underhill, the automobile cortege proceeded slowly to the Cathedral, three cars heaped high with floral tributes in the van. Then marched Justice Dugro's associates on the bench and about 150 court attendants, who were headed by Edward J. Minch of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

The honorary pall bearers were Justice Frank C. Laughlin of the Appellate Division, Supreme Court Justices Leonard A. Giegerich, Vernon M. Davis, Joseph E. Newberger, M. Warley Platzek and Charles L. Guy; former United States Senator James A. O'Gorman, Robert L. Luce, Morgan J. O'Brien, Henry A. Gildersleeve, Edward E. McCall, John F. Ries, Louis C. Raegener, Charles F. Murphy, Herman Ries, Samuel Goldsticker, Clifford Boese, John J. Pulleyn, Congressman Thomas F. Smith, Judge John F. McIntyre of General Sessions and Chief Justice Edward F. O'Dwyer of the City Court.

Members of the family at the funeral were his wife, his daughter, Miss Antonia Dugro, his son, Charles H. Dugro, his sister, Mrs. M. S. Buttles, and his nephew, M. D. Buttles, Jr.

Explaining why the interment took place in a Lutheran cemetery, one of the members of the family said that some years back the late justice's father purchased a plot of land in Middle Village which he later sold to a Lutheran society. When he was informed that the society intended using the land for a cemetery he requested that a plot be reserved for him and his family. Subsequently a mausoleum was built and consecrated by a Catholic priest. It is in a vault in this mausoleum that the body of his son was placed.

From 1901 to 1898 he represented the old Thirty-fourth District in Congress, being at that time Democratic leader of Chautauqua County. In the Fall of 1898 Governor Black appointed him to the Supreme Court and he was elected the following year. From 1902 to 1907 he was on the Appellate bench.

While on the Supreme Court bench he was accused of having misused his power as Congressman in the distribution of contracts and jobs. He was tried by the Assembly, but the necessary two-thirds vote to remove him was not obtained.

Skolny Clothes

TRUE WORKERS

The path of Skolny Clothes for young men and boys is along the old highway of doing work well—and doing it in the truest spirit. Common sense, integrity, conscientious application, perseverance—these are the qualities that contribute to the superiority of Skolny Clothes. They are the qualities that win in all walks of life.

Facts You Should Know

What many know, we wish all to know, hence these words to inform you that you can choose a Skolny Suit or Overcoat, and put it on with the absolute conviction that you can get no better fabric, fit, style or service, even though you submitted yourself to the custom-tailor's tape-line; subjected yourself to the custom-tailor's long delays, endured the custom-tailor's several fittings, and paid the custom-tailor's excessive prices.

In simple English, everything implied by the word "VALUE" finds its highest expression in Skolny Clothes.

Why then give so much valuable time to the custom-tailor and $50.00 to $75.00 more than dealers ask for SKOLNY Ready-for-Service Clothes?

Vital question for you to answer.

DOUGLAS JOINS GIANTS' SQUAD, BUT HAS NOT YET SIGNED CONTRACT

DOUGLAS REPORTS AT GIANTS' CAMP

Holdout Pitcher Predicts That He and McGraw Soon Will Come to Terms.

ONLY THREE ABSENTEES

Fletcher, Gonzales and Toney Expected to Arrive at San Antonio. in Near Future.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 5.—Phil Douglas, one of the most prominent of the Giants holdouts, drifted into town today, and, after a talk with the other players at League Park, Douglas went to the stand and viewed the workout. He said that he expected that he and Manager McGraw would be able to come to an adjustment of his contract.

It will be remembered that Douglas took French leave of the Giants last season at a critical time in the race, and Manager McGraw has not forgotten this serious breach of discipline. Douglas has been working all Winter in the South and is in good shape. His home is in Tray City, Tenn. He has been under suspension, but has been reinstated.

Although it was cold this morning and there was ice and frost in the shady corners of the baseball field, the sun soon warmed up the chilly atmosphere and Manager McGraw put his big squad of players through the snappiest practice of the week. In spite of the fact that McGraw has taken on considerable weight in Cuba this Winter he was the liveliest individual on the lot today. He was able to instill a lot of enthusiasm into the youngsters, and the recruits got their first open-fire attack of criticism during their workout. Manager McGraw watched the work of all the recruits closely and freely commented on the way they played. His advice was kindly but effective.

Takes Turn at Bat.

"You should have run for that one," he would tell Horie when he missed a grass cutter. "Go back for those," he advised young Armstrong when he missed a tough hopper. During the batting practice McGraw took his turn at facing the pitchers and showed that he could hit them just as well as in the old days. McGraw's batting style has always been a classic in baseball. His left-handed swing is short and snappy. He faces the pitcher fearlessly and walks right into the ball.

Rube Benton and Arthur Nehf were the regular pitchers who lobbed the ball up to the batters this afternoon. Then the youngsters took a hand at the flinging. McQuade, Johnson, Virgil Barnes and Burfiend all took a hand at feeding the batsmen something to hit at.

Earl Smith, the catcher, took his first batting practice and poked the ball hard and often. With the coming of Douglas, all the players are now on hand, except Gonzales, Toney and Fletcher. Gonzales signed last Fall, and is now on his way here from Cuba. Toney signed last Fall, but has not yet been heard from. Fletcher has not signed, but will report here tomorrow, and no trouble is expected in getting his signature to a contract.

McGraw sent all the players to work the sliding pit this afternoon. One by one, the players took a dive feet first into the sand to accustom themselves to the fall away slide. It is a fortunate thing that the baseball park here is so large, because, with a squad of more than forty men, considerable space is needed to work.

The outfield was thick with fielders, and at times there was danger of getting in each other's way. There are so many infielders that Manager McGraw uses two or three combinations in succession every afternoon.

Recruits Impress McGraw.

Artie White and George Armstrong have already taken McGraw's eye. In the first lineup of the season, against the San Antonio club tomorrow afternoon, White will get a chance at short and Armstrong will be given a trial at third. Both of these players have real big league style, and experience is all they seem to need.

The lineup which McGraw will use tomorrow will be:

Burns, left field; Young, right field; White and Sicking, short stop; Kauff and Staatz, centre field; Kelly, first base; Doyle and McGuire, second base; Snyder and Smith, catchers; Hubbell, Winters and Ben Kelly, pitchers.

It is understood that there is still a chance that Manager McGraw may put over a trade with Cincinnati. It is rumored about the Giants' camp that McGraw would like to get infielder Larry Kopf from the Reds and has made them an offer which includes Zimmerman and Benny Kauff. While it is known that McGraw is reluctant about breaking up his present powerful outfield combination, he would consent to do it if he could strengthen the infield with the presence of a player of Kopf's ability.

Today's practice was the snappiest the players have had, and, although the odor of liniment is still strong about the clubhouse, the lameness of the players is gradually wearing away.

KONEYS WIN CLOSE GAME.

Defeat Johnstons at Robins' Training Camp, 4 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 5.—Manager Robinson called off both morning and afternoon workouts here this morning on account of cold weather, but after midday it became warmer and the manager of the Dodgers decided to hold an afternoon session at Barr's Field. Although many of the members of the squad were missing when the players started working out, the rotund leader had enough on hand to stage another scrub game and the fourth battle between the Johnstons and Konetchys was played. It lasted six frames, and the final score was 4 to 3 in favor of the Koneys. It was this team's first victory in the series.

The deal between the Robins and Cardinals has not been completed. If it goes through Jeff Pfeffer, who is holding out, will go to the Mound City for an outfielder and a boxman who pitches left handed. Pfeffer has been in the Robins' camp here several days and is anxious to have his future status determined.

The score by innings:

Johnstons	0	0	0	2	1	0	—	3

Red Sox's Park Not to be Sold, According to Settlement Terms.

BOSTON, March 5.—Terms of settlement of dispute between Harry Frazee and Joseph J. Lannin, respectively President and former President of the Boston American League Baseball Club, have been agreed upon, counsel for Lannin announced today. If the settlement is concluded the auction sale of Fenway Park, home grounds of the club, which has been ordered by the courts, will be canceled. Lannin claims Frazee owes him $262,000 in connection with the sale of the club.

Browns to Set Major League Style with Sunday Uniforms

The distinction of "Sunday best" in wearing apparel finally has hit baseball. Since the time that the first Sunday game was played in the major league the Sunday suit has not differed one iota from the suit which the player wore each day from Monday to Saturday, inclusive. The idea of having a special suit for Sunday never got any serious attention until last Summer, when Phil Ball began to consider the idea. Phil happened to gaze on his St. Louis Browns one Sunday and decided that the uniforms did not fit his idea of Sunday cleanliness. Now he has sent in an order for a special set of uniforms for the Browns to wear in all Sunday games on their home grounds, and Jimmy Burke has been informed that the suits are for Sundays only. The Browns may finish far down in the penant chase, but they bid fair to win honors as the best dressed team in the league, especially on Sundays.

YANKS ARE HALTED BY COLD WEATHER

Manager Huggins Calls Off Practice and Golf Devotees Try Skill on Links.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 5.—Roger Peckinpaugh, shortstop of perennial eminence, arrived this morning, and made known his advent to Manager Huggins. On account of cold weather the Yankees did not practice today, but when they take the field tomorrow they will have a real infield. Peck is here to play short, and nobody adorns that defensive gap more than he, and Chick Fewster has recovered sufficiently to set about winning the tertiary post. Whether Fewster wins the place or not depends on how well Aaron Ward, for two years a substitute, operates there, and also on the showing of Bob Meusel when he gets here. This California crew is slow in arriving. Hannah, Meusel and Lewis are all supposed to be on the way, but it's a wide country.

Two other absentees are Bill Piercy, the pitcher, and Warren Collins, the Texan pitcher, who has been ailing, and therefore delayed. There are twenty-seven men here now.

Some of the crowd played golf today and some played golf pool. Shawkey Ruth and Pratt went to the links and battled twenty-seven holes. Shawkey was the best. He won the money with a 92 for the first eighteen holes. Ruth, with a strong finish, tore off two threes on the last two holes, and tied Pratt with a 99. Lefty O'Doul played, too, but he is a beginner, and was useful chiefly in bothering some real players.

The links were soft and swampy from rain, and even such experts as Tom McNamara, Tom Kerrigan, Pat Doyle and Eugene McCarthy had their troubles, though they excelled somewhat the baseball four. Mike Gonzales of the Giants passed through town, en route to San Antonio. He called on Huggins, who was his boss when Hug was a National League impresario.

CURLEY ENTERS CLAIM.

Says Carpentier's Theatrical Work Will Be Under His Direction.

Georges Carpentier's initial theatrical appearences in this country will be held under the management of Jack Curley, wrestling promoter, according to a statement issued by Curley last night. The wrestling promoter claims to have a contract providing for a tour of ten weeks, beginning May 3. Provision is made, according to Curley, for an option on Carpentier's services for an additional five weeks, in the event that further theatrical work by the European heavyweight boxing champion might be successful.

Carpentier, according to latest reports, will leave France with his bride, March 13. The French idol is expected to arrive here about March 22. He is coming to this country principally in quest of boxing bouts against some of the leading American heavyweights. In the interim, however, while these matches are being arranged, Carpentier will engage in a theatrical career, according to Promoter Curley.

The French champion has been associated variously and often with reports of a match with Dempsey. Following publication of one of these reports, officials of the Robertson-Cole motion picture company issued a statement claiming to have engaged Carpentier for screen work which would preclude the possibility of his engaging in a bout either on July 4 or Labor Day. Curley's claims, therefore, only further complicate an already considerably confused situation.

In his statement Promoter Curley declares he has been quietly negotiating with Carpentier for several months. The wrestling promoter, however, kept his own counsel and did not divulge details of his communications until definite plans had been made for the proposed tour. Curley, according to the statement, has received the signed contract of Carpentier, in which the French heavyweight agrees to the tour of ten weeks under the wrestling promoter's management.

BOXING FOR KENTUCKY.

Special to The New York Times.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 5.—Passage of a bill today by the House of the Kentucky Legislature, 40 to 30, to legalize twelve-round boxing contests, insures enactment of the law, its backers say, the bill already having been favorably reported in the Senate, with sufficient votes pledged to make its passage Monday certain. The measure provides for no-decision bouts. Amendments to prevent admission charges were killed. Supporters of legalizing boxing pointed with emphasis to the fact that the army placed boxing in its camp training activities. Legion members gave their support to the bill. A State Athletic Commission will control the contests.

CYCLE SPRINTS ON TONIGHT.

Curtain Raiser to Six-Day Race Attracts Crack Riders.

Three $1,000 events will be features of the sprint meet card tonight at Madison Square Garden as a prelude to the six-day race which starts at midnight tomorrow, when Governor Edwards of New Jersey will send fourteen teams away on their long journey.

Alfred Goulet and Oscar Egg will meet tonight in two contests for points, the first being a mile sprint, best two out of three, to be followed by a pursuit race, one point to count for each contest. Frank Krramerwill meet Arthur Spencer in another mile match, best two out of three. Spencer is teamed with Drobach in the six-day race and won the sprint title from Kramer in 1917.

The third $1,000 event will bring together the Coburn-Kopsky and Speissens-Buysse teams in a pursuit race and three-quarters of a mile sprints between Buysse and Coburn and Speissens and Kopsky. In another pursuit race the Acme Wheelmen and the U. S. I. will meet, three riders to a side.

The professional riders in the big race will meet in a five-mile open and a three-quarters of a mile handicap. The amateurs will decide a three-quarters of a mile handicap and a two-mile open. Immediately after the sprint meet the riders in the six-day race will fit their camps up and tune their mounts to be in readiness for the six-day grind.

TITLE SWIM WON BY ELEANOR SMITH

Captures Metropolitan 100-Yard Championship by Defeating Charlotte Boyle.

Miss Eleanor Smith of the Morningside A. C., women's national senior 200-yard breast stroke swimming champion, last night annexed the Metropolitan A. A. U. 100-yard championship title in one of the keenest races seen in the local district in recent years. The Morningside A. C. swimmer, fighting off a determined challenge by Miss Charlotte Boyle of the Women's Swimming Association, former titleholder, registered her victory by a matter of inches in 1:10 1-5, an improvement of two and two-fifth seconds on the time recorded last year by Miss Boyle in winning the title. Miss Helen Wainwright, Women's Swimming Association, finished third. Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey, holder of national laurels, was another starter, but retired from the race early because of an accident.

The event was held under the auspices of the Women's Swimming Association in the West Sixtieth Street pool. An impressive burst at the start gave Miss Smith an advantage of about two yards, which she gradually increased, until at the half-way mark the former Columbus, Ohio, mermaid was leading Miss Boyle by about ten yards. Here Miss Boyle started a spurt in which she slowly decreased the distance separating her from Miss Smith, but the latter, meeting the emergency, put added strength into her strokes, and managed to retain the lead to the finish.

By reason of her victory Miss Eleanor Smith duplicates a distinction recently accorded her twin sister, Ruth. Under the constitution of the Morningside A. C., a member gaining a championship title is honored with a life membership in the organization. Ruth Smith gained this distinction, the first time it was awarded a woman member of a club formerly exclusively for men in the history of the local A. A. U., two weeks ago, when she won a national title at Cleveland. Her victory last night made Eleanor eligible for a similar reward.

The summaries:

HORTON SUCCEEDS SMITH.

New Selling System at Golf Club Results in Change of Pros.

The Wykagyl Country Club of New Rochelle, one of the busiest golf clubs in Westchester, has engaged Elijah Horton as professional golfer for the season, to succeed Alex Smith, resigned. Behind the bare announcement, which was made last night, of a change in professionals there lies a controversy which has recurred time and again over the status of a professional golfer. Horton is to direct the instruction at Wykagyl on a new basis. He will be retained under a flat salary. Wykagyl has decided to try the experiment of conducting as a club function the sale of golf balls and accessories, habitually a part of the professional's privileges.

The new plan will be watched all over the country with keen attention, for it includes not only phases of extreme importance to golf professionals, but a matter which is certain to interest the other country clubs. The experiment is by no means original. For years golf societies in the British Isles tried to retain professional instructors under straight salary. The club itself bought and sold for a profit sticks, balls and accessories, similar to the method to be tried at Wykagyl. But, with noticeably few exceptions, the innovation was discarded after a few years. It was found impossible to hire the really prominent pros because of the disparity between the salary and the proceeds from the sales. Similarly, it was found that club committees, not as closely in touch with manufacturers as the professional golfers, bought an inferior quality of golf supplies, and there was little incentive for the professional to offer advice, since he was not a partner in the profits.

BUYS BIG YACHT SULTANA.

Paul Le Fere Pays Mrs. E. H. Harriman $150,000 for Craft.

It is reported that Mrs. E. H. Harriman has sold the ocean-going steam yacht Sultana to Paul Le Fere, a wealthy lawyer of this city. The price mentioned is $150,000.

Upon her return from foreign waters, where she saw active service during the war, the Sultana was taken to a yacht yard in South Brooklyn and is now in dry dock undergoing repairs and a complete overhauling. Her elaborate interior decorations were removed prior to her entry into naval service, and these are being replaced, in addition to which it is expected that she will be equipped for the use of oil instead of coal as fuel.

Columbia Fencers Win.

BRUNSWICK, Me., March 5.—Columbia University fencers defeated Bowdoin tonight by 9 5 to 4 score.

GRAHAM WILL PLAY NEWTON FOR TROPHY

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 5.—F. C. Newton of Brookline, captain of the Massachusetts Leslie Cup team and also Staten Island champion, and Sam Graham of Greenwich, will meet in the 36-hole final contest for the President's Trophy tomorrow. Newton and B. P. Merriman of Waterbury both went out in 37 in today's semi-final round and were all even at the turn, but the Brookline player drew away on the inward journey and won by 3 and 2. The bye holes were played and each man had a 77.

Graham started out badly in his match first two holes. He reached the turn in with Carman Messmere of Ardsley, and indulged in a losing 6 on each of the 38 in spite of the poor beginning and finally won by 5 and 4.

Stymies got in some of their deadly work in the second division matches. N. E. Sprague of Inwood was stymied twice by John N. Stearns, Jr., of Nassau and knocked Stearns's ball into the cup when trying to play around one of them. Stearns won by 6 and 5. G. S. Proctor of Oakmont stymied C. L. Becker at the fifteenth when the match was all even and followed it up by winning the seventeenth in 3 after driving into a trap. Proctor won, 2 and 1.

The longest match staged at Pinehurst this season was played today in the sixth sixteen. C. K. Harry, Jr., of Worcester defeated H. S. Rackham of Detroit at the twenty-third hole.

The scores of the first two divisions follow:

SEMI-FINAL ROUND—Sam Graham, Greenwich, defeated Carman Messmere, Ardsley, 5 and 4; F. C. Newton, Brookline, defeated B. P. Merriman, Waterbury, 3 and 2.

Second Sixteen.

SEMI-FINAL ROUND—G. S. Proctor, Oakmount, defeated C. L. Becker, Ekwanok, 2 and 1; J. N. Stearns, Jr., Nassau, defeated N. E. Sprague, Inwood, 6 and 5.

GOLFER IS DOWN—NOT OUT.

Ousted in 10 Straight Holes, Then Reaches Final in Beaten Eight.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 5.—Here is a chronicle that is probably unique in the annals of tournament golf.

C. H. Baerwald of the Blue Mound Country Club, Wisconsin, and John Carley of Sharon, Pa., qualified for the thirteenth division of the Spring tournament at Pinehurst on Tuesday. On Wednesday both of them lost their respective matches by ten down and eight to play, losing all of the first ten holes in rapid and uninterrupted succession.

On Thursday, playing in the beaten eight, both came through to the semi-finals with flying colors. Baerwald and Carley came together today in the semi-final round and Carley won the match and passed on into the finals of the tournament. It remains now for Carley to win the trophy in his division to round out this almost unbelievable tale of the survival of the most submerged.

DIEGEL BREAKS A RECORD.

Special to The New York Times.

BOCA GRANDE, Fla., March 5.—The open golf tournament here was won today by Leo Diegel of the Detroit Country Club, who will join the South Shore Country Club at Chicago this Summer. Diegel led the field by a margin of five strokes, with a total of 77—69—146 for the thirty-six holes.

That 69 smashed the course record and included two mashie shots holed out on the second and ninth together with a series of four 3s on the last four holes. Two of the 3s were birdies.

There was a triple tie for second money among Wilfred Reid, 78—73—151; Jock Hutchison, 75—76—151, and Mike Brady, 73—78—151.

State College Five Is Winner.

New York State Normal College of Albany vanquished the Manhattan College basket ball quintet last night on the De La Salle Institute court, by a score of 34 to 19. The Capital City quintet, showing a superior attack and a clever defense, outplayed the Manhattan collegians throughout the contest and led from start to finish. At the end of the first half the Normal five was in front by a margin of 18 to 5.

Picked Hockey Team Will Represent U. S. in Olympiad

PITTSBURGH, March 5.—The United States hockey team to compete in the Olympic games will be selected from the players which compose the Pittsburgh, Boston and St. Paul teams, it was announced here today. A copy of the rules governing the contests came a few days ago and it was discovered that every player must be a citizen of the country he represented. As a number of the Pittsburgh players are not citizens of the United States, it was then decided to select the best players from Pittsburgh and Boston and to take additional men from St. Paul. Each country will be entitled to a team of seven men and seven substitutes, and United States officials want the substitutes to be just as good as the regular players.

RECORDS FOR POWER BOATS ARE BROKEN

Miss Nassau and Hoosier V. Set New World's Figures in Regatta at Miami.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI, Fla., March 5.—Two world's records were broken this afternoon at the Sixth Annual Miami Power Boat Regatta on Biscayne Bay, one of them sensationally. The Miss Nassau, owned by C. B. Johnston, of Cleveland, on a rough two-mile course, which was not fast, did 42.4 miles per hour, beating the previous world's record for open displacement boats, that of 36.3 miles per hour, made by the Neverthing, of Detroit, Sept. 1, 1919.

The new record holder was built by Christoper Smith, of Algonac, Mich., and it is claimed that she can turn up fifty miles. She had an accident just before today's race, smashing her propeller against a log, and did not speed up to over 1,700 revolutions, whereas she is capable of 2,200. This boat is all the more interesting because she is of the runabout type and her maker's first attempt at a displacement boat built for high speed. She is fitted with a 400 horse-power rebuilt Liberty motor.

Johnson's accident, just as today's race was called, caused him to start six miles behind the others, but in spite of this he put up a wonderful exhibition in driving.

The race was won by Neverthing, previous world's record holder, owned by William Kemp, which covered the twenty miles in 34.14, at the rate of 35.1 miles per hour.

The other world's record broken today was in the express cruiser class for boats having a speed of over twenty-five miles per hour in a ten-mile event. The race was won by Hoosier V., owned by J. R. Duckwall of Indianapolis, which broke the existing world's record of 27.4 miles an hour by traveling 31.36 miles for the entire distance. The Gar, Jr., owned by Garwood of Detroit, was in the lead up to shortly before the finish, when she had engine trouble. Shadow V., owned by Carl Fisher, Indianapolis, was outclassed for the first time in her many years of successful racing.

In time trials later in the afternoon, Miss Nassau ran the fastest two miles ever made by a displacement type boat, averaging 42.4 miles per hour in the express cruiser class, for eighteen to twenty-five miles. The Mariposa, owned by D. G. Joyce of Chicago, beat Miss Milwaukee, owned by W. C. Morehead of Milwaukee, by about three lengths in a six-mile event. The total time was 22 minutes 24 seconds.

MRS. HURD WINS AT GOLF.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 5.—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Pittsburgh won the silver foils championship title at Pinehurst today with a total of 98—90—188 for the thirty-six holes. Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow of Philadelphia, who was defending her title and who led the field by a margin of two strokes at the conclusion of the first round, finished second in 94—95—189. Mrs. John D. Chapman of Greenwich, who held second place last night at 90, came in third with a total of 96—95—191.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 5.—Pennsylvania gained the championship in the Intercollegiate Basket Ball League here tonight by defeating Cornell, 20 to 15. This was the Quakers' eighth straight victory in as many games. They have only two remaining league contests. Even by losing them both they would still stay at the top, for both Yalé and Princeton have lost three games. Permanent possession of the Heppe Trophy accompanies the championship, which is Penn's third.

The game was nearly an hour late in starting, but once under way it proved a great battle in which the Quakers showed more skill and smoothness, but were forced to extend themselves to the limit by Cornell's stubborn playing. Both teams put up a first-rate defense, Penn's work in this line in the second half being so good that Cornell failed to penetrate for a single field goal.

The guarding of Sidman of Cornell, who kept Sweeney, Penn's prolific point scorer, from scoring a single basket, was one of the features.

The Quakers got the best of the start and ran up a 7 to 2 score by the middle of the first half. Molinet, Porter and Spader then put Cornell ahead, and Porter's final basket gave the Ithacans a 11 to 10 lead when the whistle blew. In the second half the Ithacans were powerless to reach the basket, while Graves, McNichol, Peck and Rosenast managed to add points. The lineup:

PENNSYLVANIA (20)		CORNELL (15).
Rosenast	L. F.	Porter
Sweeney	R. F.	Molinet
Graves	C.	Rippe
McNichol	L. G.	Sidman
Peck	R. G.	Spader

Field goals—Graves (3), McNichol (2), Rosenast, Peck, Porter (2), Molinet, Spader. Foul goals—Sweeney, 6 out of 7; Porter, 7 out of 8.

Substitutions—Penn: Zucker for Rosenast. Referee—Tom Thorp, Columbia. Umpire—Mr. Metzdorff. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

TIGERS BEAT COLUMBIA.

Close Basket Ball Season with Victory by 32 to 28.

Columbia finished its season on the home court in the Intercollegiate Basket Ball League last night, losing the return game with Princeton, 32 to 28. Several weeks ago the New Yorkers trounced the Tigers at Princeton.

Princeton displayed an entirely new brand of basket ball, although its lead was never commanding over Columbia, in the last half it was always ahead. Legendre carried the burden of work for Princeton, for it was he who had the assignment to guard Columbia's star forward, Johnson. The Princetonian did his job brilliantly. Not only did he hold the big colored point getter to a single basket, but Legendre found time during the game to toss three goals from the floor himself. He also scored six foul goals.

The lineup:

PRINCETON (32).		COLUMBIA (28).
Netts	L. F.	Johnson
Hynson	R. F.	Farrell
Dickinson	C.	Watson
Wittner	L. G.	Stutz
Legendre	R. G.	Weinstein

Goals from floor—Hynson (5), Legendre (3), Netts (2), Opie (2), Wittner, Watson (5), Farrell (2), Stutz (2), Johnson, Weinstein. Goals from fouls—Legendre 6 out of 9; Netts, none out of 1; Farrell, 6 out of 14.

Substitutions—Princeton: Margetts for Dickinson, Opié for Wittner, Wadleigh for Legendre. Columbia: Stutz for Farrell, Farrell for Stutz, Tynan for Stutz.

Referee—Joe Deering, Manhattan College. Umpire—G. N. Messer, Springfield Y. M. C. A. College. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

BOSTON, March 5.—Percy Collins of Chicago wrested the amateur balk-line billiard championship of America from David McAndless, Jr., also of Chicago, tonight in one of the most gripping struggles that have marked the annual Class A 18.2 tournament. The flaxen-haired billiardist from the Illinois A. C. outplayed and outgeneraled the former titleholder, 300 to 225 in fifty-one innings of play in the final and deciding match at the Boston Athletic Association, but only after a game, uphill struggle.

Although the score would make it appear a listless contest, it was rather the head work and cautious playing of both the challenger and the defender that drew it out so long. Collins adopted a defensive style of play which seemed to be leading him to defeat, but his safety game prevailed before the half-way point was reached, when McAndless lost his ability to solve his opponent's methods.

Starting out in defense of his title, McAndless clicked off 35 points in his second inning, assumed the lead and led until the thirty-fifth inning, when Collins's wide-open leaves completely threw his opponent off his game and demoralized his playing to the extent that he had merely to plug along and register to the finish, although his every point was contested bitterly until the forty-fourth inning, when McAndless apparently gave up the battle as a lost cause.

In the early sessions the defender displayed a delicacy of draw and a judgment of speed that was marvelous to watch. He seldom drove, and nursed his angle shots with almost perfect precision. Collins apparently was miles away from his game, but his stroke softened and improved as the match progressed.

The scores by innings:

The Appleby brothers, each a representative of the Amateur Billiard Club of New York, were pitted against each other in this afternoon's match and Edgar T. defeated Francis S., 300 to 224. Forty innings were played. Edgar got away to a fine start with a 42 in his opening frame. The loser scored the best run of the game with a 46.

Playing some of the most careful billiards that has been seen in the national three-cushion championship tournament of the American Amateur Billiard Association, William Blumenthal last night defeated Joseph Cosgrove at Joe Thum's Academy and jumped into the lead for the title. The score was 50 to 46, and the playing was just as close as the final tally indicates. Due principally to the fact that both of the players steadfastly refused to take any chances, the match lasted 111 innings.

While but eight deliberate safeties were called by the players—seven by Blumenthal and one by Cosgrove—they all resorted to continual defensive tactics by persistently playing off the white ball. Blumenthal took the lead at the outset and held it until the twenty-sixth inning when the score stood 42 to 11. In the next round Cosgrove passed him and remained in front until the 100th inning. The score then was 45 to 44 in Cosgrove's favor and he seemed to have an excellent chance to maintain his advantage, scant as it was. But Blumenthal injected a cluster of two points into the proceedings at this juncture, regained the lead and managed to hold it to the end.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—The University of Pennsylvania defeated Columbia University in a swimming meet here tonight, 39 to 14. Columbia won the polo match, 15 to 7.

The water polo result gives Columbia the intercollegiate championship in all probability. Only one game remains to be played, that with C. C. N. Y. at New York Tuesday. Since City College has already lost to Columbia and has not won a single game, Columbia can expect little opposition. In order for Princeton to wrest the title Columbia would have to lose to C. C. N. Y. and the Tigers would have to win both remaining games.

Yale practically clinched the swimming title last week.

Harvard Rowing to Begin on Lynn Harbor Monday

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 5.—With the Charles River basin under several inches of ice, Harvard oarsmen arranged today to transfer their rowing activities to Lynn harbor in order to obtain an early start on water, preliminary to a hard schedule. The West Lynn Boat Club offered the Crimson crew the use of its quarters, and three shells and a coaching launch will be sent there in time to begin practice Monday. Harvard's first race is with Annapolis on April 24.

AMERICA IS DRAWN AGAINST SO. AFRICA

Preliminary Matches in Challenge for Davis Cup Are Arranged in Sydney.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., March 5.—Holland has been added to the list of challengers for the Davis Cup, the chief lawn tennis trophy of the world, and the draw to decide upon competitors has resulted in Great Britain opposing Holland and the United States meeting South Africa in the first round.

Following the announcement of the draw at Sydney, N. S. W., for the Davis Cup international tennis matches next Summer, officers of the National Tennis Association expressed tonight the unofficial opinion that the preliminary rounds would be played in England. In the case of the United States and South Africa, which meet in one of the first rounds, it was felt that neither nation would care to make the long trip to the courts of the other. The conditions would be entirely different from those governing the British Isles-Holland match.

The United States association plans to send a team to compete in the English championships at Wimbledon in June, and South Africa will probably do likewise. The African colonies were represented at Wimbledon in 1919 and also played their Davis Cup preliminary against the British Isles in England, losing four out of five matches. If the same plan is followed next Summer, it would appear likely that two, if not all three, preliminaries will be staged at or near Wimbledon.

So far as can be judged from available information here, England should defeat Holland and the United States should win from South Africa in the first round, the winners then to meet for the right to challenge Australasia. There is little information available in this country on South African tennis material for the Davis Cup team. One of the leading players, Altkin, was defeated in an early round of the English championship last season by Watson Washburn of this city in three out of four sets, the scores being 8—6, 6—8, 6—0, 6—0.

RICHARDS BEATS PIERCE.

Scores Victory in Harvard Club's Handicap Squash Tourney.

John Munroe, J. A. Richards, Geoffrey Taylor and F. S. Whitlock, all members of the Harvard Club's Class B squash tennis team, were among the winners yesterday in the club's Winter handicap tournament in the same class, the first three advancing to the third round, while Whitlock began his participation in the tournament with a victory over L. G. Morris, allowing the loser six points per game, and himself playing from minus five.

The summaries:

First Round—F. S. Whitlock (—5) defeated G. Morris (+6), 15—8, 17—15.

Second Round—Geoffrey Taylor (—5) defeated P. K. Rhinelander (+6), 15—9, 15—6; John Munroe (—5) defeated A. Richard (+6), 15—11, 15—15; J. A. Richards (—5) defeated E. P. Pierce (+6), 15—8, 15—11; G. O'Neill (+6) defeated G. Lowell (+6), 15—2, 15—10; R. H. Cobb (+10) defeated E. H. Hemenway (scratch), 15—18, 15—18, 15—11; A. S. Locke (+6) defeated J. G. Blaine, Jr., (+10), 17—18, 15—8, 15—12.

GOULD WINS SQUASH MATCH

Defeats Worcester in Columbia University Club Tournament.

Jay Gould, the playing through squash tennis champion of the Columbia University Club, yesterday joined Fred S. Keeler in the final round of the current club tournament by winning his semi-final match from J. N. Worcester in three one-sided games, 15—6, 15—7, 15—0. The world's court tennis titleholder was in remarkable form, hitting with tremendous speed and following the ball closely all around the court. His constant succession of brilliant shots gave his opponent little chance to get started, and the winner was never headed after jumping into an early lead.

In Class B, R. V. Mahon became a semi-finalist yesterday through the default of R. E. Wigham. This leaves only one match to be decided in the third round, Harold Kellock meeting F. S. Simonds. I. H. Cornell and R. L. Strebeigh are already in the semi-finals of Class B.

PHILADELPHIA GETS MEET.

Intercollegiate Athletic Games Will Be Held at Franklin Field.

The annual track and field championships of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America will be held at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, this year. A resolution recommending that the fixture be awarded to the Quaker City was adopted last night at the meeting of the I. C. A. A. A. A. Executive Committee. The probable dates are May 28 and 29, since it has been the custom of the past to conduct this fixture on the last Friday and Saturday in May, and there has been no indication of a change. Last year the meet was conducted in the Harvard Stadium, at Cambridge.

The recommendation that Franklin Field be the scene of the games was made after consideration of invitations from several other colleges and universities eager to receive the collegiate track and field attraction. While no definite information was disclosed, it is understood Princeton was among the institutions which sought the meet.

The Executive Committee of the I. C. A. A. A. A. adopted a resolution providing that one-fourth of the proceeds from the meet be donated to the American Olympic Committee, as a contribution from the I. C. A. A. A. A. to the Olympic Fund, which is being raised to defray the expenses of Uncle Sam's team.

The applications for membership in the association of Williams College and the University of Cincinnati were approved, but similar applications from Holy Cross and Boston College were not recommended favorably, for the reason that neither application clearly defined entrance requirements.

All matters considered last night will be submitted this afternoon in the annual meeting of the I. C. A. A. A. at the Columbia University Club. The meeting will be convened at 2 o'clock. Definite dates will be allotted for the championships at this session.

The possibility of a revival of intercollegiate indoor relays, which have been discontinued for three years, will be one of the chief matters for consideration at the meeting. This meet was held for the third time in Philadelphia, March 3, 1917, and was discontinued in 1918 and 1919, because of the war. With the present flourishing conditions of athletics in the colleges, it is regarded as extremely likely that the association will recommend a resumption of the indoor fixture next year. As a result of last night's session, however, there will probably be a modification of the status of the meet.

DUC DE GUISE WINS, BUT IS DISQUALIFIED

First Victory for 4-Year-Old Maiden Disallowed at New Orleans Because of Foul.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 5.—J. O. Talbott's Duc de Guise, a rather disappointing son of Star Shoot, which, though four years old, was still in the maiden class, developed enough speed in the third race at Jefferson Park today to score the long-desired victory, only to have the fruits of it denied him through a disqualification. He led home a field of thirteen maidens over the five-and-a-half-furlong course, but committed a foul in the stretch and the race was awarded to Speedyfoot.

There was little question that Duc de Guise was the best in the race and would have won brackets if he had kept a clear course. He was away from the barrier with a flying start and, though never able to get far away from the bunch, he held the lead all the way to the wire. Speedyfoot, which had suffered interference at the start and had been knocked back, came on gradually and finally moved up to within a head of the leader at the sixteenth pole.

Jockey Troxler saw the necessity of urging Duc de Guise and applied the whip, and as he did so his mount swerved over and bumped into Speedyfoot, knocking the latter over toward the rail and throwing her out of her stride. Before she could recover Duc de Guise had gone on to win by a length and a half and Speedyfoot was just up in time to save second place by a neck from Gorham. The foul was so plain that the judges did not hesitate about the ruling, and though Duc de Guise had been a 9 to 5 favorite, he was disqualified and the next three moved up, this giving third to Neg.

The feature of the day was the Beyl Fund Purse, a sprint at six furlongs, which went to Apple Jack 2d, which defeated Stepson by three lengths, with Dixie Carroll third. This race failed to attract any of the real good sprinters, and with only platers contending Apple Jack had little difficulty in getting home first.

T. H. Wilson's Morning Face, a speedy two-year-old filly, scored her second successive victory in the opening race when she led home eight youngsters at four furlongs. Morning Face did not break quickly, but once in motion she moved up steadily and appeared to have the most speed. She finally caught Aunt Deda about a sixteenth from home and won in a driving finish by half a length. Joe Goodman was third, not more than half a length back of Aunt Deda. Aunt Deda was four lengths in front at one time, but tired badly in the stretch.

Hub Players Beaten by Pittsburgh A. A. by Score of 7 to 2.

PITTSBURGH, March 5.—The Pittsburgh Athletic Association hockey septet showed its superiority over the Boston A. A. team tonight by winning by a score of 7 goals to 2.

The locals had the edge by three goals to one at the end of the first period, Nagle scoring first, followed by McCrimmon, who twice netted the puck in the second period. About the middle of the first period the Boston players seemed to get together in defense a little better, and held the home team from scoring, while Bright made one goal for the visitors. However, the last period saw the locals run wild, and they soon began to bombard the Boston net.

RACE COURSES WIN POINT IN MARYLAND

Prince Georges Bill Passes Third Reading in House by Vote of 61 to 31.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 5.—The race tracks have scored first blood in the bitter fight in the General Assembly in which their continuance in Maryland is involved. The owners and followers of the tracks are greatly encouraged by the result of the test vote today, and now predict that the sport will continue in this State. The Prince Georges Racing Commission bill passed its third reading in the House today by a vote of 61 to 31. The vote on the bill came up following a motion by Mr. Gamble of Howard County to postpone action until next Thursday.

Mr. Gamble explained his motion by saying that by next Thursday he expected all the racing bills would be reported by the Judiciary Committee. The motion was opposed by Mr. Roberts of the Prince Georges delegation, who contended that the bill was a local measure affecting the Bowie track, and the people of the county were almost unanimously in favor of it.

Mr. Niles contended that the bill was not a local measure, but was Statewide in its effects, and should be treated as any of the other Statewide racing bills.

On the rollcall Mr. Gamble explained his vote and said that Commander Ross, who owns a stock farm in Howard County, had stated Tuesday that he had spent $000,000 in Howard County and did not want to see the money lost.

Pending before the House is the anti-gambling bill offered by Delegate Andrews and the Burke licensing measure, besides the bill for the Bowie track. In Prince Georges County the Judges have heretofore passed on the racing dates, but objections were offered and the track last year operated under an old law.

The stand by the House is accepted by some as sounding the death knell of the Statewide commission idea with the licensing provision outlined in the Burke bill.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Foreign Exchanges Display Much Strength—Stocks Gain Under Cautious Buying.

Whatever the major influences in the foreign exchange market, the fact was made evident yesterday that the recovery of sterling rates was having a beneficial effect throughout the entire market. The rise of 9¾ cents to the pound for demand bills on London made the full improvement 19 cents since the upward swing began on Thursday morning, and in addition to further strong advances in French, Belgium and Italian quotations there was an important forward swing of neutral country rates. Exchange on Scandinavian centres was particularly pronounced and the Swiss quotation advanced fully 23 centimes. In the absence of definite news of European gold shipments the financial community was inclined to weigh early rumors with conservative scales and the impression grew stronger as the day advanced that really large quantities of the metal were not likely to come in the near future. The transfer to New York from London and possibly Paris of moderate amounts from time to time, it was felt, would have a worth while sentimental effect and such movements might begin at an early date. The receipt of $8,000,000 gold from Canada and information that an equal amount was on the way was considered an operation purely for Canadian account with the end of lending support to Canadian exchange rates in this country. The comment of banking circles disclosed a growing feeling that financial and industrial events in Europe as the Spring advanced would disclose more favorable features than had been expected in many quarters. This in itself would tend to promote buying of exchange, for the purpose of speculation, to a large degree.

Sterling bills closed at $3.65 after reaching a point as high as $3.68¾. Naturally the rising market persuaded many exporters to withhold offerings for better prices, with the result that the supply of bills available for dealings was more restricted than the day before. There were additional engagements of gold at the Sub-Treasury which brought the total to go on the next steamer to Buenos Aires up to about $21,000,000. The heavy withdrawals this week will figure in today's statement of the Federal Reserve Bank and it will be interesting to study the proportion of metallic reserve to loan and deposit liabilities.

The stock market moved forward in early transactions, but the stimulus afforded by rising exchange rates was not long lived. Call money lent at 9 per cent. until a plethora of offerings near the close of business forced the rate down to 6 per cent. Stocks were by no means weak, however, even though they lacked the energy of Thursday's upturn and the more active industrial issues recorded gains of 1 to 3 points and more in the final price list. Railroad stocks did very little. The speculative community have been forced to realize that an easing tendency of call money has not betokened an actual easement of credit for market purposes. In addition to the shortage of means for financing purchases of securities, the Street is cautious in advance of the heavy tax payments and Government financial operations at the middle of the month.

SWIFT STOCK FOR WORKERS.

Packing Company Announces Partial Payment Purchase Plan.

Lewis F. Swift, President of Swift & Co., announced yesterday that plans had been perfected so that men and women who enter the employ of the packing company in 1920, will have the chance to become stockholders on the partial payment plan. Stock has been set aside for sale under the plan to new employes at par. The stock is selling about 20 per cent. in advance of par and the employe who subscribes is assured of a profit. In speaking of the plan Mr. Swift said:

"We believe that the man who owns his home is a better citizen than the man who rents," said Mr. Swift, "and on the same principle, the man who is a part owner of Swift & Co. will take a greater pride in the performance of the company.

"Under this plan, it is provided that after six months' service, the new employe may purchase stock on a graduated plan based on salary. The minimum, of course, would be one share and the maximum, five shares. Two years are given the employe to pay for the shares."

M'ADOO'S TAX PLAN AROUSES CRITICISM

BOND PROPOSAL DECRIED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Criticism of the proposals made by William G. McAdoo to reduce taxation $1,600,000,000 a year in the next two years by the issuance of new long-term bonds, and abandonment for that period of the program for repurchase of Liberty bonds, was made tonight by Senator Reed Smoot, Republican, of Utah, a member of the Senate Finance and Appropriation Committees.

"The remarkable proposals made by Mr. McAdoo," said Mr. Smoot, "seem to me to illustrate that a man possessed of a Presidential bee will sometimes stop at nothing. The idea of a former Secretary of the United States Treasury making the suggestion that the Government issue bonds against the defunct payment of interest on obligations of foreign countries, which we are not even sure we will be able to collect, seemed so amazing to me that I scarcely was able to believe it when I read the proposal."

Senator Smoot held that the proposals by Mr. McAdoo were unsound and dangerous, and deserved attention from this angle, regardless of any political significance they might hold.

Leaders in the Senate predicted there was no chance of Mr. McAdoo's proposals being adopted by Congress. It was held that to adopt his ideas for tax reduction would mean depression in the bond market and a serious financial situation.

While officials were unwilling to discuss the McAdoo proposals in detail, there was a suggestion that the incident would be permitted to pass over without notice. So far as could be learned, Mr. McAdoo did not consult any official of prominence before making public his ideas.

The McAdoo program, it was held, would at the best mean an addition of $2,000,000,000 to the public debt, along with the interest that must be paid on the new bonds, and the interest on the $500,000,000 in outstanding bonds, the redemption of which he proposed to postpone for two years.

TELL NEED FOR HIGHER FARE

Hudson Tube Co. Compares Increase of Expenses and Income.

In a pamphlet issued by the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad, entitled "Why an Increased Fare Must be Charged on the Hudson Tubes," it is explained that the request for an eight-cent fare between New York and New Jersey was due to the impaired credit which is such that it is impossible for the company to raise money to buy new equipment to improve the service.

The pamphlet sets forth that in 1914 the road carried a total of 59,900,000 passengers, while in 1919 this had grown to 92,000,000. In the same period the cost of running a car one mile increased to 37 cents from 13.21 cents, while the passenger revenues per car mile increased only 41 per cent. In 1914, the company asserts, out of every dollar of operating revenue, 38.58 cents were spent in running the road, while last year it took 55.93 cents out of every dollar.

Referring to the period of Federal control during which the property was operated by the Railroad Administration, the pamphlet says:

"Unlike other interstate roads it has had no general increase of rates under the Federal Railroad Administration. The only amelioration effected has come from a readjustment of its division on the joint rate between New York and Newark, which has affected only about 20 per cent. of the total traffic."

A. J. POSTON AGENT OF S. P.

His Appointment and Reopening of Traffic Offices Announced.

The announcement was made yesterday by Lewis J. Spence, Director of Traffic of the Southern Pacific Company, that A. J. Poston has been appointed General Agent, Passenger Department of the company, with offices at 165 Broadway.

On March 1 the company re-established a large number of traffic offices throughout the country for the convenience of the public. These are located in New York, Atlanta, Baltimore, Birmingham, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Denver, Detroit, Kansas City, Memphis, Mexico City, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Salt Lake City, San Diego, and Seattle.

It is expected that several of the leading companies will also reopen similar offices, although the consolidated ticket offices organized during the first year of Federal control will be maintained for a period yet to be decided.

Discounts Canadian Silver Money.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 5.—Canadian silver is being discounted at Minneapolis banks today, for the first time in many years. A 20 per cent. discount on all silver money from the Dominion has been ordered by the Minneapolis Clearing House Association.

WORTHINGTON PUMP PROFITS INCREASE

Balance Available for Dividends of $3,257,064, or $17.28 a Share on Common.

GROSS INCOME DECLINES

Falling Off Made Up by Reduction in Federal Taxes—Liberty Bond Holdings.

The Worthington Pump and Machinery Corporation in its annual report for last year shows gross business of $32,074,592, a decrease of more than $10,000,000 from the preceding year. After all charges and Federal taxes, there was a balance available for dividends of $3,257,064, which was equivalent, after provision for the A and B preferred stocks, to $17.28 a share on the common. The preceding year showed a net income of $3,137,775, or $16.37 a share on the common after preferred requirements. Of the total business done by the company 23 per cent was in the completion of war contracts and the remainder was commercial business.

Gross income was smaller by $2,000,000 than in the 1918 report, but the falling off was made up by the reduction in Federal taxes. In 1919 $2,000,000 was set aside for this purpose, whereas the same item in 1918 called for just double this amount. The balance sheet shows the strong position of the company as to working capital, current assets exceeding current liabilities by $20,504,990. The surplus of the company stands at $4,352,738, but there is a general reserve of $5,000,000 which is practically surplus, although under another heading. Inventories were reduced by some $3,500,000 during the year just passed. Investments in Liberty bonds at the end of 1919 amounted to $6,240,446, as compared with $5,359,000 in the preceding year.

"Certain contracts for the manufacture of war materials are as yet unadjusted, and only the definitely determined earnings in respect to these have been included in the earnings for 1919. These accounts are now ready for final adjustment, and it is the expectation that definite settlement may be arrived at within a reasonable time. These adjustments include that of the purchase price to be paid for the additions and betterments at the Blake and Knowles Works referred to in the report of the preceding year.

"The cash requirements of the corporation continue to be heavy owing to the increasing volume of business and to the fact that it now requires two dollars in working capital to carry on the operations that prior to the war were done by one, due to the constant increase in labor and material costs entering into the product manufactured, and the indications at present are that the requirement will continue. This has been met through the profits developed, and the corporation has no obligation for notes or bills payable of any character."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Today's Bank Statements.

Rumors that the shipment of some $21,000,000 gold to South America had been canceled were denied yesterday afternoon by bankers who were interested in the operation, and after these denials Wall Street began to reconcile itself to another series of unfavorable bank statements. The gold, it was understood, would come out of the Federal Reserve Bank's stock, and for this reason it was feared today's statement would show a depletion of reserves. But arguments of this kind overlook the fact that the local Reserve Bank can increase its gold holdings, through the settlement fund, by rediscounting with other Reserve Banks, and in this way may well improve its position in time for today's statement. Thus, forecasts of what the display is likely to show are dangerous, and at best are mere guesses.

Dividends and Decisions.

Here is an odd proposition which confronts many who will have to file income tax returns which include receipts of stock dividends. On Monday, March 15, all income tax returns must be in. On that day, too, the Supreme Court of the United States may hand down a decision concerning the taxability or nontaxability of stock dividends as income. But if the decision comes on that day, news of it probably will not become general until some time in the afternoon, say around 2 o'clock. If the decision says they are not taxable and individuals declare them for taxes, what happens? Or, suppose it is the other way around. What then?

Money Easier.

Call money at 6 per cent. and bill rates at fractional recessions from the previous day were two indices yesterday of easier conditions to come. At least, there were those in Wall Stret who were pleased to interpret them that way. After March 15, the tax date, money probably will be easier for a short time, at any rate, for on that day the Treasury has to met maturing certificates of indebtedness of approximately $590,000,000 outstanding in this district, while tax payments to be made then are estimated at not more than $500,000,000.

New Freight and Ticket Offices.

While it has been the beneral impression that the consolidated ticket offices established during the period of Federal control would be carried along well into private control of the railroads, and announcements to that effect have been made, some confusion has resulted. In none of the statements to the effect that the consolidated offices would continue has there been anything to the effect that the well-to-do railroad corporations would not reopen a few of the private ticket and off-line freight offices they maintained prior to Federal control. Several announcements have been made of the reopening of such offices and it is expected that in the aggregate the number finally re-established will mount considerably. It is expected, however, that the retention of consolidated ticket offices will eliminate to a great extent the former numerous competitive line offices in all of the large cities in the country.

Filling the I. C. C.

There was a good deal of speculation in the financial district as to President Wilson's choice of men to fill the three vacancies now existing in the Interstate Commerce Commission. Two of the commissionerships were created by the Transportation act just passed, and one has been vacant for some months. Generally it was hoped yesterday that the President would choose men to fill out the I. C. C. who will step into the organization with open minds, and at the same time will be more or less familiar with railroad questions.

Shipping Agreement Favored.

While it is asserted in local shipping quarters that the new agreement of charter by the Shipping Board is not all that might be desired, it is considered as a step in the right direction, in that it allows private ship owners a great deal more leeway in the matter of ratemaking and the routing of his vessels. In addition the new charter adopted provides for sharing net earnings between the board and the operator acting as its agent. While local ship owners see much to criticise in the new charter, it is being accepted as an improvement on former conditions and possible of change in the future.

German Ship Sale Desired.

While there has been some difference of opinion among local shipping men regarding the sale of the former German merchant ships to the highest American bidders, the majority opinion favors such sale at the earliest possible moment. It is the general desire that everything possible should be done to expedite the placing of American merchant vessels in the new trade lanes before our European competitors have so firmly intrenched themselves in foreign trade that the work of getting in will be more difficult.

Chandler Dividend Increased.

An increase in the dividend rate on Chandler Motor Car Company shares is concrete evidence of the prosperity which attended the operations of automobile companies last year. The Directors yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share, thereby placing the stock on a $10 annual basis. The dividend is payable April 1 to stock of record of March 15. It was about this time last year that Chandler stock began its sensational rise. The shares moved forward rapidly, and eventually the old shares were divided on a three for one basis. A $10 a year dividend on the present Chandler stock is, therefore, equivalent to $30 a year on the old stock. The last payment on the present outstanding shares was $2, which was at the annual rate of $8 a share.

Industrial Company Taxes.

With annual reports coming forth in large volume, operations of industrial companies during 1919 are at last an open book, and it is possible to realize, to an approximate degree the vicissitudes through which they passed in transforming from a war to a peace basis. In the matter of earnings, there is usually to be found a sharp falling off in gross business. On the other hand, the net available for dividends is often larger than in the preceding year. This is usually accounted for by a decided lowering of the appropriation to cover Federal taxes. One large company, a few days ago, reported a higher precentage of earnings available for the common shares than ever before in its history. Looking into the report, however, it was found that the increase was made possible by a cutting down of the Federal tax allowance some $6,000,000. In other words, the lowering of taxes has been responsible for holding 1919 industrial earnings up to the standard of 1918.

Stocks Strong at Opening.

The forward movement which took place in the stock market during the final hour of Thursday held away over yesterday's opening and the first quotations of many issues were well above the previous close. After a slight advance above opening figures, however, prices eased off, the market apparently being called upon to absorb some heavy profit-taking sales. The afternoon found the market irregular, and some of the leading issues were little changed in the final quotations from Thursday's close. Traders are far from confident of the soundness of the long side, the recent fit of blues being of too recent memory to permit of any such condition.

General Motors Certificates.

Trading in General Motors certificates representing the subdivided old shares began on the Stock Exchange yesterday. The turnover amounted to about 65,000 shares, but the price range was narrow, this being governed by the price for the old shares, which were turned in to the extent of some 24,000 shares. The certificates opened at 25, compared with 247 for the old stock, and closed at 25⅝, with the old shares at 252½. It is reported that the exchange of the old shares for the subdivided shares is taking place rapidly, in which case the old shares should disappear before long.

CITY HOLDS UP FUND FOR RICHMOND JURY

MORE DETAILS DEMANDED

County Judge Tiernan Denies Hirshfield Story of Threat to Impeach Mayor.

District Attorney Joseph H. Maloy of Richmond yesterday asked the Board of Estimate to appropriate $2,000 to meet expenses of the Grand Jury investigating the traction crisis in Staten Island brought about by the discontinuance of service by the Midland Railroad Company. Since the Grand Jury was chosen a few days ago, R. L. Rand, James Phillips and Bertram Eadie, vice president, auditor and general counsel, respectively, of the railroad, have been heard by the body.

On motion of Controller Craig the request was referred to the Finance and Budget Committee. District Attorney Maloy was directed to appear and explain more fully the purpose of the inquiry. An amendment by President Van Name of Richmond that the appropriation be granted immediately was defeated.

Mayor Hylan asked President Van Name whether he had stated at the board's traction inquiry on Wednesday that County Judge Tiernan and the Grand Jury were after the Mayor. President Van Name admitted he had, adding that his remarks were based on the charge of Judge Tiernan to the Grand Jury to the effect that the inquiry was to proceed "no matter how high the officials involved."

"Why are they after me and not you?" said the Mayor. "I hope if the President of the Borough of Richmond has any information relative to the County Judge, District Attorney and Grand Jury regarding me he will let me know."

Mayor Alleges Intimidation.

"All the information I have was contained in the charge of the County Judge," President Van Name replied. "This referred to a very high official, and I am not a high and exalted official. I supposed that it referred to you."

"If I had a letter some time ago stating what a Judge of Richmond County was going to do with me," the Mayor continued. "This shows the methods to which certain persons are resorting to intimidate the Board of Estimate. I believe such tactics are a violation of the penal law."

Controller Craig said he had been subpoenaed to appear before the Richmond Grand Jury on Monday, and that he might be able to bring that body before the Board of Estimate. Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield, who also will be questioned, expressed the belief that the inquiry was aimed at the Mayor and other officials of the administration.

"From a conversation I had with the Hon. J. Harry Tiernan, County Judge of Richmond, at the Hotel Astor on the occasion of the State Bar Association dinner, in the course of which he told me he would have the Mayor impeached if certain things did not happen on Staten Island, I became satisfied that the Judge was an unduly interested party in the matter," said Mr. Hirshfield. "Within two or three days after that I reported this to the Mayor in a letter."

Hirshfield's Letter to Mayor.

The letter read as follows:

"Last Saturday evening at the State bar dinner I met J. Harry Tiernan, County Judge of Richmond County, and he greeted me as follows: 'I will have that Mayor of yours impeached before I'm through with him.' I told him that if he had cause for it to go ahead.

"He then told me that if the trolley lines on Staten Island will stop running, he will have your Honor indicted; which I answered that if those who are the lawyers and political tools of the traction corporations on Staten Island will advise the Richmond Light and Railroad Company honestly, the cars will not stop running."

Commissioner Hirshfield said he was told Judge Tiernan called on the Mayor and "profusely apologized for what he had said to me, and, as I understand, promised to be good." Judge Tiernan last night admitted he had had a conversation with Commissioner Hirshfield on the traction situation, but did not recall that he had specifically alluded to the Mayor. He said he told Commissioner Hirshfield that if the Board of Estimate did not wake up and do something he would have the Grand Jury begin an inquiry. He said he had made no apology, but had a "hot argument" with Mayor Hylan, who accused him of working in the interests of the traction trust because he had given Public Service Commissioner Nixon permission to use the County Court House for a meeting on trolley affairs.

"I told the Mayor that the Court House belonged to the people and was the proper place to hold meetings to discuss public affairs from all points of view," the Judge said. "When I left the Mayor shook hands with me and remarked that what I had said had thrown a different light on the subject."

It was said last night that Mayor Hylan would be cited to testify before the Grand Jury during the coming week.

DEALERS ASK COURT TO END COAL CONTROL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—A suit was filed in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia today through the efforts of the Wholesale Coal Association asking that the Director General of Railroads be restrained from continuing "to interfere, in an illegal way, with the orderly distribution of coal." Noah H. Swayne of Philadelphia, President of the association, appears as plaintiff. It is alleged that the handling of coal under the executive order of President Wilson has been bungled to the detriment of many interests.

At the end of the petition the plaintiff requests that the court establish a commission to settle claims between the owners of the coal and the divertees. They also ask that the Director General of Railroads be ordered to show cause why an order should not be issued restraining him from further "illegal interference" with their business.

A few hours after the petition was filed Mr. Hines issued an order setting in motion the machinery for the control and distribution of coal provided for by the executive order issued by President Wilson on March 5. He sets up the old priority list and names various regional and district committees. G. N. Snider is made Chairman of the Eastern Regional Committee, with headquarters in New York.

Mr. Hines also announces that steps have been taken to divert a large amount of coal to New England by water to meet emergency conditions there. The wholesale coal association alleges that the President's control over coal, as granted by the Lever law, has been delegated and redelegated so many times that the coal industry is no longer regulated by the Government in the public interest.

Bucyrus Profits $982,563.

Net earnings of the Bucyrus Company for last year amounted to $982,563 after all taxes and charges. At the close of 1919 inventories have been reduced by about $500,000 as compared with the report at the end of 1918. The regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock has been declared and in addition ½ of 1 per cent. on account of back dividends. Both are payable April 1 to stock of record March 20.

SIX-PIER CONTRACTS FOR $6,738,148 LET

Morris & Cumings Company Will Do Dredging at Cost of $628,000.

$2,500,000 FOR SHEDS

Terry & Tench to Get $3,575,950 for Constructing Docks and Substructures.

Contracts for the construction of six piers on the Staten Island waterfront at a cost of $6,738,148 were signed yesterday in the office of Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert. The contract for dredging went to the Morris & Cumings Dredging Company for $628,800, and for building piers and substructures to Terry & Tench for $3,575,950. Contracts for six pier sheds were awarded to the Bethlehem Steel Bridge Corporation of Bethlehem, Pa., for $2,500,000. The Riverside Contracting Company received the contract for tearing down old buildings on a bid of $33,338.

The contracts allowed 270 days for the dredging and 240 days for substructure work and building piers. Frederick Tench, President of the Terry and Tench Company, said work on the piers would begin within a month.

The Board of Estimate approved plans and form of contract for six other piers which will cost approximately $10,200,000. The twelve piers are between Tompkinsville and Clifton. All piers virtually are of the same length, 1,030 to 11,000 feet, but two of the second group will be 209 feet wide instead of 123 and 130. Four will have double-deck structures.

The Board of Estimate adopted a resolution introduced by F. H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen, to request Congress to include in the pending Rivers and Harbors bill a provision for the dredging of a thirty-foot channel in the entrance to Jamaica Bay, so it may be made accessible to ocean-going steamships.

SPOT COTTON AGAIN SETS HIGH RECORD

The cotton market moved around rather aimlessly yesterday. There was a show of strength at the outset, thanks to the further rise in the foreign exchanges and the widespread circulation of reports of considerable gold imports impending, but the fact that the Liverpool market was down, which, by the way, was entirely natural in view of the way the exchanges were moving, tended to restrict local buying somewhat by those who apparently failed to see the analogy between the fall in Liverpool spots and the rise in sterling here, and there was very little out-of-the-city participation because of the wire trouble which was being experienced in many parts of the country.

Thus, the market went up at the start, gaining a maximum of 33 points for May and 20 to 25 for the other months, and then turned mildly heavy and went off 10 points for near months and 15 to 20 points for the late contracts. There was only moderate activity in the market in the afternoon, and at times it was very dull. The price movement at this time was anything but significant.

Spots again went to high record figures, being quoted at 40.90 cents, as against the previous high record of 40¾ cents, made on Wednesday. There were no sales reported here. In the South the Galveston market moved up ¼ cent to 42 cents. This is a full cent below its high record of last Fall.

Export clearances reported yesterday totalled 21,049 bales, making 128,126 bales for the week. Yesterday's exports were distributed as follows: 14,735 bales to Great Britain; 7,214 bales to the Continent outside of France.

WILL DIRECT SHIPPING HERE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The operating division of the United States Shipping Board will be moved from Washington to New York. This decision was reached at a conference of officials of the board last night. Henceforth direction of the board's great fleet will be carried out from New York.

Transfer of the office personnel will begin at once, and it is expected that within two or three weeks the entire operating division will be installed in New York. J. E. Cushing, director of the division, and G. E. Whitelam, another official, are now in New York making the necessary arrangements.

Executive offices of the Shipping Board will remain here, but this will be a small organization when compared to the New York division. There are said to be 800 employes in each city, and it is understood a saving of about $500,000 annually will be effected through the transfer.

GERMAN BOND LOTS AUGMENTED HERE

Securities Coming in Fairly Good Quantities Since Lifting of Export Ban.

MANY BANKS AWAIT PEACE

Holders of Interim Receipts of Reputable Houses Have Nothing to Fear.

The scarcity of German internal bonds is likely to be overcome within a short time and a good many deliveries to Americans who have contracted for these securities are expected to be completed, for the German Government has removed the embargo against exports of securities and bonds are beginning to come here in fairly good quantity. Until about six or eight weeks ago very few bonds were allowed to leave Germany, officially, and most of those which have reached this country are said to have come by way of Holland and the Scandinavian countries. Now the ban is off and a lot of belated transactions are expected to be consummated soon.

However, the demand for the bonds has been so extensive here that it is apt to require some little time to make all deliveries, but it may be said that those investors who hold the interim receipts of reputable bond houses and banks have nothing to fear. Their bonds have been purchased and as soon as it is possible they will be forwarded. Meanwhile the legitimate dealers are finding the almost interminable delay a source of no little annoyance, for it is not always a simple matter to explain to a customer why his securities do not arrive.

Those dealers of less responsibility, though, who have contracted for the delivery of bonds which they failed to purchase in advance of closing with their customers, are still in more or less precarious position. It is still possible to buy German bonds in great volume, but it is not always possible to purchase the particular bond you have agreed to turn over to your customer. But as one man pointed out yesterday: "It is always possible to buy securities at a price. These dealers who are 'short' will have to buy in their bonds and the process may be expensive for them."

It was learned that a number of large German banks are preparing to send large quantities of German bonds here as soon as peace is officially proclaimed. They plan to send the securities here on consignment, to be handled by American dealers on an agency basis, selling what they can and charging commission on their sales. No underwriting is contemplated, it is said, but the bonds will be sold in whatever amount the American investment market will take.

This cannot be done at the present time. So long as we are technically at war with Germany, all bonds coming from that country must be the property of American citizens in order to be freely offered here. If the bonds were sent here as the property of the Germans they would have to go through the Enemy Alien Property Custodian's office, and that would involve delay and possibly they would not be released until some time after peace is restored. But if the bonds pass to the possession of American citizens before they enter the United States there is no difficulty in disposing of them.

It was also said that several investment trusts were being formed to handle these securities. The procedure in those cases will be for the American managers of the trusts to purchase the German bonds and then issue against them trust receipts, which American investors are expected to purchase later on.

LIVING COSTS SOAR IN NEW PARIS FLIGHT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 5.—A new deluge of increased prices has fallen on the already overburdened Paris resident. With complete unanimity every public service has selected the present week to establish new scales of charges. For many the alternative was bankruptcy or closing up their businesses and depriving the whole city of the service of underground trains, taxicabs, omnibuses and gas and electricity.

The cost of labor, coal and gasoline are, in every case, the cause of the increases, which vary from 75 per cent. on every bus and tramway car to 100 per cent. in the price of electricity. After the first mile, every taxicab fare will be doubled, and even then, it is stated, will scarcely meet the cost of gasoline.

The cost of food is also being increased by a new scale of octroi duties which adds a fraction to the price of every oyster and all butter brought into the city. By the removal of part of the flour subsidy by the Government the price of bread will go up next week over 100 per cent. Chilled meat, which has come into use during the war as never before, has gone up 70 per cent., and home-raised meat is sold at 300 per cent. more than before the war.

The Government has contributed to the general increase of the last few weeks by raising all railway fares, which had been already raised once, another 50 per cent. Now it is increasing postal charges in the same way, and the Chamber has passed a bill, which has yet to be ratified by the Senate, increasing the charge on letters, which was 10 centimes before the war, to 25 centimes.

Parisians, who were living in the hope that the coming of peace would bring some respite to this continuous advance, are feeling bitterly but unavailingly resentful and looking around for some one to blame.

RAILWAY CHIEFS NAME BODY TO MEET LABOR

C. L. Bardo Heads Committee on Wage Conference—First Session Likely on Wednesday.

Following a meeting of the Standing Committee of the Association of Railway Executives yesterday, a statement was issued showing the personnel of a committee chosen to confer with labor representatives on wage increase demands of railroad labor, as suggested by President Wilson a few days ago. The statement reads:

"In response to the President's letter of March 1, addressed to Thomas DeWitt Cuyler, the Standing Committee of the Association of Railway Executives met in New York today, and forwarded to Director General Walker D. Hines the names of the following committee to confer with the labor representatives on the pending request for increases in railroad wages:

"C. L. Bardo of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, Chairman; G. E. Bates of the Delaware & Hudson Co., F. E. Blaser of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co., F. W. Brown of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway Co., J. W. Higgins of the Railroad Adjustment Board No. 1, A. E. Lindsay of the New York Central Lines, C. P. Neill of the Bureau of Information of the Southeastern Railroads, Samuel G. Strickland, formerly of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Co.; A. W. Trenholm of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, and J. G. Walber of the Bureau of Information of the Eastern Railway."

WASHINGTON, March 5. — Director General Hines will probably call the first session of the bi-partisan railway wage conference to meet here Wednesday. Following announcement in New York today that the rail executives had selected their committee, Mr. Hines communicated with both employer and employe spokesmen, tentatively fixing Wednesday for the meeting.

BEWAILS ALLIED SHIPS CROWDING HAMBURG

Captain Persius Pessimistic Over Return of German Merchant Flag to Sea.

BERLIN, March 4.—Captain Persius, naval expert of the Berliner Tageblatt, discussing today the position of Germany's mercantile marine, says:

"It will require much time and patience before we are again able to behold the German merchantman's flag on the high seas."

Captain Persius declares he finds it most depressing to observe the American, British and Japanese flags predominant in the port of Hamburg, which is now in the control of foreign shipping interests. He predicts an overabundance of tonnage for all nations as a result of present building activities.

He maintains that the hope of Germany lies in the industrious efforts of her shipyard workers, who, under present conditions, are able to turn out half a million tons annually. Of this, he says, 200,000 tons will be requisitioned by the Entente, assuming that the Allies insist on its surrender as provided in the Peace Treaty.

CALVARY BAPTISTS DEBATE MORTGAGE

$38,000 IN NOTES TO BE MET

Rev. Dr. Straton's Proposal for $60,000 Lien Opposed — Deny His Resignation Is Impending.

A corporate meeting of Calvary Baptist Church, Fifty-seventh Street, west of Sixth Avenue, will be held next Wednesday evening to act on a question which is causing considerable dissension among the members. This is a proposal to mortgage the property in West Thirty-third Street, near the Pennsylvania Station, which was formerly the Collegiate Baptist Church, but whose congregation about two years ago merged with Calvary Church, giving over the property to Calvary's Board of Trustees.

The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Church, wants the members to vote to mortgage the Thirty-third Street property for $60,000. If this were done $38,000 of the amount would be used to pay outstanding notes on Calvary Church, which have been called in. It would be very difficult, if not impossible, to raise that sum in cash, it is stated.

Dr. Straton would use the remainder of the money to inaugurate new lines of work for Calvary Church. So far the Thirty-third Street property has been used for a mission. Dr. Straton would transform it into a home for girls, to be operated upon the same lines as the Young Women's Christian Association homes. The pastor thinks there is a great need for such a home for young women near the railroad station, to care for girls arriving as strangers in New York.

A faction of Calvary's members are opposed to the mortgaging of the Thirty-third Street property. Some argue that it should be kept clear and sold outright. It is valued at between $100,000 and $125,000.

A report was denied last evening by officials of Calvary Church that there was a movement under way to bring about the resignation of Dr. Straton. The pastor went to Port Jervis, N. Y., earlier in the day to deliver an address last evening and was not expected home until this evening.

Aside from the mortgage proposal, some members are dissatisfied because $15,000 of the $38,000 debt has been accumulated in the two years Dr. Straton has been the pastor. It is also said that some members are displeased at a number of the sermons Dr. Straton has preached criticising New York City.

CITY PIER YIELDS STEEL COMPANY $162,343

Commissioner of Accounts Reports Profits of 'Mr. Lewis's' Concern as Agent.

The United States Steel Products Company made wharfage profits of $89,114 and a profit on operation of $73,229, a total profit of $162,343, on a city-owned pier, leased at an annual rental of $35,000, according to a report made yesterday to Mayor Hylan by David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts. The pier is at the foot of Twenty-ninth Street, Brooklyn.

Mr. Hirshfield reported that the pier was leased to the Steel Products Company for ten years, ending Sept. 16, 1926, with renewal clauses for a period of ten years at $38,500 and ten more at $42,360. The investigation followed inquiries from the Lighterage Association of the Port of New York and the Raritan Copper Works as to the right of the Overseas Shipping Company of 27 William Street to collect wharfage charges at the pier.

Henry J. O'Neill, Superintendent of the pier, testified, Mr. Hirshfield's report said, that the Overseas Shipping Company acted as agent for the United States Steel Products Company. O'Neill testified that the rates were $125 a day for off-berths and $175 a day for in-berths. The Overseas Company, it was testified, had a capital stock of $250,000, most of it owned by the President, whose name was given as "Mr. Lewis."

The report stated that eighteen different steamship lines had used the pier and that only three of these lines were in the control of the Steel Products Company.

SHOE MACHINE MEN STRIKE.

United Company Workers in Beverly, Mass., Walk Out.

BEVERLY, Mass., March 5.—A strike of employes of the United Shoe Machinery Company began today. Apparently on a time signal, operatives left their benches and machines, and within a few minutes the shops, which employ 6,200 persons, had lost many workers. The union seeks to eliminate a system of individual contracts. It claims a membership of 42,000.

The walkout was effected without disturbance. The plant continued in operation, and company officials said there was no indication that a general suspension of work would be necessary. Observers at the factory gates estimated the number of strikers at 2,000 to 2,500. The company estimate placed the number at 1,200 to 1,500. Union officials said that from 2,000 to 3,000 men walked out.

$50,000 FOR LOSS OF LEGS.

Court Awards Damages to Soldier Run Over by Train.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court decided yesterday that Harry Bauman, a soldier, who was run over by a box car which had become detached from a train while he was doing sentry duty in the Norfolk, Va., yards in October, 1917, by which accident both legs were cut off, is entitled to recover $50,000 from the Norfolk & Western Railway.

The case was tried twice. The first jury gave him $75,000, but the late Justice Dugro reduced the amount to $35,000. The Appellate Division ordered a new trial, and the second jury awarded $50,000, which was not reduced by the trial Judge. Bauman was on duty with the Forty-seventh Regiment of Brooklyn when he was injured.

Dr. Langmuir Gets Nichols Medal.

The William H. Nichols gold medal for 1919 for the best original paper printed in the publications of the American Chemical Society was conferred last evening upon Dr. Irving Langmuir, a noted physical chemist connected with the General Electric Company of Schenectady, N. Y., for his paper entitled "The Arrangement of Electrons in Atoms and Molecules." The presentation was made by Dr. Nichols, the donor, in Rumford Hall, 50 East Forty-first Street.

No General Break in Prices.

From the experience of buyers going the round of the garment trade now, "inside" prices are being quoted by manufacturers in their showrooms but there is no general offering of reductions. The head of one buying organization, for instance, claimed that concessions ranging from 25 to 50 per cent. can be obtained on the medium and lower priced grades of merchandise, but only when cash is offered and the account is a desirable one. On the other hand, manufacturers of the better class of merchandise are booked with orders that will take them from eight to ten weeks to produce and all at "regular" prices.

Heavier Cloths Asked.

With the experience of the present Winter freshest in their minds, there is a marked tendency on the part of manufacturing clothiers to ask for heavier weights in overcoatings. The gradual scaling down of weights by the mills brought the average overcoating from 30 ounces, or a little more, to 28 and 24 ounces. These last weights are considered too light for such severe Winter weather as the country has been having and consequently the heavier weights are desired. Even in the novelty numbers, piece goods buyers are asking for cloths with more body to them.

Gray Goods Buyers Inactive.

Gray goods buyers were not so active in the local market yesterday as on Thursday, with the result that the business done did not reach very large proportions. Spot and nearby lots of printcloths figured in the bulk of the business done, sales including Southern 38½-inch 64-60s at 22¼ cents, 68-72s at 23 cents and 60-48s at 21 cents. Trading in fine yarn cloths and the clothing styles was inactive, while in the sheetings there were few sales of importance. Among them, however, were five-yard sheetings at 18 cents, and 4.70 sheetings at 20 cents.

Raw Silk Stocks Lower Here.

Quite a liberal decline in raw silk stocks held in warehouses here took place during February, according to figures compiled by the Silk Association of America and issued yesterday by it. On March 1 the total stocks in warehouses stood at 54,364 bales, against 67,824 bales on Feb. 1. The March 1 figures showed 1,671 bales of Italian, 44,033 bales of Japanese silks, and 8,660 bales of "all other silks," including the Chinese varieties. The report covering stocks in warehouses on Feb. 1 showed 2,182 bales of Italian silks, 54,504 bales of Japanese, and 11,138 bales of "all others." No report was made yesterday of stocks in the hands of manufacturers, as they were said not to be making monthly reports to the association.

Who Is Wrong?

There has grown to be such a disparity between the views of buyers and sellers regarding the outlook that the one pertinent question in all dry goods lines is "Who is wrong?" The selling agent of a large mill organization asked this question yesterday when he finished telling the story of a cancellation he had just received. The goods were bought by a clothier for $3.37½ a yard. For next season the mill price will be $4.27½ and yet the buyer cancelled. The mill man said he welcomed the cancellation because he had an order to fill for the same goods at $3.87½. The clothier explained he would be willing to pay a dollar more for the goods next year, but at present he wanted to "sail as close to the wind as possible."

Hard Coal Demand Is Brisk.

The publicity that has been given in the daily papers this week to the approaching anthracite wage conference has had its effect in stimulating the wholesale and retail demand for domestic sizes, Saward's Journal will say today. Weather conditions, past and present, have also played a part in bringing about a degree of activity often lacking at this time of the year. The dealers themselves are ordering freely, not only because business is brisk, but because they figure hard coal is a good "buy" at present prices, and with the present outlook. While the bituminous situation is not showing any very clearly defined trend toward improvement, it is felt in trade circles that the rock bottom point has been reached, and that the next few weeks will witness a pronounced change for the better.

Dcry Talk of a Slump.

While most garment manufacturers are ready to admit that conditions are not of the best in the industry, they are one in decrying what they describe as propaganda aimed to slash prices. According to representative wholesalers, the merchandise being offered at reduced prices comes chiefly from the speculative element in the industry and the small manufacturers and jobbers who are unable to hold on to their stocks until normal buying commences again. To keep up the talk of a slump, the manufacturers declare, is to cause the trade to curtail production, which will result in even higher prices than now have to be paid. The point of view of the manufacturers is that normal buying will help production and at the same time prevent future price advances.

Labor's Viewpoint Different.

Formerly in the needle trades, when it became evident to the workers that business was due for a quiet spell, the manufacturers were not only able to reduce wages to keep down expenses, but also fairly sure of seeing an increased unit production, caused by the desire of those employed to keep their positions during the slack period. Under present conditions, however, something like the opposite happens, according to a leading manufacturer. The tendency now is to stretch out the work, making it last longer and providing employment for the greatest number of people. These "soldiering" tactics would not be so serious, he said, if the smaller unit production of the dull period were confined only to that period. The trouble is, he explained, that once a unit is lost it seems to be lost forever.

They May Come Harder.

Rumor has it that retailers of shoes, possibly excepting those who deal in the kind of goods bought by people who can pay practically anything for their footwear, are not so keen about paying the high prices demanded for Fall footwear as they were about accepting wholesalers' and manufacturers' ideas in past seasons. The unwillingness did not originate with them, from all accounts, but is due primarily to the lack of desire on the part of the public to go on paying top prices interminably. While, naturally, consumers have not yet been called upon the buy shoes at the prospective Fall prices, the notice they have served on the retailers in their neglect of regular Spring lines in favor of special sales of "broken lots," &c., has brought the latter more or less to their senses. With the public becoming better acquainted with the "inside situation" through the various inquiries that are being made into the high cost of living, and with hides prices softer than for long time, the retailers are doubly unwilling to pay any more for their Fall stocks than they absolutely have to. Many of them are said to be holding off for this reason.

Dry Goods Trade Boom Unabated.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the dry goods trade say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods is in excess of the corresponding week a year ago and of previous years. Orders from salesmen on the road are also much larger. Lines offered for Fall continue to be taken very freely. The number of customers in the house was extremely large. The advance sale of pile fabric coats attracted many merchants who bought with discriminating liberality. Collections continue very satisfactory."

BUSINESS NOTES.

David Carton, resident buyer, 1,123 Broadway, has added the following to the list of his accounts: Oppenheimer's, Oskaloosa, Ia.; Strasburger's, Albia, Ia.; Stout's Specialty Shop, Bartlesville, Okla., and the Crockett Mercantile Company, Topeka, Kan.

The A. F. Mercantile Corporation, of which Alfred Fanti is President, has leased the ground floor stores at 113 and 115 West Thirty-first street, to provide additional space for stockrooms, showrooms and offices. The concern already occupies the premises at 117 West Thirty-first Street.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

More Advances Shown This Week, Though Not in Foodstuffs.

For the first time in several weeks there was an excess of advances over declines here this week in commodities price changes, as reflected by Dun's list. Despite this fact, there were again more downward revisions in the foodstuffs than there were advances, although the changes were more nearly equal than has been the case for some time. Particularly noteworthy in the foodstuffs revisions were the general upturns in prices on provisions at Chicago and on certain vegetables locally. In the general list there were 80 revisions, of which 46 were advances, whereas last week there were but 30 advances in 76 changes.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. With them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

*Government maximums. †Nominal.

In the local market for provisions the feature was the advance of 50 cents a barrel which took place in the price of Spring patent flour. Winter straights did not change here, nor did any of the cereals listed at Chicago, however, there was a different story to tell. All of the live meats but sheep were higher, and there were also advances in mess pork, Middle Western lard and short ribs.

Sharp declines in eggs were noted in the dairy products. The nearby fancies fell off 9 cents a dozen, which is the sharpest break in them that has been seen for some time. The decline in the best Western eggs was 5 cents a dozen and both varieties are now closer to the corresponding 1919 prices than has been the case for many weeks. Butter was also cheaper, but no changes were noted in the prices of cheese. The best creamery butter and State dairy common to fair stock each dropped 2 cents a pound, while the price of the best renovated butter fell off a cent a pound.

Advances of 50 cents a barrel in both common and fancy apples were seen in the listed fresh fruits, but in the dried ones all of the changes were downward. While there were lower prices quoted on some of the beans in the vegetable list, the features in these foods were the sharp upturns that took place in cabbage and potatoes. The former advanced $1 a barrel during the week, while the rise in potatoes for the same period amounted to $2.50. This was a record advance and brought the wholesale price up to $10 a barrel, compared with $4.10 a barrel at this time a year ago.

Fair Formosa tea was lower, and there were further declines in the listed grades of Brazilian coffees. In the spices, mace and black Singapore pepper were higher. The best raw sugar advanced, but despite this fact there was a drop of $1 a hundred pounds in fine granulated. The grains list was again bare of declines, with the advances shown by corn, oats, rye and barley and by long rye straw. Jute went up, but tallow and Brazilian crude rubber were lower.

The combined list for chemicals, drugs, dyestuffs and oils showed sixteen revisions, of which twelve were advances. The features in the upward changes were the strong position occupied by the soda products, and the rises in both crude and refined petroleum. The metals showed an excess of declines this week. Basic valley pig iron was lower, and other declines were seen in wire nails, lake and electrolytic copper, lead and tin. The advances for the most part took place in the manufactured materials.

No advances were shown in hides this week, and the leather list was also bare of changes in that direction. The only declines in either list were contained in the hides, where both No. 1 native packer stock and No. 1 calfskins were lower. The calfskins are now back to the level they reached at this time a year ago. In the naval stores there were advances in resin and turpentine, the latter reaching a new high record. Paints contributed four of the week's advances, with declines missing. Lead paints, in particular, went up. News roll and M. F. book paper were higher.

In the textile fields during the week the tendency was weaker. Burlaps were especially weak under the bearish influence of large shipments. The cotton goods also showed a downward tendency in several directions, particularly in printcloths and sheetings. Sateens also were weak.

BUSINESS RECORDS

FAILURES OF THE WEEK.—Bradstreet's reports 129 failures in the United States for the week, against 100 for the previous week and 121, 243, 273, 352 for the corresponding week 1919 to 1916. The New England States had 7, Middle 3, Western 80, Northwestern 11, Southern 17, Far Western 15. Canada had 14, against 14 for the previous week. In the United States about 77.5 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had $5,000 capital or less and 18.6 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

SOCIALIST DEFENSE SPEAKS LAST WORD

Seymour Stedman Contends Entire Proceedings Affecting Assemblymen Are Illegal.

TILT OVER THE PRESIDENT

Lawyer Maintains Citizens Have the Right to Assail Any Man in Public Office.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 5.—The final argument for the five suspended Socialist Assemblymen in the proceeding before the Assembly Judiciary Committee was made today by Seymour Stedman in a five-hour argument. He contended that no evidence worthy of the name had been presented to justify the proceeding. He maintained the right of the Socialists to oppose the war and that the failure of the Socialist Assemblymen to vote for military appropriations could not under any construction of the law be held as valid ground for their expulsion.

The entire proceedings and the way the Assembly went about it were illegal, he insisted. The Socialists in taking their oath of office had complied with every requirement of the law that alone could be pleaded as a ground for placing them on trial.

"You try these people on the presumption of guilt and you even manufacture a theory that will fit into your conclusions," he said.

Referring to Eugene V. Debs, Mr. Stedman said: "He represents in a sense the Socialist movement. Perhaps he represents it more completely than any other man in this country."

In answering the charge that the Socialist Party had given full indorsement to the Russian Soviet Government and the Third Internationale, the lawyer said:

"Within the next year and a half your drummers in Russia will be using Socialists' names to get business. A drummer who goes over there representing a harvesting machine company will say, 'Why, we were always with you. Don't you know Morris Hillquit? He is a great friend of mine. We have always sympathized with you.'"

He called attention to the fact that three of the suspended Assemblymen had testified in refutation of charges made on testimony for which there had been no corroboration.

"The prosecution has suggested that the members of the party should suffer for the party attitude," he continued. "That ordinarily would be a harsh rule under which you Republicans and Democrats some day might suffer. The prosecution has stated also that these Assemblymen are not being tried for individual guilt. I submit, if that is true, they should be seated, because the only basis by which you can pass upon this case is to pass on each individual respectively."

A reference to President Wilson by Mr. Stedman aroused the ire of Assemblyman Cuvillier of the committee.

"Mr. Wilson," Mr. Stedman said, "had fourteen aims. He went to Paris and he returned, and the open covenant of nations went glimmering, and how many of the other fourteen points were left I do not know."

"But he was loyal to his country," said Assembly Cuvillier.

"Oh, yes," retorted Mr. Stedman. "That is not my point—and I do not think he boasts of it all the time. I want to say this: That you can generally take a man who is boasting of the fact that he always pays his bills and suggest that he have his checks certified. The man who is what he is is not in the habit of parading it on billboards, unless he is selling some wares."

"I do not think you should assail the President of the United States," Mr. Cuvillier said.

"Let me say this, sir, to you," Mr. Stedman answered. "I hope the time will never come when a man in this Government will not feel the right to assail any man in public office—every man in this House. The law stands in a position equal to that of the President."

MAY SUE FOR SALARY RISE.

Estimate Board's Refusal to Supervisory Teachers Likely to be Tested.

Salary increases of $1,000 each, recommended by the Board of Education for thirty-eight members of the Supervisory Staff, have been held up by the Board of Estimate, and another controversy between city officials and the school authorities has begun which may end in the courts.

The thirty-eight who have taken the matter up with Controller Craig have been informed that the increases were not granted on account of the lateness of filing the schedules. Following their conference with the Controller, they were left with the impression, they say, that their only course would be to start mandamus proceedings.

Discussing the situation Arthur S. Somers, a member of the Board, said that the Board of Education was not in a position to do anything further. "We approved those schedules in accordance with all legal requirements and sent them to the Board of Estimate. The schedules have been filed with the State Commissioner of Education, and if anything is to be done it will rest with the members of the supervisory staff who are affected. The question in dispute is whether the Board of Estimate, in accordance with the law, must grant the increases. It may be that the District and Associate Superintendents and others will have to establish their rights in the courts, unless a settlement is reached in the meantime."

Dr. Cole's Company Made Shrapnel.

Representatives of the estate of Dr. Charles K. Cole, who died in Pasadena, Cal., a few days ago, said yesterday that, contrary to published statements in connection with Dr. Cole's death, A. Schrader's Sons, Inc., of which he was President, did engage in the manufacture of articles used in making shrapnel during the war, and also manufactured a large number of other war supplies, the plant being almost on a 100 per cent. war-work basis.

Post-Graduate Hospital's Growth.

The year book of the Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital, made public yesterday, showed that the institution's hospital, at Second Avenue and Twentieth Street, had treated 64,679 new patients last year, and the dispensary 173,285 patients. Dr. Frederic E. Sondern, President of the hospital, said that these figures measured the annual growth of the hospital and that this year the number of patients would be greatly increased. The Endowment Fund Committee is seeking to increase the institution's endowment by $2,000,000.

Trade Session Draws 30 Nations.

The National Foreign Trade Council, through its Secretary, O. K. Davis, announced yesterday that advices had been received from thirty leading nations bordering on the Pacific that they would send representatives to the seventh national foreign trade conference at San Francisco, May 12 to 15. Special trans-Pacific steamships will be provided. The American Chamber of Commerce for China has appointed ten delegates, and similar delegations are to represent the American Chambers of Commerce in various other countries. James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation, is Chairman of the council.

SILK THEFTS INCREASE.

Nearly $750,000 Lost Here in a Period of Nine Months.

The serious losses incurred by silk dealers and manufacturers in and around New York in the last nine months from burglaries of lofts and trucks have amounted to over half a million dollars, according to figures issued by the Silk Association of America. From July 1, 1919, to Sept. 30 the losses amounted to $226,505. In the next three months $255,963 worth of silk was reported stolen and for the first three months of 1920, according to present indications, the silk thefts will account for over $260,000 worth of goods.

The Missing Property Bureau of the silk association has placed investigators about the city who report to truck owners the numbers of trucks left unprotected and inviting theft.

Inability to identify merchandise, particularly raw silks, that have been recovered by the police, by manufacturers and dealers who have suffered losses is being remedied by the placing of secret identification marks on the raw products before they leave the producers.

The silks which were found by the police at the warehouse of the Lichtenfels Brothers in the Bronx bear no such mark, and it has been impossible to find out who is the owner of these goods, which amount in value to many thousands of dollars.

The building, which is six stories in height on a plot 75 by 100 and occupied by cabinet manufacturers, was held at $90,000, and owing to the scarcity of space the property was purchased for the purpose of obtaining additional space. The sale was for cash. Joseph G. Abramson represented the purchasers.

This is the first sale of the property in sixteen years.

BUYING FOR OCCUPANCY

Realty Company Acquires Extensive Frontages on Water and Front Streets.

Downtown business properties figured in numerous transactions yesterday, deals being closed for valuable parcels in Water, Greenwich, Pearl, Duane and nearby streets. William C. Cammann sold through the Charles F. Noyes Company to the 95 Wall Street Realty Company the five loft and office buildings at 107, 109, 111 Water Street and 108 and 110 Front Street, in an all-cash transaction. The property has a frontage of 63 feet on Water Street and 42 feet on Front Street.

William A. White & Sons sold to Bertram Stokes, who will occupy with his provision business, the five-story building at 327 Greenwich Street, 25.6 by 62.5, at the southeast corner of Duane Street. This is the second sale of this property within the last six months by the same brokers.

Hall J. How & Co. sold for John G. Gerber to Daniel F. Farrell the five-story business building 207 Duane Street, size 26 by 58.

The two five-story loft buildings at 502 and 504 West Broadway, on a plot 50 by 75, have been purchased by Mrs. Anna Helfat, an investor, through Jacob Shapiro, her attorney. The buildings are held at $65,000.

The Charles F. Noyes Company sold for Dr. Lewis M. Kommel 354 Pearl Street, a five-story and basement building, covering a lot 23.5 by 00. The purchaser is Edward Sempliner, the tenant, who is a large dealer in boots, shoes and leather. Mr. Sempliner purchased the property for all cash. This sale is of additional interest because the same brokers sold fifteen years ago the property to Dr. Kommel, who has had a splendid income ever since he held the property and now realizes a substantial profit.

Berlin & Schneider, represented by Joseph G. Abramson, purchased from John A. Schappert the six-story store and loft building 74 Greenwich Street, near Rector Street, Manhattan. The building was held at $75,000 and shows a rental of about $13,000. The sale was for cash above a first mortgage. Harold Hotchkiss was the broker in the transaction.

Harry J. Schum sold for Dr. George B. Doty two three-story dwellings, size 32 by 98.9, 214 and 216 West Thirty-eighth Street to the Garment Centre Realty Company, which plans the erection of model factories for the garment trades on adjoining frontages and on Seventh Avenue.

Brooklyn Buyers Active.

Jerome Property Corporation sold a three-story flat at 395 President Street, lot 20 by 100, for C. Schwartz to an investor.

Henry Pierson & Co. sold to an investor for Charles J. Roper the eight-family flat at 100 Garfield Place.

O. E. Allard and J. J. Levey have sold the two-story dwelling on plot 40 by 100, on west side of Rugby Road, 100 feet south of Dorchester Road, Flatbush, to a client for investment.

Frank H. Malone sold the one-family dwelling on plot 35 by 100 at 452 Eighteth Street for David C. Bennett to a client for occupancy.

Meister Builders sold to a client of James Cavollo a three-story dwelling at 736 A Union Street, on a lot 16.8 by 100.

Charles Partridge sold the six-family apartment house at 608 East Seventeenth Street, near Newkirk Avenue, for Isador Morrisson, to a client for investment.

Green Brothers sold 352 East Sixteenth Street for Jessie G. Wetherby to M. Englehardt.

Bulkley & Horton Company sold 81 Waverly Avenue, a three-story dwelling on lot 18.9 by 100, for Mary Farrari for investment.

Reuben R. Krefetz sold for Max Seigelman and Isaac Politnitzer to Bella Kameny of Manhattan the six apartments at 315, 317, 319, 321, 323 and 325 Vernon Avenue, near Lewis Avenue, held for $108,000.

Commercial Leases.

Wm. A. White & Sons leased to the Ignition Specialty Company the two-story garage at 123 West Fifty-first Street, 20 by 100.5, adjoining the present quarters of the company at 125.

Dwight, Archibald & Perry, Inc., leased for Guion Brothers 37 and 39 West Twenty-fourth Street for a long term of years to the 37 West Twenty-fourth Street Corporation. These buildings were formerly occupied by the Collalzi Restaurant. The lease is significant of the changing of the character of this block between Broadway and Sixth Avenue from one of the most popular restaurant blocks in the section to a mercantile line of occupation.

The Charles F. Noyes Company subleased for the Southard-Robertson Company 21 and 23 Peck Slip, corner of Water Street, to the Ackerman Manufacturing and Export Company for ten years from May 1, at an aggregate rental of $75,000, and subleased back to the Southard-Robertson Company a portion of the ground floor and second floor of the building, where the company will continue to maintain its executive offices. The Southard-Robertson Company has been located in the building for over thirty years, and the Ackerman Manufacturing and Export Company are moving to its new premises from 65 Fulton Street.

Adds to Building Site.

The Barrett Company, which recently bought the block front on the north side of Rector Street, between Washington and West Streets, as a site for a sixteen-story structure, has added to the site the adjoining property at 104 and 108 Washington Street and 68 to 70 West Street, owned by the Edgar family. The enlarged site fronts 177 feet on Rector Street, 192 feet in Washington Street and 173.5 feet in West Street, containing approximately 28,000 square feet. J. N. Kalley & Son negotiated the transaction.

Resale of Midtown Loft.

An investing client of Harry B. Cutner purchased from Frederick Brown, operator, the five-story loft building, 25 by 98.9, at 18 East Twenty-third Street, near Broadway, held at $175,000. The realty, which is under lease until next May, was acquired about three weeks ago by Mr. Brown from Borden and William H. Owen, Jr., through Albert B. Ashforth, Inc.

Big Edgemere Purchase.

The Children's Aid Society of Brooklyn purchased, through the Lewis H. May Company, from Emily Brinckerhoff, as executrix of the Brinckerhoff estate, the property known as "Sea Lawn," fronting on the Atlantic Ocean at Edgemere, L. I., consisting of the homestead and outbuildings on a plot of seven acres. The society recently purchased the Cheever property adjoining. The combined properties contain more than twenty-one acres and have an ocean frontage of 100 feet, one of the largest individual holdings of ocean front parcels in the Rockaway section. Plans are completed for the erection of numerous buildings to properly house the increased demands of the institution. The property was held at $85,000.

APARTMENT BUYING.

The Westminster, Held at $900,000, Sold by W. Emlen Roosevelt.

Apartment house trading was a strong feature of yesterday's market, one of the largest transactions involving the Westminster apartment house, at 68 and 70 East Eighty-sixth Street, a twelve-story structure, erected about seven years ago by Samuel A. Herzog, which was acquired by J. C. and M. G. Mayer from W. Emlen Roosevelt, who had been holding it at $800,000.

It occupies a plot 64 by 100, about 100 feet west of Park Avenue, and contains two suites on a floor of six, seven, eight and nine rooms. The yearly rental revenue is $60,000.

The seller acquired the property from Samuel A. Herzog in 1913 in a trade for the twelve-story apartment house at the southeast corner of Park Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street. Harold L. Lewis negotiated the sale.

On the upper west side Sharp & Co. sold for L. H. Ullman to an investor the Esperanto at 229 West 105th Street, a six-story elevator house, 100 by 100, adjoining the northeast corner of Broadway. The building houses thirty-six families, in five and six room suites, rents for $40,000 and was held at $300,000. It was erected about seven years ago.

The two six-story apartment buildings, each 37.6 by 99.11, at 543 and 545 West 142d Street, adjoining the northeast corner of Broadway, have been sold by Sidney Ettinger to Isaac Kind for investment.

An investing client of Charles M. Norden, attorney, has bought from Louis Greenwald the six-story apartment house, 39.10 by 100, at 2,505 and 2,507 Seventh Avenue, adjoining the northeast corner of 145th Street.

The Monterey, a six-story elevator apartment building, 100 by 100, at the southeast corner of Pinehurst Avenue and 179th Street, has been resold by the Wellfinanced Investing Company to an investor. The property rents for $24,000, and was held at $240,000. It was acquired two days ago by the seller from the Denwood Realty Company.

Abraham Handman sold to a client of B. Harris 509 West 170th Street, a five-story apartment, 50 by 100, renting for $13,000 and held at $80,000.

The E. J. Maas Realty Company, Inc., sold for Harry Shweitzer to E. E. Monette 235 to 239 West 108th Street, a six-story elevator apartment, 75 by 100.

Rice & Hill sold for the estate of George R. Fearing of Newport, R. I., to a client the five-story store and tenement building at 306 West Thirteenth Street, between Eighth Avenue and West Fourth Street, on a lot 28 by 55. Extensive improvements are planned for the property.

The six-story apartment house on the southeast corner of 149th Street and Bradhurst Avenue, recently purchased from the East River Savings Bank by Max Seligman and renting for $14,400, has been resold through Jacob Shapiro to Abraham Schlusselberg, an investor. The building covers a plot 50 by 99.11 and was held at $90,000.

The Lebertan Corporation sold the Miquelon, a six-story apartment house at 206 West Ninety-ninth Street, for all cash over a mortgage of $80,000, held by the New York Life Insurance Company, to a client of Wm. A. Carr of J. Clarence Davies. The property had been held at $140,000.

Steinman & Steinman sold for the Daylight Realty Corporation, A. Arkin and S. Horowitz, 570 West 172d Street, a five-story apartment, on a plot 62.6 by 100, renting for $17,500, and held at $110,000; also sold the Daylight Realty Corporation 23 West 123d Street, a five-story apartment, 25 by 100, held at $40,000.

A FEW YEARS AGO

You bought Sugar for 6 cents a pound
You pay 18c for it now

You bought a pair of shoes for $4.00
You will pay $9.00 for the same shoes today

You bought a suit of clothes for $20.00
Today you would have to pay $40.00 for it

Everything else has gone up in proportion Except Real Estate

Owing to lack of building and great demand, rents have risen
But Real Estate is selling at the same valuation today as when you bought sugar for 6c, shoes at $4.00 and clothes for $20.00

Real Estate should therefore increase in value 100 to 300%
in the next few years

Real Estate is always the last to rise in price
but it always rises in proportion to other commodities

This is the psychological time to buy it, particularly property located In the Heart of New York
such as will be offered at this sale

The properties are rented for ridiculously low prices, as most of the leases were made many years ago

Many of the leases on these properties expire May 1st.
Purchasers not wanting to occupy the premises themselves can obtain largely increased rentals and make a good investment, with the opportunity of selling at a profit

The Sale Is Absolute

HYLAN AND ENRIGHT DEMAND VICE LIST

Call on District Attorney Swann for Facts on 500 Resorts Said to Exist.

WOMAN DESCRIBES GRAFT

Story of Repeated Payments to Escape Conviction Borne Out by Her Bank Books.

A list of the five hundred apartments which Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith was reported to have estimated as the number in Manhattan used by women for immoral purposes was requested yesterday by Mayor Hylan of District Attorney Swann. The Mayor thanked Mr. Swann for his expression of confidence in the integrity of the Police Department and declared that both the Mayor and Police Commissioner would co-operate with the District Attorney in correcting any evils that might be found to exist.

The Mayor's letter was the most tangible development of the day in the investigation into alleged police vice graft that Mr. Smith is conducting. The inquiry broadened so as to bring in the names of a dozen more policemen and police officers. District Attorney Swann, after a talk with Judge James T. Malone of the Court of General Sessions, stated that the inquiry would go on regardless of what efforts might be made to prevent it, and that he had relieved Mr. Smith of all other duty so that he might devote his entire time to conducting it.

District Attorney Swann had not answered the Mayor's letter last night, but said he had referred it to Mr. Smith for data. Mr. Smith would not discuss the letter but said there might be something to say later.

Mayor Asks for List.

The Mayor's letter follows:

"A statement appears in today's press purporting to be authorized by your assistant, James E. Smith, in which he alleges there are five hundred flats in this city conducted for disorderly purposes. If the location of these alleged disorderly apartments has not been given to the Police Commissioner, may I not ask you to furnish me with the addresses of these alleged apartments, so that I may immediately take it up with the Police Commissioner.

"I thank you for your expression of confidence in our Police Department. From time to time there will be individuals connected with the Police Department whose actions will not be in the best interests of the people of the city. The Police Department has met every emergency and has justified the confidence that has been placed in it by the people of the city. I can assure you you will have the fullest co-operation of myself, as Mayor, and of the Police Commissioner in eradicating any evil that may exist."

Mayor Hylan's letter was followed by a sharp letter from Police Commissioner Enright, who also requested a list of the 500 alleged "disorderly" apartments, that the police might suppress them. Commissioner Enright said he desired to eliminate any member of the police force guilty of criminal or vicious conduct, and requested that the trial of Detective John J. Gunson, indicted for extortion and bribery, and the trial of any other policemen who might be indicted as a result of the investigation, be given preference.

Enright Demands Facts.

His letter to District Attorney Swann follows:

"Patrolman John J. Gunson, Shield 1,686, detailed to plain-clothes duty in the Fourth Inspection District since June 10, 1917, was indicted by the regular Grand Jury on March 3, 1920, as I am informed, upon information obtained from one or more notorious women, who under various aliases have figured in the police records of this city.

"From statements in the public press, which evidently are given out in the District Attorney's office, it appears that the indictment of additional members of the police force, as well as several citizens, including one or two lawyers, may also be expected. This newspaper report also alleges that an Assistant District Attorney, who from long and intimate knowledge of the gambling and vice elements of this city should be in a position to know, stated that about 500 disorderly flats or apartments are used for commercialized prostitution in this city.

"The Police Department is exceedingly anxious to eliminate from this department any member of the force who may be guilty of criminal or vicious conduct, and I therefore request that all of these cases be given preference and that they speedily be brought to trial and judgment.

"Will you please let me have the location of any of these flats or places where commercialized prostitution is carried on in order that they may be immediately suppressed?

"We will be very glad to co-operate with you in all of these matters, and it is safe to assume that your office will see that there is no lack of publicity."

Woman Tells of Police Graft.

A story, which, if true, indicates the existence of a "vice syndicate" among policemen charged with enforcing the laws against immorality, was told Mr. Smith by Rose Gonzales, who is detained as a material witness against Detective Gunson. Rose Gonzales, Rebecca Melyado and Estelle Young, all witnesses against Gunson, were held in $1,000 bail each and committed by Judge Malone to the Florence Crittenton Home until the case is completed. Mr. Smith said that the committment was desired by the three women for their protection.

Miss Gonzales furnished Mr. Smith with the names of the policemen who had arrested her during the last two years. Each time, she said, the policemen advised her to get a certain lawyer. The latter, she said, would demand from $300 to $500, telling her that, if she paid, the policemen would change their story in court, and, if she did not pay, they would so testify as to obtain her conviction.

She had paid every time, she said, and had been discharged each time in court. The lawyer, she said, would take her bank book and hold it until the completion of the case, she said, and then go with her to the bank and take from her the money drawn out on a check made payable to cash.

Asked if she had ever served a sentence, Miss Gonzales said that she had "But that was before I knew I could pay money to escape it," she said. "That was before I was wise."

Bank Books Corroborate Charges.

She said further that she had not, except in one instance, been arrested by the same policemen, which indicated to the investigators that there was at least a working agreement among the members of the police vice squads. Mr. Smith said that the story had been checked up with the records and shown to be true so far as her arrests were concerned. Her bankbook, he stated, showed withdrawals of the amounts stated on the day or the day following these arrests.

District Attorney Swann said that he had received information indicating that a number of individual policemen were taking "graft" from women, but knew nothing that would implicate any large number of the force. He stated that his office had already investigated the lawyer in question, but had never been able to get anything against him that would hold. Recently, he said, a man had elected to take a long prison sentence rather than to "come through" with the story of an offense in which the lawyer was believed to be implicated.

Exodus of Women from West Side.

Mr. Smith said he had received word from agents of the Society for the Suppression of Vice and the Committee of Fourteen, who have been assisting in the investigation, that there has been a great exodus of women frem houses that have been under suspicion on the west side of Manhattan. Mr. Smith said that apparently an order had been issued by some person interested for disreputable women to get out of the city temporarily before they were detained by him as witnesses. Mr. Smith stated that several places that had been running openly had been closed and that he had received word that the inmates had gone out of town on a vacation.

Reports of a coming shake-up in the Police Department, as a result of the investigation, were current. One Lieutenant and a detective of an Inspector's staff were reported to have already been transferred to outlying precincts.

A superseding indictment was filed yesterday against Detective Gunson, the original indictment charging extortion and bribery having been found to contain clerical errors. Mr. Smith, after a conference with Judge Malone, said that this case was expected to go to trial before March 22.

Mr. Smith intimated that the vice graft trial led beyond detectives and patrolmen to higher officers in the Police Department. He said he had received information that one police officer, apparently unwilling to trust any of his men with collections from women, had met the women or their representatives in a public park and had collected the money from them there direct.

Other charges, as yet unsubstantiated, were said to involve officers of as high rank as inspector.

Carl Greenwald of 366 East Sixty-ninth Street, was arrested yesterday by Detective Joseph Russo of the District Attorney's staff on a charge of having forced Rose Abramson, 22 years old, to lead an immoral life. He was held by Magistrate William A. Sweetser in Harlem Court in $5,000 bail for examination on Monday.

Greenwald's arrest followed the conviction of Miss Abramson for forgery in the Court of General Sessions and her sentence to Auburn Prison by Judge Rosalsky. The young woman, who was charged by Morris Kohn, a lawyer, with having forged a check while in his employ as a stenographer, made a statement that she had been compelled to do so by Greenwald and followed this with other disclosures.

Greenwald admitted that he knew the young woman, but denied the charges against him.

"Why Kill a Big 25¢ Cigar?"

"New Yorkers are cruel to good cigars. And cruel to their pocketbooks. They touch off a 25c cigar, smoke an inch or two, are interrupted, get busy, forget—and leave a long, stale, ice-cold butt to tell the story of their extravagance.

"That's a savage way to treat good tobacco and good money.

"In-B-Tweens are 25 cent cigars in 7 cent editions—"small portions" of high quality. If you want to dash off a smoke, don't dash it off the end of a long expensive cigar. I say smoke In-B-Tweens."
